Judging the Baby.
Watch Him Grow Up.
Voltaire Scored Low.
Set a Good Example.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Copyrighted, 1925, by the Star Co.

A reverend gentleman has formulated some rules for judging human babies. He has made a table of "good points," the total footing up one hundred. He counts ten points for the sense of smell, and the same number of points for each of the other senses—touch, taste, sight and hearing.

He allows ten points for evidence of physical health, ten points for looks, five for hair, five for teeth and so on.

The reverend gentleman judges a baby by the way it pets a cat. And he forms an opinion of the baby's intelligence by its interest in a music box or a gold watch held up before it.

As a matter of fact, no outward sign is of any value in judging the possibilities of a young child.

If you see a baby petting a cat skillfully or unskillfully, you can form no opinion of the baby—although you may be quite sure that the father and mother are foolish in these days not to know that a cat's fur is the carrier of the germs of diphtheria and other diseases, and should be kept far from a child.

The gentleman says: "A perfect baby must be good-looking," and he also says that it must have a good disposition, a ready smile, good hair, and teeth that appear fairly early. It also must have a good digestion.

All of which things are pleasing; not one of them is essential. Many of the very best and most wonderful babies are weak, ill-tempered and feeble at the beginning of their lives, because a brain excessively developed takes more than its share of the child's blood and leaves the rest of the body weak.

The great genius and fighting man, Voltaire, is one of the best examples of what may come from an unpromising baby.

As an infant Voltaire had fits, indigestion, weak legs and his face probably looked like a pale green, frostbitten, little sour apple.

If the Abbe de Chateauneuf had not taken a wonderful interest in the baby and dipped him in hot water when he had fits, and regulated his diet, Voltaire would have died in infancy, the world would have lost one of its great fighting men, and the French revolution might have been delayed.

Voltaire as a baby would probably not have scored 20 points out of the hundred in the reverend gentleman's list of points.

The reverend gentleman's ideas would be first rate in the judging of a bull pup or prize kitten.

In a human baby everything of importance is hidden away under the thin hair, in the funny little skull. You never can tell what is going on inside of that wonderful temple of the brain until infancy and childhood have passed and work has begun.

The great thing in human life is the

Carl Willis, Aged 11, Run Down by Auto; Police Seek Driver

Police are searching for an unidentified automobile driver who is alleged to have run down and injured Carl Willis, 11-year-old Mulberry street youth, near the foot of Broadway on the River road, at 8 o'clock Saturday night.

Willis had just stepped off the River road bus and was crossing Broadway to the sidewalk when he was struck and knocked unconscious. The driver, who was headed north on Broadway, failed to stop, according to the police report.

Another auto owner obtained the license number of the car and turned it over to the police. The driver is said to be a resident of Salem.

The injured boy was taken to the City hospital. His lip and forehead were lacerated. After his injuries were dressed by Dr. J. W. Chetwynd, he was removed to his home in East End.

Robbers Attempt To Loot Secrist Home, Vine Street

Robbers made an unsuccessful attempt to loot the home of H. J. Secrist, 419 Vine street, last night.

When Secrist returned home at 8 o'clock, he heard a noise in the cellar. He went to investigate but the would-be culprits fled through a window. Police believe that the prowlers had just entered the cellar and did not have time to reach the upstairs when the visit was interrupted. So far as the owner was able to ascertain, nothing was taken.

This is the third time that the Secrist home has been entered.

VIC ALDRIDGE IS SENT AGAINST 'COVEY' FOR SECOND TIME IN SERIES

Pittsburgh Pirates Compared With Condemned Man Awaiting Noose as They go Into What May Prove Final Game of Classic on American League Field in Washington.

SENATORS QUOTED 6 TO 1 TO WIN TITLE; SHORTER PRICE ON CLASH

Spitball Pitcher Hopes for Better Support From Team Mates as he Gets Call for Mound Duty Despite Defeat in Second Game on Pittsburgh Diamond.

GRIFFITH STADIUM, WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The condemned man who awaits the hangman's noose in his death cell had nothing on the Pittsburgh Pirates this afternoon as they went into the fifth and what may prove the final game of the world series with the Washington Senators, a game that was to determine whether immediate death or a brief reprieve was to be visited upon the victim. As the game began Washington was out in front by three victories to one and needed but another to fall heir to its second world championship title in as many years.

The Senators chances were quoted at anything up to six to one, with no takers, but the price was much shorter on the result of today's game because it was figured that Vic Aldridge, who pitched the Pirates into their lone victory, might prove a repeater. It was pretty generally understood an hour before game time that Aldridge would be the pitching choice, Lee Meadows having injured his arm.

Stanley Coveleskie, the great salivary relic who finished second to Aldridge on the occasion in question, was named by Stanley Harris as his overnight pitching choice. He intimated, however, that he would look the situation over thoroughly before definitely committing himself.

Scalpires' Suffer Losses.

Coveleskie, however, didn't figure altogether in the light of a loser going on against a winner. As a matter of fact, Pittsburgh didn't win that game so much as Washington lost it, errors figured heavily in the scoring of the winning runs.

Today, the sky was dark with the threat of impending rain and afforded an excellent screen for a fast ball pitcher of which Aldridge is one. Neither is it exactly the kind of a day that might be calculated to bring comfort to a team trying to fathom the eccentric breaks of a spitball.

The crowd was the smallest of the series, the fans staying away in droves. They simply took a run out on the series afetr yesterday's game, interest being purely academic.

In consequence, poor but honest ticket scalpers, became more honorable than ever, quoting prices below the box office rate.

AIR MAIL PILOT'S BODY FOUND SITTING ERECT IN WRECKED PLANE

Charles H. Ames Killed When he Crashes Into Densely Wooded Mountainside Near Bellefonte, Pa.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 12.—Formal investigation of the death of U. S. Air Mail Pilot Charles H. Ames, 32, of Cleveland, opened today under the direction of C. F. Egge, superintendent of air mail. The aviator's body was found six miles east of here, sitting erect in the wrecked plane, after a search of 10 days.

The investigators, H. B. Shaver, eastern division air mail superintendent; F. J. Gerhaus, manager of the Bellefonte flying field, and Air Mail Pilot J. D. Hiel, convened here, but later adjourned to the Nittany mountain range, near Hecla beacon, where a part of the searchers, led by L. H. Mullins, found the body.

In view of the report of Coroner W. R. Heaton, of Center county, that the aviator died from fracture of the frontal bone, the investigators, after viewing the wrecked plane, were expected to submit a formal finding to the postmaster general that Ames' death was unavoidable and occurred while the pilot was in pursuit of duty.

Ames' parents, who live in Los Angeles, wired Paul Ames, the pilot's brother, to have the body cremated and send the ashes to Jackson, Mich., where the family has a burial plot. Cremation probably will be in Philadelphia.

LOUIS MILLER AWAITS DEATH SENTENCE FOR SLAYING MAN

Found Guilty of Killing George Rodgers, Farmer.

ASKS NEW TRIAL

First Degree Murder Decision Given by Beaver Judge.

Louis Miller, 58-year-old farm laborer, probably will pay the death penalty for killing George Rodgers, 40, Beaver county farmer and a former resident of East Liverpool, during a quarrel on the Rodgers' farm three miles from Beaver, July 30, last.

In a decision handed down in Beaver county common pleas court at Beaver Saturday, Judge Frank B. Reader, held Miller guilty of murder in the first degree which carries with it capital punishment.

Attorney Henry Wilson, Beaver, defense counsel, immediately filed a motion for a new trial. Judge Reader deferred passing of sentence until he rules on the motion.

Pleads No Defense.

Upon arraignment two weeks ago, Miller entered a plea of no defense to the murder charge. Testimony to determine the degree of guilt was taken September 28 and 29, but the judge reserved his decision until Saturday.

Miller is alleged to have shot Rodgers when the latter is said to have taken away the keys to the laborer's automobile. Miller declared he remembered nothing of the shooting, admitting that he had been drinking earlier in the day. He was arrested immediately following the shooting.

Rodgers is a son of William Rodgers, Sr., of Lisbon street. His brother, William Rodgers, Jr., and a sister, Mrs. James Thies, also reside here.

GIRL LOSES $400 IN BAG

Luggage is Taken From Station at Salem.

Field Major Joseph Hughes, of the Salvation Army today offered a reward for the return of a traveling bag, containing $400 in money and other valuables, belonging to his niece, Miss Ethel Smith, formerly of Riverside, Cal., which was taken from the Pennsylvania railroad station at Salem, Saturday night.

The bag disappeared as Mrs. Hughes wife of Major Hughes, was returning to her home in East Liverpool from California, where she had been called by the death of her sister, Mrs. B. C. Smith of Riverside. She was accompanied by her niece, a daughter of her late sister, who plans to make her home in East Liverpool.

The two women left the train at Salem at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night and sat in the railroad depot, awaiting the Y. & O. car. When they boarded the car Miss Smith neglected to take her traveling bag, which not only contained the money but many of the personal effects of her mother, including her will, beads, two bunches of keys and other trinkets.

A friend of the family returned to Salem on the next car and attempted to locate the bag but without results. It had been carried off in the meantime by some person who entered the station.

"It is a Pleasure," Says President Coolidge as he Shakes Hands of National League Pennant Winners.

REVEALS PRETTY BALLDOM ROMANCE

Glenn Wright, Shortstop, is Devoted to Miss Muriel Clarke, Daughter of Fred Clarke, Reporter Observes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The reporter at the next desk said to me, "Are you going to the White House?" I hate practical jokers, and so I regarded the reporter with scorn and replied sacrastically, "Why, of course, I'm stopping there, haven't you heard?" But the laugh was on me after all, because we did go over to the White House, when it was made clear to me that President Coolidge was about to receive the Pittsburgh baseball players and that the newspaper people would be admitted, we ran over, myself several paces in the lead.

We found the presidential mansion sitting white and huge and cool in the midst of the green lawns. A man in a uniform so festooned with gold braid that I thought he must be secretary of the navy, at least, but who proved to be only a doorman, directed us to the executive offices. These are in a far wing, and there we found assembled many of our fellow scribes and a flying squadron of cameramen. Officials bustled about and had a moment of panic as one of them said "What's that girl doing here?" Apparently he thought I had stolen my press badge or that it was a sorority pin. Upon being assured that I was a bonafide journalist, he consented to allow he to stay. It was a great relief. I had entertained visions of myself being tossed out of the White House like a bum out of a bar.

SMITHS FERRY BRIDGE WORKER IS DEAD AFTER 15-FOOT PLUNGE

Charles C. Kinsey, Inspector, Succumbs in Hospital.

SKULL FRACTURED

Fatally Injured After Saving Fellow Employe From Fall.

Charles C. Kinsey, 66, Smiths Ferry, Pennsylvania highway department bridge inspector, died in the City hospital at 4:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon as a result of a fractured skull sustained shortly before the noon hour Thursday in a 15-foot fall from the center pier of the new road bridge being erected across Beaver creek, east of the state line.

Falls When Plank Tips.

One side of Kinsey's skull was crushed when his head struck the foundation of the pier of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company's bridge, which adjoins the new highway span.

The inspector was standing on the center pier of the traction company bridge, when the trouser leg of a carpenter who was working on the new road bridge, was caught on a timber, which was being used to hoist steel frame work into position. The carpenter was being forced to the edge of the pier when Kinsey jumped to his rescue and released him.

The heavy plank on which Kinsey was standing on the pier tipped and he fell to the concrete foundation of the street car bridge. He was brought to the hospital in an automobile owned by the Harris Engineering company of Pittsburgh, bridge contractors, and attended by Dr. W. A. Hobbs.

Funeral Service Tuesday.

Kinsey was born at Georgetown, March 18, 1859, and spent his entire life in this district. He was field foreman for the South West Penn Pipe Line company for 30 years, retiring in 1919. About three months ago he accepted the bridge inspectorship.

Kinsey's death marks the second in the family within two months. Mrs. Bertha Kinsey, his wife, died August 15.

He is survived by eight sons and three daughters, John and Robert of Okmulgee, Oklahoma; Clyne of Georgetown; Maize, East Liverpool; Louis, Charles Edward and William, at home; Mrs. James M. Green, Midland, and Misses Sara and Cora Kinsey, also at home. One brother, John S. Kinsey, of Georgetown, also survives.

The body was removed to the late home.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, with the Rev. Mr. Zellers, pastor of the Georgetown Methodist Episcopal church, in charge. Burial will be made in the Georgetown cemetery.

City's Population 21,989, According To Census Bureau

The population of East Liverpool as of July 1, this year, is estimated at 21,989, according to census calculations which have just been made public by the United States Department of Commerce.

This represents a gain of 578 over the 1920 when 21,411 residents were listed within the corporate limits. The estimate in 1923 was 20,779.

Salem's population increase during the last five years is greater than that of East Liverpool. This year's report gives the Quaker City 11,075, an increase of 770 over the figures for 1920. The population in 1923 was estimated at 10,975.

No figures are given for towns with less than 10,000 persons, thus excluding all other Columbiana county communities. Cleveland showed the largest growth with an e[illegible] gain of 140,000 during the la[illegible]rs.

GIRL LOSES $400 IN BAG

Luggage is Taken From Station at Salem.

Field Major Joseph Hughes, of the Salvation Army today affered a reward for the return of a traveling bag, containing $400 in money and other valuables, belonging to his niece, Miss Ethel Smith, formerly of Riverside, Cal., which was taken from the Pennsylvania railroad station at Salem, Saturday night.

The bag disappeared as Mrs. Hughes wife of Major Hughes, was returning to her home in East Liverpool from California, where she had been called by the death of her sister, Mrs. B. C. Smith of Riverside. She was accompanied by her niece, a daughter of her late sister, who plans to make her home in East Liverpool.

The two women left the train at Salem at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night and sat in the railroad depot, awaiting the Y. & O. car. When they boarded the car Miss Smith neglected to take her traveling bag, which not only contained the money but many of the personal effects of her mother, including her will, beads, two bunches of keys and other trinkets.

A friend of the family returned to Salem on the next car and attempted to locate the bag but without results. It had been carried off in the meantime by some person who entered the station.

M'KECHNIE'S PIRATES AND GIRL SCRIBE ARE WHITE HOUSE VISITORS

"It is a Pleasure," Says President Coolidge as he Shakes Hands of National League Pennant Winners.

REVEALS PRETTY BALLDOM ROMANCE

Glenn Wright, Shortstop, is Devoted to Miss Muriel Clarke, Daughter of Fred Clarke, Reporter Observes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The reporter at the next desk said to me, "Are you going to the White House?" I hate practical jokers, and so I regarded the reporter with scorn and replied sacrastically, "Why, of course, I'm stopping there, haven't you heard?" But the laugh was on me after all, because we did go over to the White House, when it was made clear to me that President Coolidge was about to receive the Pittsburgh baseball players and that the newspaper people would be admitted, we ran over, myself several paces in the lead.

We found the presidential mansion sitting white and huge and cool in the midst of the green lawns. A man in a uniform so festooned with gold braid that I thought he must be secretary of the navy, at least, but who proved to be only a doorman, directed us to the executive offices. These are in a far wing, and there we found assembled many of our fellow scribes and a flying squadron of camera men. Officials bustled about and had a moment of panic as one of them said "What's that girl doing here?" Apparently he thought I had stolen my press badge or that it was a sorority pin. Upon being assured that I was a bonafide journalist, he consented to allow he to stay. It was a great relief. I had entertained visions of myself being tossed out of the White House like a bum out of a bar.

SMITHS FERRY BRIDGE WORKER IS DEAD AFTER 15-FOOT PLUNGE

Charles C. Kinsey, Inspector, Succumbs in Hospital.

SKULL FRACTURED

Fatally Injured After Saving Fellow Employe From Fall.

Charles C. Kinsey, 66, Smiths Ferry, Pennsylvania highway department bridge inspector, died in the City hospital at 4:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon as a result of a fractured skull sustained shortly before the noon hour Thursday in a 15-foot fall from the center pier of the new road bridge being erected across Beaver creek, east of the state line.

Falls When Plank Tips.

One side of Kinsey's skull was crushed when his head struck the foundation of the pier of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company's bridge, which adjoins the new highway span.

The inspector was standing on the center pier of the traction company bridge, when the trouser leg of a carpenter who was working on the new steel bridge, was caught on a [illegible]ber, which was being used to hoist steel frame work into position. The carpenter was being forced to the edge of the pier when Kinsey jumped to his rescue and released him.

The heavy plank on which Kinsey was standing on the pier tipped and he fell to the concrete foundation of the street car bridge. He was brought to the hospital in an automobile owned by the Harris Engineering company of Pittsburgh, bridge contractors, and attended by Dr. W. A. Hobbs.

Funeral Service Tuesday.

Kinsey was born at Georgetown, March 18, 1859, and spent his entire life in this district. He was field foreman for the South West Penn Pipe Line company for 30 years, retiring in 1919. About three months ago he accepted the bridge inspectorship.

Kinsey's death marks the second in the family within two months. Mrs. Bertha Kinsey, his wife, died August 15.

He is survived by eight sons and three daughters, John and Robert of Okmulgee, Oklahoma; Clyne of Georgetown; Maize, East Liverpool; Louis, Charles Edward and William, at home; Mrs. James M. Green, Midland, and Misses Sara and Cora Kinsey, also at home. One brother, John S. Kinsey, of Georgetown, also survives.

The body was removed to the late home.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, with the Rev. Mr. Zellers, pastor of the Georgetown Methodist Episcopal church, in charge. Burial will be made in the Georgetown cemetery.

HIGHS LOSE AT DOVER, 12 TO 6

Coach Klinck Satisfied With Team's Showing in Opener.

The Orange and Black eleven of 1925, a light and inexperienced outfit, save those two or three veterans who came back from last year, Saturday afternoon opened their campaign at Dover and made an impressive showing in view of their qualifications, in holding the home crew to a 12 to 6 victory.

Coach Earl Klinck, former Denison university athlete, who has been confronted with numerous obstacles in his task of whipping a representative team into shape this fall from a batch of material that was mostly green and lacking in weight, is satisfied with the showing of his squad against the veteran Dover combine.

Nervous and slightly off color for the first few minutes of play, inasmuch as it was their first attempt of the season, Wellsville gridders permitted the home eleven to get the jump at the outset, and before they could stem the Dover attack, two touchdowns had been rolled up, both of which were made in the first quarter.

The clash was an even affair in the second period, with the Klinck outfit staging a desperate comeback of brave proportions, climaxed in the second half when the locals crossed the Dover goal line for their lone touchdown.

Had the Wellsville eleven been able to play a week ago, as scheduled, and some of the rough spots thereby smoothed off, the result of Saturday's game, in the opinion of Coach Klinck, might have been different.

The Dover eleven exhibited only a criss cross and reverse play which they attempted frequently during the engagement. It worked in the first quarter. After that the Doverites' favorite formations were squelched with regularity.

The Dover eleven attempted three forward passes and failed to make any of the attempts good.

On the other hand, the Orange and Black, varied their line and flank attacks with a few aerial plays and one of these thrusts finally produced a touchdown.

The Dover squad failed in the second half to get within scoring distance of the Wellsville goal. Klinck's crew, prior to their touchdown, successfully pounded the Dover line for gains, carrying the ball to within 10 yards of the goal line. Here Fullback Walley Pignatore heaved a short pass over the goal line. End Kenney grabbed it into his arms, but, off his balance at the time, juggled the pigskin and it fell out of his arms—into the hands of Captain John Campbell and the touchdown was made.

The two teams, in general, were more or less evenly matched, but the experience gained by the Dovers in the several games they have played this season, was a big factor on their success.

Coach Klinck used the following lineup: Kenney and Calhoun, ends; Hepp and Magill, tackles; Holliday and Klavaughn, guards; Ferrall, center; Miller, quarter; Campbell and Eschbacher, halves; Pignatore, fullback.

D'Anito, "little brother," of the D'Anito who starred a year or so ago, substituted for Kenney. Iddings took Hepp's place and McLaughlin replaced Eschbacher in the third quarter. The entire squad, regulars and substitutes, played good football. With the exception of Tackle Hepp, who sustained a bruised side, the squad emerged unscathed and will no doubt be in first class condition for their game here next Saturday with Chester.

C. & P. GRIDDERS WIN FIRST TILT

The lid was lifted off the amateur football season at Central park Saturday when the C. & P. team defeated the Scholastics, of East Liverpool, by a score of 6-0.

Manager Brooks surprised the fans by presenting a light, but well organized and thoroughly drilled squad, which executed its plays with accuracy and precision. The teams were evenly matched and for three-quarters worked back and forth in midfield. Wellsville's only opportunity to score was by a 15-yard penalty, due to a Scholastic tripping a Wellsville man on a long-end run, which brought the ball within the five-yard line, and after two attempts was carried over by Halfback Zoeckler.

Gallia missed the try for goal and this ended the scoring. The defensive playing of Chick Pignatore, Harry Brooks and Zoechler stood out as the feature of the Wellsville performance. Chappy Finlay was the only consistent ground gainer for the Scholastics. Neither team had any success with forward passes. The gains were made mostly on straight football.

Manager Brooks has the nucleus of a fast, light team and with a little more practice, will make it a strong contender for any team its weight.

An action has been filed in common pleas court by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., and Henry M. Fair and Mrs. Henry M. Fair, of Canton, for an amount said to be due on a contract between Mr. O'Grady and Mr. Fair.

Fair was employed by the railroad company and had occasion to file an action against the company. After the company was notified of the contract between Fair and Mr. O'Grady the company made a settlement of the claim of Fair direct with him. The company then offered Mr. O'Grady a check for money he had loaned Fair in full settlement of all claims held by Mr. O'Grady against Fair, which was refused.

A copy of the contract between Mr. O'Grady and Fair is attached to and made a part of the petition now on file.

DeMille's 'Ten Commandments' Comes to Ceramic Wednesday

Gorgeous Biblical Episode Will be Presented for Four Days at Popular Prices.

The Red Sea and San Francisco are about five thousand miles apart. The Israelites led by Moses on their exodus from Egypt are separated by about 40 centuries from Sunday afternoon jazz dancing today. Yet Cecil B. DeMille has managed to put them together convincingly in his picturization of "The Ten Commandments." This great Paramount picture is coming to the Ceramic theater on Wednesday where it will be shown for the first time at popular prices.

The modern story opens on a devout mother driving one of her two sons from home because he will not "apologize to God" for what she believes sacrilege. The son goes out into the world, not bitterly, but boyishly exultant, to smash every commandment. Then DeMille develops his theme that "if you try to break the Ten Commandments they'll break you."

A gorgeous biblical episode, done in natural colors, is enacted by such popular players as Estelle Taylor, Theodore Roberts, James Neill, Charles de Roche and Lawson Butt. The two million persons who have paid from one to two dollars to see this greatest of Paramount pictures testify that the highest point the cinema art has yet reached, has been achieved in this most ambitious directorial effort of Cecil B. DeMille.

DeMille's 'Ten Commandments' Comes to Ceramic Wednesday

Gorgeous Biblical Episode Will be Presented for Four Days at Popular Prices.

The Red Sea and San Francisco are about five thousand miles apart. The Israelites led by Moses on their exodus from Egypt are separated by about 40 centuries from Sunday afternoon jazz dancing today. Yet Cecil B. DeMille has managed to put them together convincingly in his picturization of "The Ten Commandments." This great Paramount picture is coming to the Ceramic theater on Wednesday where it will be shown for the first time at popular prices.

The modern story opens on a devout mother driving one of her two sons from home because he will not "apologize to God" for what she believes sacrilege. The son goes out into the world, not bitterly, but boyishly exultant, to smash every commandment. Then DeMille develops his theme that "if you try to break the Ten Commandments they'll break you."

A gorgeous biblical episode, done in natural colors, is enacted by such popular players as Estelle Taylor, Theodore Roberts, James Neill, Charles de Roche and Lawson Butt. The two million persons who have paid from one to two dollars to see this greatest of Paramount pictures testify that the highest point the cinema art has yet reached, has been achieved in this most ambitious directorial effort of Cecil B. DeMille.

prolongnation of the days of infancy—a fact first adequately emphasized by John Fiske.

During the long months and even years of infancy, while the child sits in its mother's lap, developing its brain while the body remains undeveloped, the child acquires those characteristics which separate it from an animal.

At the age when a baby can do little more than crawl, all of the other animals on the earth are thoroughly independent individuals, with families of their own.

It is because the human baby goes through that long period of brain developing in infancy that the scientist can truly say that the difference between a human baby and the most highly developed of the monkeys is, intellectually speaking, far greater than the difference between a monkey an a blade of grass.

Watch your baby and form your own opinion—don't let anybody else do that for you.

Remember that the sickly, delicate child is more apt than any other to develop into a human being of genius, and is worth all the care that you can give.

Don't be discouraged because your little boy or girl fails to possess all the imaginary qualities of little Eva.

Remember that a child before its birth passes through every phase of animal life on this planet. Remember that after birth a child goes through all the different phases of animal mental life. The little baby starting at birth duplicates in the development of the brain the brain development of the various animals, beginning with the lowest form of life.

The first sensation that a baby is capable of feeling in its mind is fear. The second is anger. The third is jealousy—every observant mother knows this.

The higher intelligence comes later.

Every normal boy is a little savage, every normal girl is a little wild Indian.

Don't waste your time and torment your children trying to take out of them that which is natural and that which time itself will eliminate.

Keep them healthy, keep them in the fresh air. Keep fresh air in their bedrooms at night.

Set them a good example of dignity, honesty, truth-telling and affection between father and mother.

Teach them to eat slowly if you possibly can.

Never strike a child—the man or woman unable to educate and develop a child through the power of the mind is unfit to have children in a civilized community.

Hope to the very last that your child will turn out to be a genius. And if he does not, remember that you did not either, and that after all he can only be what you and your ancestors made him.

FIRE DESTROYS TIFFIN PARK

Loss Estimated at $100,000 as Pavilions are Burned.

TIFFIN, Oct. 12 — Meadowbrook park burned to the ground early today. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The fire, which broke out at 3:30 this morning, was of undetermined origin. The pavilion and adjoining buildings were completely razed.

Fire apparatus from Tiffin battled unsuccessfully with the flames.

Meadowbrook has been a storm center over the Sunday dance law question. Its operators won their fight to hold Sunday dances two weeks ago, when the grand jury refused to return indictments.

"Divine Healing" Teacher Will Face Presbytery Charge

The Rev. J. Lyle Shaw, former pastor of the United Presbyterian church of Toronto, and who assisted in a series of revival meetings conducted by John Sproul, Pittsburgh, World war veteran here about two years ago, will appear before the Steubeville Presbytery, which meets at Grant Hills, near Zanesville, this week, to answer a charge brought by the Cleveland Presbytery because of his teachings on "divine healing."

The Rev. Mr. Shaw, who resigned his charge at Toronto about two years ago to enter the evangelistic field, is charged with following "a policy contrary to the peace, good order and reputation of the United Presbyterian church." In particular, he is charged with having caused such a decrease in membership of the Brooklyn church at Cleveland that it was compelled to appear before the home missions board for financial aid.

Rev. Mr. Shaw denies the charges brought against him in Cleveland. Should he be found guilty of the charge, he faces expulsion from the ministry.

SCHOOL PUPIL AUTO VICTIM

Columbiana Village Youth Killed on E. Palestine Road.

Funeral services for Harry D. Hum, 16-year old Columbiana high school student, who was killed Friday night when struck by an automobile on the Columbiana-East Palestine road, were conducted at the Columbiana Reformed church today. Burial was made in the Columbiana cemetery.

The lad, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Park Hum, who resides about two miles east of Columbiana, was enroute to the home of his grandfather, W. W. Humm, when he was run down by a car driven by Carl J. Grogan, of Akron, who claims he failed to see the youth in the road in time to avert the accident.

Realizing that he had struck something Grogan went to the W. W. Hum home where he obtained a lantern. He was accompanied by the elder Hum and they found the unconscious form of the boy in the road.

Grogan hurried to Columbiana for a physician but the lad died before medical aid reached him. His death is thought to have been due to internal injuries. Grogan went to Columbiana where he reported the accident to the town marshal, giving his name and address and promising to report if wanted.

MADDEN HITS U. S. AIR POLICY

Flays Army and Navy Methods and Offers His Remedy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Accusing the army and navy of squandering "millions of dollars in a meaningless experimental aviation orgy," Representative Martin B. Madden, Republican of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, today recommended to the president's air board a new military aviation policy directly linking private aircraft manufacturers to the national defense.

Madden flayed the present policies of the army and navy as wasteful and charged both air services with a flat "failure" in their efforts to develop military aviation.

Madden declared that if congress carried out the demands of "some of these bureau people," it would bankrupt the government.

Madden took hte stand primarily to defend congress against charges by high army and navy officers that a "lack of founds" had ruined the nation's military air forces. Citing statistics to disprove the charges, Madden told the board that congress had appropriated a total of $1,997,370,000 for military aviation during the war and $434,383,287 more between 1919 and 1924. In the last five years, he added, congressional appropriations for aviation averaged $86,676,657 a

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—The navy entered its defense today to charges that the dirigible Shenandoah, which crashed with a loss of 14 lives, was sent on a tour of the middle west for "political and advertising" purposes.

Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of operations, and one of his first assistants, Capt. D. S. Lincoln, both entered vehement denials before the naval court of inquiry that anything but proper naval purposes actuated them in sending the big ship on her ill-fated mission over the protest of Commander Zachary Lansdowne.

Air Mail Pilot's

Many times since Ames disappeared on the night of October 1, searching planes flew over the spot where he crashed, but observers could not see his wrecked plane because it was hidden from view by four giant trees, which fell over the machine.

An examination showed Ames' plane contained sufficient gasoline to have enabled the aviator to fly to Bellefontaine. This indicates that Ames was not forced down, as originally believed, but that he probably was flying low, looking for the Bellefonte beacon, when his plane crashed into the tall trees.

Death was instantaneous, the coroner reported. Beside the body lay two distress flares and the engine ignition was turned on there was no evidence of fire following the crash and the mail Ames carried was intact. This was rushed to Bellefonte, placed aboard another mail plane and sent to Chicago. Ames loaded the mail in New York.

John D. Earmitt, 15, a member of McMullin's searching party was the actual finder of Ames and his plane. There was a reward of $1,000 for the aviator's recovery. It was posted by the Pilots' association of America, the air mal pilots and Harry Humpries, Cleveland, a friend of Ames.

Ames was the second air mail pilot to lose his life in the treacherous Pennsylvania mountain ranges. B. H. Pearson crashed into the mountains near Curwensville in March, 1924, but his body was found several hours later.

Paul Ames, flying here from Clarion to claim his brother's body, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when his plane failed west of Dubois, Pa., however, it was maneuvered safely to the ground.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Pilots of the air mail service will not be sent into weather conditions that are "plainly extra-harzardous", Postmaster General New said today in a statement deploring the death of Pilot Charles Ames.

President Decides To Attend Fifth Game of Classic

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—President Coolidge decided this morning to attend the fifth game of the world series this afternoon between Pittsburgh and Washington.

Because he has an engagement, to meet the new minister from Czecho Slovakia, the president, however, will not be able to remain for the entire game.

McKechnie's Pirates

hind them. Presently the line began moving down the corridor, and we found ourselves next in a spacious office. I could see the Pirates ahead of me disappearing one by one. Simultaneously I could hear a sepulchral voice calling out their names and another voice, oddly nasal, saying something unintelligible. Then, without any pause at all, the sepulchral voice began announcing newspaper names. "Mr. Smith, Pittsburgh Gazette Times;" "Mr. Boyle, Chronicle Telegraph" and so on. And the next I knew, I was mumbling my own name, and the announcer was repeating it, and a firm hand was closing mine briefly. "It is a pleasure," said Calvin Coolidge.

We were compelled to go out of that room as quickly as we had entered it, but in one lingering glance over my shoulder I was able to register several impressions. A circular room, carpeted in green, with white walls and woodwork and without furniture. A man standing just inside the door, a man of medium height with sandy hair sparse on top who shook hands and said over and over in his peculiar voice, "It is a pleasure." And opposite him the tall dark individual who spoke the names, who looked more majectic and mighty than he.

Detects Baseball Romance

Later in the evening I was a guest at a theatre party which also included Glenn Wright, of the Pirates and pretty Muriel Clarke, daughter of Fred Clarke, adviser to Manager McKechnie of the Pittsburgh club. I thus had a chance to observe one of the flourishing romances of baldom for the good looking young shortstop has been markedly devoted to Miss Clarke for some time and their engagement has been frequently rumored. Wright is a graduate of the University of Missouri, class of 21. His first baseball job was with Kansas City, which sold him to the Pirates for $25,000. The day he came to Pittsburgh in 1924 he stepped right into the lineup. And has never been out of it since. Despite this record he is modest and unassuming and even a little shy. A remark illustrative of this was made to me by Miss Clarke herself. She said that Friday afternoon, when rain cancelled the game, she took Glenn out to National Park seminary, the fashionable finishing school at which she was formerly a pupil, 'and I wish you could have seen him with all those girls," she laughed. "He was fussed to death."

President Attends Game

At the games Saturday afternoon I saw the president again. With Mrs. Coolidge, he occupied a flag-draped box just behind the Washington dugout, whence he heaved the first ball. He wore a tan felt hat and two overcoats. I know because I saw him put on the second one. Mrs. Coolidge was dressed in a sealskin coat and a small black hat with a side trimming of ribbon. They stayed till the end of the game and applauded the sensational plays and stood up when the seventh inning came and otherwise comported themselves like real fans, though I understand that his appearance on Saturday was the first the president has made at the ball park since the day the season opened and the first within anyone's memory when he has ever sat through to the end. He showed good sportsmanship, for the temperature was such as to send even a hardened New Englander scurrying for home and fireside. "This is what is known as keeping cool with Coolidge," I wrote with numb hand on my scorecard.

Dinner at Press headquarters on the tenth floor of the Hotel Raleigh, where all newspaper scribes are being fed thrice daily at the expense of the Washington club, was a hectic affair Saturday night. Discussions of the great theme of the hour, namely "Did Rice make that catch in right field or did some fan in the right field bleachers hand him the ball?" Flew thick and fast and the air particularly in the vicinity of the Pittsburgh writing contingent was quite blue with invective.

Downfall of Yde

Of the game today there is little to be said except that the stands were more full and the noses less red and the Washington rooters wilder. The score tells the rest.

Two things stand out in my mind clearly more clearly than Johnson's super work, or Goslin's second home run of the series, or anything. One is the downfall of a young pitcher's hopes and the other is the death of an old pitcher's glory. Unprofessional and highly femine though it is to be softhearted about a hardboiled proposition like baseball, I could have wept for Yde when, after three runs, two of them homers, had been scored on him, they took him out. There he was. He had given his great chance and he had lasted less than three innings. He walked off the field with bowed head. No cheering rang in his ears. No friendly hands clasped him on the back. Even the mascot usually so ready with sweaters to be wrapped worshipfully about broad shoulders, ignored him, and so he vanished into the dugout, the man who didn't come through.

And by and by, toward the last of the game, Babe Adams went into the box. Sixteen years ago he won a world series for the Pirates alone and singlehanded. Today his exhibition was pathetic. He is old; 43 is very old in baseball. I think I feel sorrier for him even than I did for Yde. Yde may come back but the great Babe Adams is finished.

Clevelander Killed by Auto.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—Cleveland's traffic death toll stood at 162 today with the death of Benjamin Klucher, 24, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Poe Norris

CHAPTER 66.

J. Reginald Ainsley, guarding the portal to the larger apartment in the house in Apple Tree road into which he had moved Amoura, managed to keep out all the numberless callers, and she slept undisturbed until late afternoon. Then, refreshed, and the whole adventure seeming more like a nightmare than a reality, she insisted on getting up.

"We're going home tonight," J. Reginald announced. "I've already arranged for a compartment, and we'll slip out the back way about 8:30. It probably would be better to go by automobile, except that it would tire you out too much."

Amoura, giving her nails a much needed manicure, regarded him speculatively. "I'm not going with you, old thing."

J. Reginald, his nerves worn thin by the ordeal of keeping out insistent reporters and a varied assortment of the curious, replied sharply, "No more of this nonsense, Amoura. You're GOING HOME."

She merely shrugged and did not reply.

"Your mother simply will not rest until she sees you. I ——."

"I know, Daddy," she said, tenderly, "I know, but if I go I'll be a deserter. I haven't achieved yet what I set out to do. This hasn't made me ——."

"Oh, forget that nonsense. You've shown us you can make your own way. You haven't failed ——."

There was an insistent ringing at the door. "Oh, damn!" he exclaimed. He got up from the edge of the bed. "I'll have to go, if I don't they'll knock the door down. Why, one reporter climbed in the fire escape this morning, and almost succeeded in getting in."

Amoura, thing of McGargle, smiled. She heard her father making explanations to someone, and then heard the clear tones of La Houblerre's voice. 'Let her come in, Daddy," she called.

Madame came in, with a grand smile at J. Reginald that caused his face to lighten, his eyes showing appreciation of her charming figure. Hans Van Pugh paused in the doorway. Amoura, receiving La Houblerre's kiss, saw him, and invited him in.

With the conventional expressions of joy over her rescue out of the way, La Houblerre came to the point. "I hope that Mademoiselle is going to favor my salon with her presence again?"

"I would like to, but ——." She was thinking of staring eyes. She must, she decided, seek anonymity again.

"And we simply must have you in the revue," Hans Van Pugh smiled.

Her reply to him was more definite. "No, Mr. Van Pugh, I couldn't appear in the show again. People wouldn't be coming to see me then as one of La Houblerre's mannequins but as the heroine of a sensational kidnaping. No, I couldn't."

"But ——." Hans Van Pugh's replay dissolved in his throat; he could think of nothing effective to say.

"I will let you know in a few days," Amoura said to Madame smiling beneficently. "I hope Mademoiselle will reconsider." She was using the charming manner she reserved for her very best patrons. J. Reginald showed her out with an excess of courtesy.

"La Houbierre seems to have made a hit with you, old thing," Amoura observed when he returned to her presence.

"Charming woman, charming woman!"

"Daddy, when are you going to learn to behave yourself?"

J. Reginald did not drop his mask, and his face was expressionless. He lit a cigar, and escaped an answer as the phone rang.

"It's a Mr. Johnson," he called from the phone. "He says he knows you'll want to talk to him."

"Oh, that's the man who got me out of that place, you know. Ask him to come up."

She was surprised by Johnson's appearance. He was turned out in modish fashion with spats and cane, and a colorful 'kerchief flowing from his upper coat pocket.

"You've come for the reward, I suppose," she said sweetly.

"No, er ——." He gleamed at J. Reginald.

"This is my father," she said, and went on, "I don't know how to thank you enough for your splendid aid."

"I'm sorry I had to desert you. . . ." He apparently was ill at ease.

"Oh, I heard your conversation, and knew you had to go. Well, I'm out of it, so I don't care. I hope you don't get into trouble with your employers. . . ." She smiled, eliciting a broader one from him.

"I suppose you wonder why I'm in such a trade, don't you? I'm a college graduate."

"Really!"

"Yes." There was silence. J. Reginald went to the writing table and penned a check.

"I don't want any reward, sir—not a money reward," the youth protested.

J. Reginald looked up curiously.

Johnson spat out what was on his mind with effort, his eyes on Amoura: "I just want to be your friend. . . . Er, will you have lunch with me tomorrow?"

Amoura saw the amused glint in her father's eyes, but did not smile.

"Why, I'm sorry, Mr. Johnson, but I'm going home tonight."

Mrs. Surles was born on the farm on what is now known as the La Croft addition and resided here for 14 years prior to moving to Sebring several years ago. She was a lifelong member of the United Presbyterian church.

She is survived by three children, Mrs. Fred E. Sebring and H. C. Surles, both of Sebring, and Miss Georgia Surles, of California; one brother, W. C. Stewart, and one sister, Mrs. H. E. Gould, both of East Liverpool.

The body will be brought here Wednesday morning and will be taken to the First United Presbyterian church where it may be viewed between 1 and 2 o'clock. Services will be held at the latter hour with the Rev. McArmitage, pastor of the Sebring United Presbyterian church, and the Rev. J. L. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, in charge.

Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

prolongnation of the days of infancy—a fact first adequately emphasized by John Fiske.

During the long months and even years of infancy, while the child sits in its mother's lap, developing its brain while the body remains undeveloped, the child acquires those characteristics which separate it from an animal.

At the age when a baby can do little more than crawl, all of the other animals on the earth are thoroughly independent individuals, with families of their own.

It is because the human baby goes through that long period of brain developing in infancy that the scientist can truly say that the difference between a human baby and the most highly developed of the monkeys is, intellectually speaking, far greater than the difference between a monkey an a blade of grass.

Watch your baby and form your own opinion—don't let anybody else do that for you.

Remember that the sickly, delicate child is more apt than any other to develop into a human being of genius, and is worth all the care that you can give.

Don't be discouraged because your little boy or girl fails to possess all the imaginary qualities of little Eva.

Remember that a child before its birth passes through every phase of animal life on this planet. Remember that after birth a child goes through all the different phases of animal mental life. The little baby starting at birth duplicates in the development of the brain the brain development of the various animals, beginning with the lowest form of life.

The first sensation that a baby is capable of feeling in its mind is fear. The second is anger. The third is jealousy—every observant mother knows this.

The higher intelligence comes later.

Every normal boy is a little savage, every normal girl is a little wild Indian.

Don't waste your time and torment your children trying to take out of them that which is natural and that which time itself will eliminate.

Keep them healthy, keep them in the fresh air. Keep fresh air in their bedrooms at night.

Set them a good example of dignity, honesty, truth-telling and affection between father and mother.

Teach them to eat slowly if you possibly can.

Never strike a child—the man or woman unable to educate and develop a child through the power of the mind is unfit to have children in a civilized community.

Hope to the very last that your child will turn out to be a genius. And if he does not, remember that you did not either, and that after all he can only be what you and your ancestors made him.

FIRE DESTROYS TIFFIN PARK

Loss Estimated at $100,000 as Pavilions are Burned.

TIFFIN, Oct. 12 — Meadowbrook park burned to the ground early today. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The fire, which broke out at 3:30 this morning, was of undetermined origin. The pavilion and adjoining buildings were completely razed.

Fire apparatus from Tiffin battled unsuccessfully with the flames.

Meadowbrook has been a storm center over the Sunday dance law question. Its operators won their fight to hold Sunday dances two weeks ago, when the grand jury refused to return indictments.

"Divine Healing" Teacher Will Face Presbytery Charge

The Rev. J. Lyle Shaw, former pastor of the United Presbyterian church of Toronto, and who assisted in a series of revival meetings conducted by John Sproul, Pittsburgh, World war veteran here about two years ago, will appear before the Steubeville Presbytery, which meets at Grant Hills, near Zanesville, this week, to answer a charge brought by the Cleveland Presbytery because of his teachings on "divine healing."

The Rev. Mr. Shaw, who resigned his charge at Toronto about two years ago to enter the evangelistic field, is charged with following "a policy contrary to the peace, good order and reputation of the United Presbyterian church." In particular, he is charged with having caused such a decrease in membership of the Brooklyn church at Cleveland that it was compelled to appear before the home missions board for financial aid.

Rev. Mr. Shaw denies the charges brought against him in Cleveland. Should he be found guilty of the charge, he faces expulsion from the ministry.

SCHOOL PUPIL AUTO VICTIM

Columbiana Village Youth Killed on E. Palestine Road.

Funeral services for Harry D. Hum, 16-year old Columbiana high school student, who was killed Friday night when struck by an automobile on the Columbiana-East Palestine road, were conducted at the Columbiana Reformed church today. Burial was made in the Columbiana cemetery.

The lad, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Park Hum, who resides about two miles east of Columbiana, was enroute to the home of his grandfather, W. W. Humm, when he was run down by a car driven by Carl J. Grogan, of Akron, who claims he failed to see the youth in the road in time to avert the accident.

Realizing that he had struck something Grogan went to the W. W. Hum home where he obtained a lantern. He was accompanied by the elder Hum and they found the unconscious form of the boy in the road.

Grogan hurried to Columbiana for a physician but the lad died before medical aid reached him. His death is thought to have been due to internal injuries. Grogan went to Columbiana where he reported the accident to the town marshal, giving his name and address and promising to report if wanted.

MADDEN HITS U. S. AIR POLICY

Flays Army and Navy Methods and Offers His Remedy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Accusing the army and navy of squandering "millions of dollars in a meaningless experimental aviation orgy," Representative Martin B. Madden, Republican of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, today recommended to the president's air board a new military aviation policy directly linking private aircraft manufacturers to the national defense.

Madden flayed the present policies of the army and navy as wasteful and charged both air services with a flat "failure" in their efforts to develop military aviation.

Madden declared that if congress carried out the demands of "some of these bureau people," it would bankrupt the government.

Madden took hte stand primarily to defend congress against charges by high army and navy officers that a "lack of founds" had ruined the nation's military air forces. Citing statistics to disprove the charges, Madden told the board that congress had appropriated a total of $1,997,370,000 for military aviation during the war and $434,383,287 more between 1919 and 1924. In the last five years, he added, congressional appropriations for aviation averaged $86,676,657 a

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—The navy entered its defense today to charges that the dirigible Shenandoah, which crashed with a loss of 14 lives, was sent on a tour of the middle west for "political and advertising" purposes.

Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of operations, and one of his first assistants, Capt. D. S. Lincoln, both entered vehement denials before the naval court of inquiry that anything but proper naval purposes actuated them in sending the big ship on her ill-fated mission over the protest of Commander Zachary Lansdowne.

Air Mail Pilot's

Many times since Ames disappeared on the night of October 1, searching planes flew over the spot where he crashed, but observers could not see his wrecked plane because it was hidden from view by four giant trees, which fell over the machine.

An examination showed Ames' plane contained sufficient gasoline to have enabled the aviator to fly to Bellefontaine. This indicates that Ames was not forced down, as originally believed, but that he probably was flying low, looking for the Bellefonte beacon, when his plane crashed into the tall trees.

Death was instantaneous, the coroner reported. Beside the body lay two distress flares and the engine ignition was turned on there was no evidence of fire following the crash and the mail Ames carried was intact. This was rushed to Bellefonte, placed aboard another mail plane and sent to Chicago. Ames loaded the mail in New York.

John D. Earmitt, 15, a member of McMullin's searching party was the actual finder of Ames and his plane. There was a reward of $1,000 for the aviator's recovery. It was posted by the Pilots' association of America, the air mail pilots and Harry Humpries, Cleveland, a friend of Ames.

Ames was the second air mail pilot to lose his life in the treacherous Pennsylvania mountain ranges. B. H. Pearson crashed into the mountains near Curwensville in March, 1924, but his body was found several hours later.

Paul Ames, flying here from Clarion to claim his brother's body, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when his plane failed west of Dubois, Pa., however, it was maneuvered safely to the ground.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Pilots of the air mail service will not be sent into weather conditions that are "plainly extra-harzardous", Postmaster General New said today in a statement deploring the death of Pilot Charles Ames.

President Decides To Attend Fifth Game of Classic

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—President Coolidge decided this morning to attend the fifth game of the world series this afternoon between Pittsburgh and Washington.

Because he has an engagement, to meet the new minister from Czecho Slovakia, the president, however, will not be able to remain for the entire game.

McKechnie's Pirates

hind them. Presently the line began moving down the corridor, and we found ourselves next in a spacious office. I could see the Pirates ahead of me disappearing one by one. Simultaneously I could hear a sepulchral voice calling out their names and another voice, oddly nasal, saying something unintelligible. Then, without any pause at all, the sepulchral voice began announcing newspaper names. "Mr. Smith, Pittsburgh Gazette Times;" "Mr. Boyle, Chronicle Telegraph" and so on. And the next I knew, I was mumbling my own name, and the announcer was repeating it, and a firm hand was closing mine briefly. "It is a pleasure," said Calvin Coolidge.

We were compelled to go out of that room as quickly as we had entered it, but in one lingering glance over my shoulder I was able to register several impressions. A circular room, carpeted in green, with white walls and woodwork and without furniture. A man standing just inside the door, a man of medium height with sandy hair sparse on top who shook hands and said over and over in his peculiar voice, "It is a pleasure." And opposite him the tall dark individual who spoke the names, who looked more majestic and mighty than he.

Detects Baseball Romance

Later in the evening I was a guest at a theatre party which also included Glenn Wright, of the Pirates and pretty Muriel Clarke, daughter of Fred Clarke, adviser to Manager McKechnie of the Pittsburgh club. I thus had a chance to observe one of the flourishing romances of baildom for the good looking young shortstop has been markedly devoted to Miss Clarke for some time and their engagement has been frequently rumored. Wright is a graduate of the University of Missouri, class of 21. His first baseball job was with Kansas City, which sold him to the Pirates for $25,000. The day he came to Pittsburgh in 1924 he stepped right into the lineup. And has never been out of it since. Despite this record he is modest and unassuming and even a little shy. A remark illustrative of this was made to me by Miss Clarke herself. She said that Friday afternoon, when rain cancelled the game, she took Glenn out to National Park seminary, the fashionable finishing school at which she was formerly a pupil, 'and I wish you could have seen him with all those girls," she laughed. "He was fussed to death."

President Attends Game

At the games Saturday afternoon I saw the president again. With Mrs. Coolidge, he occupied a flag-draped box just behind the Washington dugout, whence he heaved the first ball. He wore a tan felt hat and two overcoats. I know because I saw him put on the second one. Mrs. Coolidge was dressed in a sealskin coat and a small black hat with a side trimming of ribbon. They stayed till the end of the game and applauded the sensational plays and stood up when the seventh inning came and otherwise comported themselves like real fans, though I understand that his appearance on Saturday was the first the president has made at the ball park since the day the season opened and the first within anyone's memory when he has ever sat through to the end. He showed good sportsmanship, for the temperature was such as to send even a hardened New Englander scurrying for home and fireside. "This is what is known as keeping cool with Coolidge," I wrote with numb hand on my scorecard.

Dinner at Press headquarters on the tenth floor of the Hotel Raleigh, where all newspaper scribes are being fed thrice daily at the expense of the Washington club, was a hectic affair Saturday night. Discussions of the great theme of the hour, namely "Did Rice make that catch in right field or did some fan in the right field bleachers hand him the ball?" Flew thick and fast and the air particularly in the vicinity of the Pittsburgh writing contingent was quite blue with invective.

Downfall of Yde

Of the game today there is little to be said except that the stands were more full and the noses less red and the Washington rooters wilder. The score tells the rest.

Two things stand out in my mind clearly more clearly than Johnson's super work, or Goslin's second home run of the series, or anything. One is the downfall of a young pitcher's hopes and the other is the death of an old pitcher's glory. Unprofessional and highly femine though it is to be softhearted about a hardboiled proposition like baseball, I could have wept for Yde when, after three runs, two of them homers, had been scored on him, they took him out. There he was. He had given his great chance and he had lasted less than three innings. He walked off the field with bowed head. No cheering rang in his ears. No friendly hands clasped him on the back. Even the mascot usually so ready with sweaters to be wrapped worshipfully about broad shoulders, ignored him, and so he vanished into the dugout, the man who didn't come through.

And by and by, toward the last of the game, Babe Adams went into the box. Sixteen years ago he won a world series for the Pirates alone and singlehanded. Today his exhibition was pathetic. He is old; 43 is very old in baseball. I think I feel sorrier for him even than I did for Yde. Yde may come back but the great Babe Adams is finished.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Poe Norris

CHAPTER 66.

J. Reginald Ainsley, guarding the portal to the larger apartment in the house in Apple Tree road into which he had moved Amoura, managed to keep out all the numberless callers, and she slept undisturbed until late afternoon. Then, refreshed, and the whole adventure seeming more like a nightmare than a reality, she insisted on getting up.

"We're going home tonight," J. Reginald announced. "I've already arranged for a compartment, and we'll slip out the back way about 8:30. It probably would be better to go by automobile, except that it would tire you out too much."

Amoura, giving her nails a much needed manicure, regarded him speculatively. "I'm not going with you, old thing."

J. Reginald, his nerves worn thin by the ordeal of keeping out insistent reporters and a varied assortment of the curious, replied sharply, "No more of this nonsense, Amoura. You're GOING HOME."

She merely shrugged and did not reply.

"Your mother simply will not rest until she sees you. I ——."

"I know, Daddy," she said, tenderly, "I know, but if I go I'll be a deserter. I haven't achieved yet what I set out to do. This hasn't made me ——."

"Oh, forget that nonsense. You've shown us you can make your own way. You haven't failed ——."

There was an insistent ringing at the door. "Oh, damn!" he exclaimed. He got up from the edge of the bed. "I'll have to go, if I don't they'll knock the door down. Why, one reporter climbed in the fire escape this morning, and almost succeeded in getting in."

Amoura, thing of McGargle, smiled. She heard her father making explanations to someone, and then heard the clear tones of La Houbierre's voice. 'Let her come in, Daddy," she called.

Madame came in, with a grand smile at J. Reginald that caused his face to lighten, his eyes showing appreciation of her charming figure. Hans Van Pugh paused in the doorway. Amoura, receiving La Houbierre's kiss, saw him, and invited him in.

With the conventional expressions of joy over her rescue out of the way, La Houblerre came to the point. "I hope that Mademoiselle is going to favor my salon with her presence again?"

"I would like to, but ——." She was thinking of staring eyes. She must, she decided, seek anonymity again.

"And we simply must have you in the revue," Hans Van Pugh smiled.

Her reply to him was more definite. "No, Mr. Van Pugh, I couldn't appear in the show again. People wouldn't be coming to see me then as one of La Houbierre's mannequins but as the heroine of a sensational kidnaping. No, I couldn't."

"But ——," Hans Van Pugh's replay dissolved in his throat; he could think of nothing effective to say.

"I will let you know in a few days," Amoura said to Madame smiling beneficently. "I hope Mademoiselle will reconsider." She was using the charming manner she reserved for her very best patrons. J. Reginald showed her out with an excess of courtesy.

"La Houbierre seems to have made a hit with you, old thing," Amoura observed when he returned to her presence.

"Charming woman, charming woman!"

"Daddy, when are you going to learn to behave yourself?"

J. Reginald did not drop his mask, and his face was expressionless. He lit a cigar, and escaped an answer as the phone rang.

"It's a Mr. Johnson," he called from the phone. "He says he knows you'll want to talk to him."

"Oh, that's the man who got me out of that place, you know. Ask him to come up."

She was surprised by Johnson's appearance. He was turned out in modish fashion with spats and cane, and a colorful 'kerchief flowing from his upper coat pocket.

"You've come for the reward, I suppose," she said sweetly.

"No, er ——." He gleamed at J. Reginald.

"This is my father," she said, and went on, "I don't know how to thank you enough for your splendid aid."

"I'm sorry I had to desert you. . . ." He apparently was ill at ease.

"Oh, I heard your conversation, and knew you had to go. Well, I'm out of it, so I don't care. I hope you don't get into trouble with your employers. . . ." She smiled, eliciting a broader one from him.

"I suppose you wonder why I'm in such a trade, don't you? I'm a college graduate."

"Really!"

"Yes." There was silence. J. Reginald went to the writing table and penned a check.

"I don't want any reward, sir—not a money reward," the youth protested.

J. Reginald looked up curiously.

Johnson spat out what was on his mind with effort, his eyes on Amoura: "I just want to be your friend. . . . Er, will you have lunch with me tomorrow?"

Amoura saw the amused glint in her father's eyes, but did not smile.

Peaceful Locarno

Most newspaper readers probably never heard of Locarno until it was announced that the great powers had gone there for their conference on a European security pact. "Where is this Locarno?" a good many persons ask, and a searching of geographies and atlases finds the answer.

Locarno lies in the Italian-speaking part of Switzerland, and is called the Queen of the Maggiore, after a beautiful lake which lies between the Alps and the Lombardy plains. The community has been Swiss since 1512, although it is Italian in appearance and mode of life. It has 4,000 inhabitants, picturesque houses, beautiful public gardens, a famous old church and much inspiring scenery. It is said to have a luxuriant growth of flowers, with almost tropical vegetation. The climate is very fine, the air soft, without humidity, and with scarcely any frost in winter.

Truly it sounds like an ideal place for the conference, with everything in favor of peace and amity. The world hopes that the British, French and German delegates there will succumb to the gentle atmosphere of the quiet old town and let it influence their negotiations.

National Discourtesy

A writer in the Baltimore Sun remarks that Canada puts this country to shame in the matter of courtesy to the traveling public. He finds hotel employes especially considerate and obliging in Canada, and only too often the opposite in the states.

Kipling made the same criticism years ago, with special regard to railroad employes. A courteous question put to an American railroad clerk or conductor, he said, was usually disregarded or answered by a contemptuous grunt, especially if the questioner were obviously a foreigner.

There has been some advance in both these domains of public service, but any observant person knows that there is still room for improvement. And better manners are needed more in a certain other branch of public accommodation than in those mentioned. There is probably more discourtesy to the square foot in American theaters in large cities than anywhere else in the world. Self-interest, if not natural breeding, would seem to suggest better manners among ticket-sellers and other theatrical folk in their public contacts. Can somebody explain the mystery?

A House At The Pole

Nansen's plans for his next polar expedition, to start in the spring of 1927, have two unusual elements of interest. He will fly to the pole, or near it, in a dirigible bigger than the Los Angeles, and he will build a house when he arrives there, to shelter the exploring party for a year.

It is agreed by recent polar explorers that the dirigible balloon is the best type for polar regions. Apparently such a ship will run less risk in the Arctic ocean than over land in this latitude. It will carry a big load, and therefore should enable the explorers to utilize better equipment than any previous party has had. If the airship makes the initial trip safely, it may go again, serving as a supply ship.

The possibility of a house built at the north pole is something to catch the imagination of the world. In a warm and commodious dwelling, with ample supplies and equipment, whether on solid land or on the fixed ice, there should be little hardship in passing the long Arctic night under the North Star, with the aurora borealis illuminating the heavens.

Long Hair

Yes, times change. In Des Moines, Ia., when a prize is offered for the longest head of hair, it is won by an 18-year-old boy named Joseph Kametz.

The girls of Iowa may bob as they like, but no bobbing for Joseph! He has never had his hair cut, and doesn't want it cut.

An average male is disposed to shudder at this, moved by a vague fear, and wondering whether the incident is prophetic. Is man destined to become the long-haired sex, and woman the short-haired? We know it is so with animals—lions and buffaloes, for example, not to mention birds, which uniformly give males the more generous plumage.

Clothes obviously have the same tendency. Woman skimps her clothing and man adds to his. Are the sexes going to keep on until each looks, and acts, as the other used to?

Petroleum

The nation's petroleum producers, meeting at Tusa, Okla., have shown little worry about the oil supply.

"There is more oil in stock ready for emergency use today than ever before," says the president of the American Petroleum Institute. "And there are more known reserves of crude oil in the ground, capable of being produced, than ever before."

That fact is as cheering to 18,000,000 automobile owners as it is to the oil men. But producers and consumers alike can easily agree on these points:

Knowledge that there is still much oil in the ground is no justification for rushing to get it all out and use it all up.

Sooner or later the oil pools will play out, then the shale oil.

There ought to be some kind of systematized control of production, to suit supply to necessary demand, and there ought to be less waste.

The wolf knows better than to knock at the garage door.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up betimes and learned my new piano playing neighbor was Noel Coward, London playright. So in neighborly fashion I sang in the bath, very sweet.

To breakfast with a man who told me on sudden whim he arose after midnight and drank a quart of whisky between then and dawn and a sorry sight, shaking like one with ague and still a bit hocussed, I thought.

Through the town and saw in passing crowds of Channing Pollock, Charles Dillingham and Beatrice Hereford. Home and did my task and a great weariness came and I slept.

In the evening to dine at a place where player folk go and saw no one I knew so to walk with my wife along the dazzling Rialto. Thence to bed.

Wilson Mizner drifted back to his own stamping ground—Broadway—recently for the first time in four years. Mizner was the best known man-about-town before he departed for Florida to become a realtor. His mots still fly about in the Forties. He used to appear regularly at Jack's at 3 a. m. for his portion of cold lobster. Mizner was the town's wit. Crowds awaited his arrival to hear the latest quip. He did not remain here long, it is said, because of his hatred of policemen. They have always been a target for his biting sarcasm.

"Fred Stone's Star Ranch," a real 21,000 aacre western ranch a few hours from Broadway is now smoothly running. It is on the road to New Haven and about eight miles from New LondonCt. There are corralls and a ranch house for the foreman. Stone's house is to be a log cabin affair with every modern convenience. He has cow ponies, fine breeding horses, Brahma steers, goats and a pack of dogs. Stone has three daughters. A vocal teacher and a dancing instructor live on the ranch. He is said to be the richest actor on the American stage. Certainly he is the most beloved by the profession.

A press agent makes a living placing autographed pictures of stage stars in shop windows indorsing wares of shops they grace.

Press agency may and undoubtedly does add to the prestige of those who have arrived but it cannot "make" one who has no ability. There is a rich producer who spent a fortune trying to lift a comely young woman to stardom on the stage. He starred her in several ventures but she is still rather obscure and unknown because she lacks that prime essential — talent.

Nobody receives so much attention in a New York cafe as babies. Chiefly because they are seldom taken there but when they are they receive salaams and special attention from bus boy to proprietor. Oother diners wave and coo and some of the hardboiled bachelors even attempt baby talk. Children, save on the East Side, are not seen in New York. Nurses having them in charge, cart them off to parks during the day and put them to bed at dusk.

A bit of swiftly moving drama late at night in West 47th street. An auto drew up in front of one of those hotels with gloomily lit lobbies. Two men tried to assist a woman to the pavement. She was half swooning.

Drowsy heads pop out of the windows. A small crowd quickly clots at the curb. Kimonoed women rush from hallways. "What have you done to her?" one screams.

The swooning woman is pushed back in the car and it plunges roaring down the street—the tail light gleaming red in the night. In five minutes the block is deserted and quiet again.

This weather scarred sign flaps in the wind in front of a hallway in West 51st street: "Wanted—roomer who does not smoke, drink or stay out late nights."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Winter Plattsburg.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—At the recent convention of the Reserve Officers' association held in Kansas City, Major General W. H. Hart, the quartermaster general, told of the work of the Winter Plattsburg.

According to a statement of the war department the objects of the Winter Plattsburg are "to develop among the officers of the quartermaster reserves esprit de corps through pleasant and helpful association; promote their professional knowledge by the practical application of approved methods and principles to the solution of problems involving the war-time activities of the quartermasters' corps; qualify them to properly perform the duties of their war-time assignment."

Another important feature of the Winter Plattsburg is the extension of an invitation to all patriotic citizens of the community to take an active part in these meetings. By this it is hoped to encourage community interest in the cause of adequate national defense under the National Defense act. Also by inviting civilians to cooperate with members of the reserve corps it is felt that a mutual benefit will be derived due to a better understanding of the problems and aims of each.

These Winter Plattsburg meetings take their name from the original Plattsburg movement which preceded and followed the World war. In 1922 a group of members of the Quartermaster Reserve Corps upon finishing 15 days' active duty at Camp Dix decided that they would like to continue their work and study while on inactive duty. Accordingly they decided upon a weekly meeting and Colonel Walter A. Dempsey became the instructor of this first group.

Owing to the severe winter and the isolated location of Governor's Island, where the meetings were held, the original group of 22 was not materially increased that year. The following year, however, the meetings were held in the Army building, New York city, and the membership increased to 18.

General Hart attended the closing meeting of the second season and became so interested in the idea that he decided to extend it to other cities. During the following summer and instruction period, which extends from Nov. 1 to April 30, groups were organized in 26 cities. During the 1925 26 season it is planned to extend the idea to 11 other cities. Up to the present time groups are only organized where there are stationed in the vicinity members of the regular quartermaster corps, since the instructors are generally members of the regular army.

The Key Organization.

The organization of a group provides for the selection of a president, secretary and custodian of records, whose duties are such as usually devolve upon such officers of any club or organization. Aside from these officers, there is what is known as the key organization, and the members of this are "key-men." This organization is composed of various offices, positions and commands which are limited in number only by the membership of a given group and the war-time assignment of the members. This organization includes a suppositious assistant secretary of war, a quartermaster general and a chief of each of the six services in which the office of the quartermaster general is divided. The office of assistant secretary of war usually devolves upon a civilian, thus following right along with the official organization.

While, of course, the officers appointed in these groups as quartermaster general and chiefs of services probably will never actually fill such positions in the regular organization, insofar as it is possible members are given duties analogous to their war-time assignments.

No attempt is made to standardize these Winter Plattsburg meetings with regard to what night of the week they shall meet. This would be impossible since the groups are for the most part composed of business and professional men whose work naturally comes first. The meetings must of necessity be accommodated to

Nobody can do justice to themselves when they are suffering for want of rich, red blood. It is this impoverished condition of the blood that causes so many failures in life. There's no place at the top for the weakling—the men and women with poor, weak blood.

Build up your blood! Get in the red-blooded class—and get the rewards you deserve. S. S. S. will do it for you! S. S. S. helps Nature build millions of red-blood-cells!

S. S. S. sends rich, red blood tingling to every fibre of your body and every pore of your skin. You are fairly radiant with energy, vim and vitality.

All Creeds Endorse "The Ten Commandments"

BAPTIST

"The Ten Commandments", as presented in the picture is the leader of all the photos on the screen today; and I regard it indispensable to the propagation of Christian ethics and moral courage. All of the young men should see its production at this particular time when four of our youths have recently been sentenced to the death chair."

—The Rev. C. D. Patterson,
Cosmopolitan Baptist Church.

CONGREGATIONAL

"Words cannot describe my sense of appreciation of your magnificent picture 'The Ten Commandments.' It is the greatest sermon that I ever saw; the whole production, from beginning to ending, was most pleasing, instructing, ennobling. No person can see and hear it without being better for it; and no lesson is more needed in this whole country today.

"I preached on this picture and its impressions and made up a church party one evening to see it at the theatre."

—The Rev. Charles W. Dave, D. D.
St. Mark's Congregational Church.

"The first section of the picture, depicting the Bibical story, is extremely fine, about the best thing I have seen in motion pictures. It is powerful and convincing. The realism is overdone, but I was impressed by the amazing movement, color and dramatic intensity of the unfolding tale."

—The Rev. Charles E. Dunn,
Mystic Side Congreational Church, Malden, Mass.

EPISCOPAL

"Truly marvelous and should be productive of great good!"

The Reverend Nathan A. Seagle,
of St. Stephen's Church

LUTHERAN

"Wonderful—that same evening I took a half hour describing the picture to my church council, advising its members to see it. This picture must rivet its wholesome teachings to the hearts of everyone seeing it. It is no use to start commenting on its different parts,—it speaks for itself. What struck me as a surprise was the final pictures, where Christ was introduced healing the sick—what a happy thought. In the beginning, the Almighty, dealing with nations, with force against power abused, and finally those lovely scenes, where his Son is healing the wounds of men."

—The Rev. Joseph A. Davidson.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL

"The picture 'The Ten Commandments' is absolutely beyond criticism. It carries one of the most splendid messages I have ever seen put in a picture. It will do limitless good. It has combined in a marvelous way the declarations of the Old Testament with modern life so that people must be convinced that they reap what they sow. I have never seen anything so impressive as the 'The Ten Commandments' appear on the screen."

—The Rev. Christian F. Reisner,
Chelsea M. E. Church.

"I have seen with very great pleasure and profit your impressive film version of 'The Ten Commandments' and the impression made on my mind will last for a long time. The atmosphere of the place was clean, helpful, and inspiring, and the crowded audience proved that a large number of people in New York City are interested in religious subjects.

"The moral in part one and two still holds true, 'that if you break any of the commandments they will break you.' I will have much pleasure in recommending it to my friends who have not seen the picture."

—The Rev. Edwin Corneille,
Woodlawn Heights Church.

"'The Ten Commandments' teaches most clearly and convincingly the truths the Church of God is ever seeking to teach,—the Sovereignty of God that fact of sin, the certainty that whatsovere a man soweth he shall also reap.

..Magnificently, with impressive dignity and rare fidelity to great truths you have taught your lesson. I trust you may reach millions of thoughtful people with your timely appeal."

The Rev. F. B. Upham,
Old John St. M. E. Church

PRESBYTERIAN

"I wish that every member of my Church and Sunday school could see 'The Ten Commandments.' You are preaching a most wonderful sermon, in their presentation."

—The Rev. Edward I. Goodwin,
Cumberland Street Church, Brookyn.

"I am sure that every one who sees 'The Ten Commandments' must think again, or perhaps for the first time, of the fundamental place in our life which the Ten Commandments ought to have."

—The Rev. Russell S. Gregory,
First Presbyterian Church.

"It is by far the most impressive I ever saw. It should accomplish much good."

—The Rev. L. P. Armstrong,
Beverly Presbyterian Church, New York

REFORMED

"Speaking at the Hanson Place M. E. Church, Brooklyn, I did not hesitate to urge that congregation of nearly 500 people to see it, for I consider it the strongest sermon, preached today and I like your text 'Break the Commandments and they will break you.'

"I want to thank you for producing such a wonderful picture, awe inspiring, thrilling, instructive, and the person who can view it without becoming better is not strictly human.....I heartily endorse it, and shall urge my people to see it."

—The Rev. L. C. Leggett, D. D.
Hawthorne, N. Y.

UNIVERSALIST

"A picture that the Modernists, the Fundamentalists, and everybody else, old and young can see with such mental and spiritual profit that its worth cannot be estimated.

"I have seen it twice, shall see it again, and am planning a party of 50 boys to attend it, and thereby I beleive I will be doing something for them which will be of permanent value to character and conscience. It is bound to open the eyes of many a one who thinks of life from a distorted and clouded moral and spiritual viewpoint."

—The Rev. C. J. Harris,
Washington Heights Universalist Church.

One of the most impressive and influencing films before the public. We advise our parishoners to attend as a service of religion. The moral necessity and life dynamic of the commandments will be woven into the fibre of your consciousness by the wonderful picture."

—The Rev. Thomas Edward Potterton,
Church of Our Father, Brooklyn.

CATHOLIC

His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, had a private showing of "The Ten Commandments" and enjoyed it to the extent that he recommended that this picture be placed on the

Official Catholic White List

During the 62 weeks that the picture was playing daily in New York many of his parishioners availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing this extraordinary motion picture.

The film has the specific endorsement of the Catholic Theatre Movement, "organized for the purpose of determining and maintaining the Catholic standpoint with regard to the Theatre: its activities to be directed towards developing the conscience and sentiment of Catholics in their patronage of the theatre."

"The Ten Commandments" is endorsed in the bulletin issued by The Catholic Theatre Movement from which the following is quoted:

"Try to spread a knowledge of the 'White List' and to interest your friends in the Catholic Theatre Movement. This organization has done a great deal of work—very quietly but effectively...Activities of this kind are generally mere flashes in the pan. This has lived and will endure. The opportunity is yours to make it strong and far-reaching."

"THE TEN COMMANDMENTS" comes to the Ceramic Theatre 4 days, starting Wednesday, October 14, with daily matinee.

Peaceful Locarno

Most newspaper readers probably never heard of Locarno until it was announced that the great powers had gone there for their conference on a European security pact. "Where is this Locarno?" a good many persons ask, and a searching of geographies and atlases finds the answer.

Locarno lies in the Italian-speaking part of Switzerland, and is called the Queen of the Maggiore, after a beautiful lake which lies between the Alps and the Lombardy plains. The community has been Swiss since 1512, although it is Italian in appearance and mode of life. It has 4,000 inhabitants, picturesque houses, beautiful public gardens, a famous old church and much inspiring scenery. It is said to have a luxuriant growth of flowers, with almost tropical vegetation. The climate is very fine, the air soft, without humidity, and with scarcely any frost in winter.

Truly it sounds like an ideal place for the conference, with everything in favor of peace and amity. The world hopes that the British, French and German delegates there will succumb to the gentle atmosphere of the quiet old town and let it influence their negotiations.

National Discourtesy

A writer in the Baltimore Sun remarks that Canada puts this country to shame in the matter of courtesy to the traveling public. He finds hotel employes especially considerate and obliging in Canada, and only too often the opposite in the states.

Kipling made the same criticism years ago, with special regard to railroad employes. A courteous question put to an American railroad clerk or conductor, he said, was usually disregarded or answered by a contemptuous grunt, especially if the questioner were obviously a foreigner.

There has been some advance in both these domains of public service, but any observant person knows that there is still room for improvement. And better manners are needed more in a certain other branch of public accommodation than in those mentioned. There is probably more discourtesy to the square foot in American theaters in large cities than anywhere else in the world. Self-interest, if not natural breeding, would seem to suggest better manners among ticket-sellers and other theatrical folk in their public contacts. Can somebody explain the mystery?

A House At The Pole

Nansen's plans for his next polar expedition, to start in the spring of 1927, have two unusual elements of interest. He will fly to the pole, or near it, in a dirigible bigger than the Los Angeles, and he will build a house when he arrives there, to shelter the exploring party for a year.

It is agreed by recent polar explorers that the dirigible balloon is the best type for polar regions. Apparently such a ship will run less risk in the Arctic ocean than over land in this latitude. It will carry a big load, and therefore should enable the explorers to utilize better equipment than any previous party has had. If the airship makes the initial trip safely, it may go again, serving as a supply ship.

The possibility of a house built at the north pole is something to catch the imagination of the world. In a warm and commodious dwelling, with ample supplies and equipment, whether on solid land or on the fixed ice, there should be little hardship in passing the long Arctic night under the North Star, with the aurora borealis illuminating the heavens.

Long Hair

Yes, times change. In Des Moines, Ia., when a prize is offered for the longest head of hair, it is won by an 18-year-old boy named Joseph Kametz.

The girls of Iowa may bob as they like, but no bobbing for Joseph! He has never had his hair cut, and doesn't want it cut.

An average male is disposed to shudder at this, moved by a vague fear, and wondering whether the incident is prophetic. Is man destined to become the long-haired sex, and woman the short-haired? We know it is so with animals—lions and buffaloes, for example, not to mention birds, which uniformly give males the more generous plumage.

Clothes obviously have the same tendency. Woman skimps her clothing and man adds to his. Are the sexes going to keep on until each looks, and acts, as the other used to?

Petroleum

The nation's petroleum producers, meeting at Tusa, Okla., have shown little worry about the oil supply.

"There is more oil in stock ready for emergency use today than ever before," says the president of the American Petroleum Institute. "And there are more known reserves of crude oil in the ground, capable of being produced, than ever before."

That fact is as cheering to 18,000,000 automobile owners as it is to the oil men. But producers and consumers alike can easily agree on these points:

Knowledge that there is still much oil in the ground is no justification for rushing to get it all out and use it all up.

Sooner or later the oil pools will play out, then the shale oil.

There ought to be some kind of systematized control of production, to suit supply to necessary demand, and there ought to be less waste.

The wolf knows better than to knock at the garage door.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up betimes and learned my new piano playing neighbor was Noel Coward, London playright. So in neighborly fashion I sang in the bath, very sweet.

To breakfast with a man who told me on sudden whim he arose after midnight and drank a quart of whisky between then and dawn and a sorry sight, shaking like one with ague and still a bit hocussed, I thought.

Through the town and saw in passing crowds of Channing Pollock, Charles Dillingham and Beatrice Hereford. Home and did my task and a great weariness came and I slept.

In the evening to dine at a place where player folk go and saw no one I knew so to walk with my wife along the dazzling Rialto. Thence to bed.

Wilsen Mizner drifted back to his own stamping ground—Broadway—recently for the first time in four years. Mizner was the best known man-about-town before he departed for Florida to become a realtor. His mots still fly about in the Forties. He used to appear regularly at Jack's at 3 a. m. for his portion of cold lobster. Mizner was the town's wit. Crowds awaited his arrival to hear the latest quip. He did not remain here long, it is said, because of his hatred of policemen. They have always been a target for his biting sarcasm.

"Fred Stone's Star Ranch," a real 21,000 aacre western ranch a few hours from Broadway is now smoothly running. It is on the road to New Haven and about eight miles from New LondonCt. There are corralls and a ranch house for the foreman. Stone's house is to be a log cabin affair with every modern convenience. He has cow ponies, fine breeding horses, Brahma steers, goats and a pack of dogs. Stone has three daughters. A vocal teacher and a dancing instructor live on the ranch. He is said to be the richest actor on the American stage. Certainly he is the most beloved by the profession.

A press agent makes a living placing autographed pictures of stage stars in shop windows indorsing wares of shops they grace.

Press agency may and undoubtedly does add to the prestige of those who have arrived but it cannot "make" one who has no ability. REFORMED

"Speaking at the Hanson Place M. E. Church, Brooklyn, I did not hesitate to urge that congregation of nearly 500 people to see it, for I consider it the strongest sermon, preached today and I like your text 'Break the Commandments and they will break you.'

"I want to thank you for producing such a wonderful picture, awe inspiring, thrilling, instructive, and the person who can view it without becoming better is not strictly human.....I heartily endorse it, and shall urge my people to see it."

—The Rev. L. G. Leggett, D. D.
Hawthorne, N. Y.

UNIVERSALIST

"A picture that the Modernists, the Fundamentalists, and everybody else, old and young can see with such mental and spiritual profit that its worth cannot be estimated.

"I have seen it twice, shall see it again, and am planning a party of 50 boys to attend it, and thereby I beleive I will be doing something for them which will be of permanent value to character and conscience. It is bound to open the eyes of many a one who thinks of life from a distorted and clouded moral and spiritual viewpoint."

—The Rev. C. J. Harris,
Washington Heights Universalist Church.

One of the most impressive and influencing films before the public. We advise our parishoners to attend as a service of religion. The moral necessity and life dynamic of the commandments will be woven into the fibre of your consciousness by the wonderful picture."

—The Rev. Thomas Edward Potterton,
Church of Our Father, Brooklyn.

CATHOLIC

His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, had a private showing of "The Ten Commandments" and enjoyed it to the extent that he recommended that this picture be placed on the

Official Catholic White List

During the 62 weeks that the picture was playing daily in New York many of his parishioners availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing this extraordinary motion picture.

The film has the specific endorsement of the Catholic Theatre Movement, "organized for the purpose of determining and maintaining the Catholic standpoint with regard to the Theatre: its activities to be directed towards developing the conscience and sentiment of Catholics in their patronage of the theatre."

"The Ten Commandments" is endorsed in the bulletin issued by The Catholic Theatre Movement from which the following is quoted:

"Try to spread a knowledge of the 'White List' and to interest your friends in the Catholic Theatre Movement. This organization has done a great deal of work—very quietly but effectively... Activities of this kind are generally mere flashes in the pan. This has lived and will endure. The opportunity is yours to make it strong and far-reaching."

the existing conditions in the particular locality in which the group is.

When it is decided to organize a Winter Plattsburg in a city usually an officer of the quartermaster corps attempts to interest the business men of the community through a talk at such clubs as the Rotary, Civitan or Kiwanis. In this way he is able to put before the representative men of that locality the aims and purposes of these meetings and usually succeeds in arousing the interest of at least a portion of them.

Civilians Interested.

The point which the department is anxious to emphasize is that civilians are urged to cooperate in this movement and to take an active part. Also an official invitation has been extended to all National Guard supply officers in communities where these groups are located.

The story is told of one highly successful business man who became so interested in his work as an important officer in one of the Quartermaster Winter Plattsburg groups that he took his problems to his office. There he would work and study during business hours taking little note of the fact that the afternoon was passing. It has been remarked that while this particular group was most fortunate in having this man for a member, it is wondered just how his office force felt about the matter.

There are at the present time 10,000 members of the Quartermaster's Reserve, and last year 2,000 of these attended the Winter Plattsburg meetings. While there is no record of the number of civilians in attendance it is said that in some groups they equaled the number of reserves, while in at least one they were in the majority.

The office of the quartermaster general says that the effects of education are becoming more noticeable all the time. In the First corps area, which includes all the New England states, last year every quartermaster reserve officer took some form of instruction and this year it is expected that large number of civilians will join the Winter Plattsburg groups.

The success of these groups has been in a large measure due to the interest and encouragement of General Hart. He has taken a personal interest in spreading this movement and has done all in his power to "put it over."

As is well known, the United States has found herself unprepared for every war in which she has been engaged. The lessons of the World war were particularly hard, and it has often been said there was a great waste of both money and lives. It is in order to avoid a repetition of this in the event of another war that patriotic citizens are striving to acquaint themselves with problems which must be met in such emergencies, to the end that there will e as little waste as possible.

TEN CITIES CONTINUE VISITING TEACHERS

Demonstration Aids in Wiping Out Delinquency.

New York.—Ten cities in which three-year demonstrations of visiting teacher work have been completed under the auspices of the commonwealth fund program for the prevention of delinquency have determined to continue the use of visiting teachers as a regular feature of their public school systems.

According to Howard W. Nudd, director of the Public Educational association of New York city and chairman of the national committee on visiting teachers which has administered these demonstrations, the communities thus convinced of the value of the visiting teacher and planning to continue her services include Burlington, Vt., Lincoln, Neb.; Richmond, Va.; Red Bank, N. J.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Sioux City, Iowa; Bluefield, W. Va.; Sioux Falls, S. D.; Warren, Ohio, and Hutchinson, Kan.

Meanwhile, demonstrations are being continued by the national committee on visiting teachers in the following communities: Berkeley, Cal.; Birmingham, Ala.; Boone county, Missouri; Butte, Mont.; Charlotte, N. C.; Chisholm, Minn.; Coatesville, Pa.; Columbus, Ga.; Detroit, Mich.; Durham, N. C.; Eugene, Ore.; Huron county, Ohio; Omaha, Neb.; Pocatello, Idaho; Racine, Wis.; Rochester, Pa.; Rock Springs, Wyo.; San Diego, Cal.; Tucson, Ariz.; Tulsa, Okla.

Appointed by Committee.

When the work is finished in these cities the thirty visiting teacher demonstrations under the commonwealth fund program will have been completed. Under the arrangements made for these demonstrations the visiting teachers were appointed by the national committee on visiting teachers subject to the approval of the local authorities; in each case the national committee pays two-thirds of the salary for a three-year period and provides funds for certain additional expenses, while the remainder of the salary is paid by the local school board. Several hundred cities have made application for demonstrations under this plan, but the thirty communities provided for in the original grant from the commonwealth fund having been chosen, no further applications are now being considered.

Including the visiting teachers appointed by the national committee for these demonstrations there are now altogether 186 visiting teachers in the United States working in 64 cities and 6 counties scattered through 34 states. These figures are given by Mr. Nudd in a chapter on the history, purpose and scope of the visiting teacher movement, which he contributes to "The Problem Child in School," a volume of visiting teacher case narratives by Mary B. Sayles, just published by the Joint Committee on Methods of Preventing Delinquency, Inc., of 50 East Forty-second street, New York city.

Describing the visiting teacher as a specialist in the schools who devotes herself to the problems of unadjusted children, Mr. Nudd, in the article above referred to, points that "every teacher, every social worker, and many a parent is familiar with the problem child—the boy or girl whose school progress or whose reactions to normal requirements point toward later inefficiency, delinquency, or some other failure in personal or social adjustment. What is the trouble with such children, and what can be done for them? How can the school obtain and utilize a knowledge of the forces that are affecting their success, and give them in fullest measure the benefits of their educational experience? Puzzles or pests at home, in school, or elsewhere, their personal welfare and the welfare of society require painstaking effort in their behalf. They present at once the most baffling, the most urgent and the most interesting problems in the field of education."

Finds Needs of Children.

Describing the methods of the visiting teacher in meeting these problems, which are both educational and social in nature, Mr. Nudd points out that this relatively new specialist, trained both as a teacher and social worker, "is specifically equipped not only to find out why things are not going right in the lives of these children but also to take back to the class teacher, the parent or the social agency which may help, the essential information needed to meet their individual limitations. As a result of the new facts she discovers the school is enabled to see what the actual situation is and to become aware of the real need of the child. It can often modify requirements to meet the newly seen limitations by changing the class, transferring the child to a special school, shifting emphasis from one phase of school work to another, adopting a new approach to the child or connecting his school work more closely with his outside interests.

Age of Consent Given Boost in India After Legislative Battle

SIMLA, India—A partial but much needed reform in regard to young Indian girls has just passed the legislative assembly by 84 votes to 11. It raises the age of consent from 12 to 13 in the case of marital relations, and to 14 in non-marital.

It was only after a very bitter debate that the bill was passed. On the one side the Orthodox opposition attacked the measure on the ground of bringing western influence into Indian ideas, while the reformers argued that the limit should be increased.

As a result the bill is a compromise, but it represents a step in the direction of progress, because 20 years ago such a measure would have been laughed at.

BEBE DANIELS IN FILM HIT

"Lovers in Quarantine" at Ceramic Theatre For Two Days.

A recent experience of Bebe Daniels leads her to the belief that the man in the public elevator who fails to doff his hat when a woman enters the cage, and then proceeds to write a vigorous defense of his action in "letters to the editor," has a fairly good reason for his eccentricity. In all probability he is as bald as an egg.

During the filming of her latest picture, "Lovers in Quarantine," Miss Daniels dressed very casually for the early portion of the story. She impersonated an untidy young girl at the awkward age, and as an aid to the characterization, she covered her own lustrous bob with an unkempt wig that fairly shrieked for the bobber's shears.

The wig, innocent of the ministrations of brush or comb, looked like a tumbled mass utterly beyond reclaim. One strand of hair at the front was particularly unruly, and Miss Daniels decided the wig could do without it. Calling the studio hairdresser she held out the offending handful of hair and ordered:

"Cut—any old way, so long as it doesn't look like the work of an expert."

Being just that, he took a jagged slice out of the hair Miss Daniels indicated, then stood off to admire the desired uneven effect. The coiffure looked even more irregular than before and Miss Daniels amusedly smiled at the weird effect mirrored in her glass. Then she returned to the set to play a scene with Harrison Ford, who has the chief male role opposite the star.

Came the end of a busy day, as they say in the movie subtitles. Sitting before the mirror in her dressing room, Bebe removed the burdensome wig and began patting her own hair into place. Suddenly she jumped up and fearfully took another look at herself.

You've guessed it!

The hirsute sacrifice for art's sake had come from her own scalp. Until her hair comes in again at that particular spot, Miss Daniels, like the man in the elevator, will keep her head under her hat.

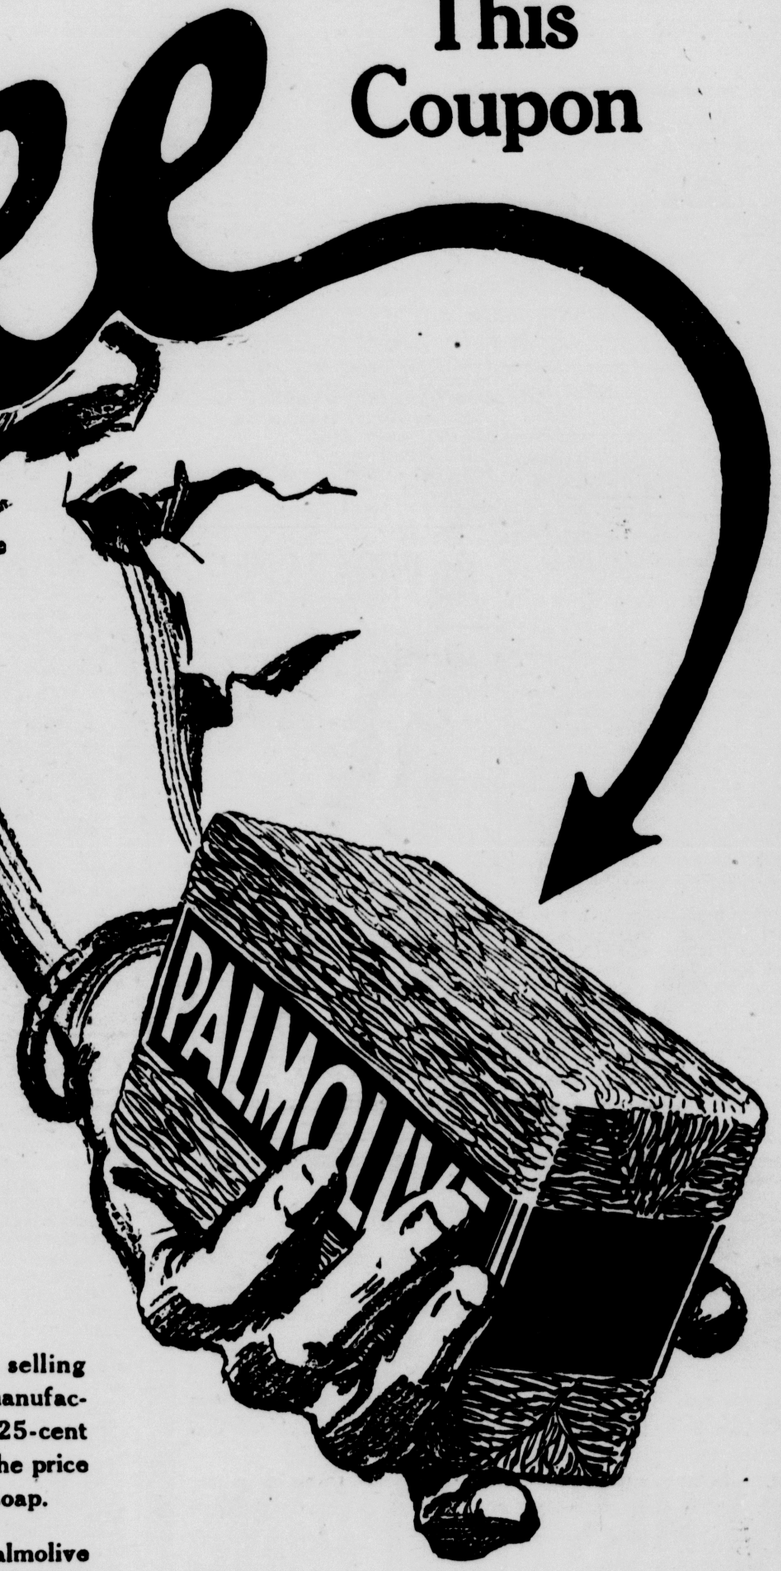

Bebe, in "Lovers in Quarantine," comes to the Ceramic theater Monday and Tuesday. Besides Ford, the cast includes Eden Gray, Alfred Lunt, Diana Kane and Edna May Oliver. Frank Tuttle directed.

SOCIETY

Mrs. C. T. Larkins Hostess at Bible Literary Club Meet

Mrs. Charles T. Larkins, president of the Bible Literary club, received the members Saturday afternoon at her home, 307 Thompson avenue.

Religious current events were given in response to roll call. "The Land of Palestine" was the day's topic. Mrs. Charles R. Boyce led the discussion of the animal and vegetable life and the great activities of the country. Palestine in the time of Christ was described by a map talk given by Mrs. John E. Anderson. The geographical location and its influence on the climate, the peculiar grouping of the mountains, the lofty peaks, the coast line, the Jordan valley, the historical country and cities of the Holy Land, with its wonderful seas, were geographically described.

Modern Palestine, "The Land of Promise" to thousands who have returned to the land of their fathers, their courage and sacrifices, the general condition of the country, the laws governing travelers and those desiring to become permanent settlers in the country, together with a brief description of the opening of the Hebrew University, were points discussed by Mrs. Louis Steinfeld.

After the program, luncheon was served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held October 24, at the home of the Misses Nell and Maude Dawson of 818 Highland avenue.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

Birthday Anniversary Observed.

Honoring the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Minnie Swaney of Church street, a group of friends surprised her Friday evening with a masquerade party. Music and games were diversions. Trophies were awarded Mrs. Ruth Sinclair and Mrs. Ina Mc Lean for the most comic costumes, while Mrs. Mary Streets was given the souvenir for the prettiest costume. Old Folks Must Not Use "Physics"

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts calomel and nasty oils every day or two.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels of old folks. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

FORT ONTARIO IS LANDMARK

Stronghold Dates Back to Colonial Days—Once a British Fort.

New York.—Because of its historic association and picturesque appearance, Fort Ontario is one of the show places of northern New York visited by tourists from all parts of the United States and Canada.

One of the oldest and most noted landmarks on the North American continent, the old fort stands on the same site and is constructed on the same plan as the maps of the French and British show it 200 years ago.

Construction of the fort began by British and colonial troops in 1755. Its site, an elevated position looking out on Lake Ontario and commanding the mouth of the Oswego river from its east bank, was selected by Gov. William Shirley of Massachusetts and Sir William Pepperell.

Is Star Shaped.

The stronghold was completed in the spring of 1756.

It was then built of logs, with outer walls fourteen feet in height and with a circumference of 800 feet. The plan was pentagon, on each angle of which was constructed a bastion, giving the general outline of a five-pointed star.

In 1759 the fort was a rendezvous for 2,000 British under Gen. John Prideaux and 1,000 Indians under Sir William Johnson.

The fort was destroyed by American troops in 1778, under orders from Colonel Gansevoort, who wished thereby to prevent its reoccupation by the British.

The British after the treaty of peace in 1783 continued to hold the northern forts, demanding certain indemnities from Virginia loyalists who sustained property losses during the Revolution.

Jay's treaty settled the dispute and in 1796 the British began evacuating. Fort Ontario was the last post to surrender.

In July, 1812, the post was occupied by nine companies of militia, and some attempt was made to repair it by Colonel George Fleming. It was fired on in June, 1813, by several armed British vessels, but the fort batteries and the American ship Growler returned the fire and the hostile fleet retired.

Fort Ontario was not occupied by regular troops until November, 1838. The lands comprising the military reservation were conveyed to the United States by the state of New York on April 25, 1839. Between 1839 and 1846 the fort and barracks were rebuilt at a cost of $95,000.

The new post, which lies to the east of old Fort Ontario, is modern in every respect. All buildings are of red brick and were built between 1903 and 1905 at a cost of $320,000. The fort was used as a general hospital during the world war and about 20 temporary buildings were erected there in 1917-18.

Resembles Ancient Castle.

The entire military reservation has an area of 75.9 acres. The old fort, which stands at its most elevated point, is about 2,500 feet in circumference, and its outer walls, of sandstone, are, with concrete reinforcements, about 5 feet thick and from 8 to 15 feet in height. Behind these walls is an earth work about 20 feet in height and 25 feet in thickness.

Five stone vaulted casement interiors penetrate the earthwork, commanding, through slotted, iron-doored loopholes, all strategic approaches to the fortification.

These casements are reached by way of stone stairways descending from the top of the earthern parapet. An outer earthwork once extended about the greater portion of the fort's circumference, permitting the formation of a moat about 20 feet in width, but this was leveled when construction of the modern post began in 1903.

Fort Ontario is immediately adjacent to the city of Oswego.

Massachusetts Lad Leading Aspirant for Meanest Boy Role

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—Many have usurped the title "meanest," but is remained for 16-year-old Frances Grazyboski of Chicopee to set a new mark for that doubtful role. Frances according to the local police who arraignied her in Juvenile court here, made a specialty of locating little girls sent by their mothers on errands.

Promising to do the errand for the child, and, in addition to bring her back a "great big doll" Frances would prevail upon the child to turn over mother's pocketbook with whatever it contained. Then the child would wait vainly for sight of Frances or the doll.

FORT ONTARIO IS LANDMARK

Stronghold Dates Back to Colonial Days—Once a British Fort.

New York.—Because of its historic association and picturesque appearance, Fort Ontario is one of the show places of northern New York visited by tourists from all parts of the United States and Canada.

One of the oldest and most noted landmarks on the North American continent, the old fort stands on the same site and is constructed on the same plan as the maps of the French and British show it 200 years ago.

Construction of the fort began by British and colonial troops in 1755. Its site, an elevated position looking out on Lake Ontario and commanding the mouth of the Oswego river from its east bank, was selected by Gov. William Shirley of Massachusetts and Sir William Pepperell.

Is Star Shaped.

The stronghold was completed in the spring of 1756.

It was then built of logs, with outer walls fourteen feet in height and with a circumference of 800 feet. The plan was pentagon, on each angle of which was constructed a bastion, giving the general outline of a five-pointed star.

In 1759 the fort was a rendezvous for 2,000 British under Gen. John Prideaux and 1,000 Indians under Sir William Johnson.

The fort was destroyed by American troops in 1778, under orders from Colonel Gansevoort, who wished thereby to prevent its reoccupation by the British.

The British after the treaty of peace in 1783 continued to hold the northern forts, demanding certain indemnities from Virginia loyalists who sustained property losses during the Revolution.

Jay's treaty settled the dispute and in 1796 the British began evacuating. Fort Ontario was the last post to surrender.

In July, 1812, the post was occupied by nine companies of militia, and some attempt was made to repair it by Colonel George Fleming. It was fired on in June, 1813, by several armed British vessels, but the fort batteries and the American ship Growler returned the fire and the hostile fleet retired.

Fort Ontario was not occupied by regular troops until November, 1838. The lands comprising the military reservation were conveyed to the United States by the state of New York on April 25, 1839. Between 1839 and 1846 the fort and barracks were rebuilt at a cost of $95,000.

The new post, which lies to the east of old Fort Ontario, is modern in every respect. All buildings are of red brick and were built between 1903 and 1905 at a cost of $320,000. The fort was used as a general hospital during the world war and about 20 temporary buildings were erected there in 1917-18.

Resembles Ancient Castle.

The entire military reservation has an area of 75.9 acres. The old fort, which stands at its most elevated point, is about 2,500 feet in circumference, and its outer walls, of sandstone, are, with concrete reinforcements, about 5 feet thick and from 8 to 15 feet in height. Behind these walls is an earth work about 20 feet in height and 25 feet in thickness.

Five stone vaulted casement interiors penetrate the earthwork, commanding, through slotted, iron-doored loopholes, all strategic approaches to the fortification.

These casements are reached by way of stone stairways descending from the top of the earthern parapet. An outer earthwork once extended about the greater portion of the fort's circumference, permitting the formation of a moat about 20 feet in width, but this was leveled when construction of the modern post began in 1903.

Fort Ontario is immediately adjacent to the city of Oswego.

Massachusetts Lad Leading Aspirant for Meanest Boy Role

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—Many have usurped the title "meanest," but is remained for 16-year-old Frances Grazyboski of Chicopee to set a new mark for that doubtful role. Frances according to the local police who arraignied her in Juvenile court here, made a specialty of locating little girls sent by their mothers on errands.

Promising to do the errand for the child, and, in addition to bring her back a "great big doll" Frances would prevail upon the child to turn over mother's pocketbook with whatever it contained. Then the child would wait vainly for sight of Frances or the doll.

Fifty buildings of American steel are now being erected in the colony of Kenya, East Africa.

Government clerks of Hungary have been granted marked wage increases.

Spanish people are taking up photography as a pastime.

One factory in Australia is turning out 1,200 tennis balls daily.

PLAN TO RUSH WORK ON ROAD

Cool Weather Will Not Delay Yellow Creek Township Job.

The present cool weather will not delay the pouring of concrete on the Yellow Creek township section of the Wellsville-Salineville road, in the opinion of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. It is the intent of the county commissioners and also the contractors on this job to have this contract finished within the next three weeks, so far as the pouring of concrete is concerned, the matter of building berms being a secondary consideration just at this time.

The length of this section of road, which is known as the "Chattle Lake" route is 15,450 feet, of which 1,728 feet is in Washington township and 13,722 feet in Yellow Creek township.

All curves on this route are being banked and also wider than the regular 16-foot highway. This widening consisted of 1,635.7 square yards of concrete. Elevations on this route show a total rise of 170 feet and a total rise of 170 feet and a total fall of 140 feet, which gives the road an easy grade for all kinds of traffic.

"What we're interested in now is to have this road opened to traffic between Wellsville and Salineville at the earliest possible time," Mr. Kirk declared. "We are sure that the cool weather will not be so severe that it will hold up pouring of concrete. After the concrete has been allowed to set, we can then open the road to traffic at the risk of drivers, and then we can go ahead and complete the berms."

This is the last concerete job to be done in the county this year between distant points, although the Sunnyside avenue job at East Liverpool is still in progress. The latter contract, which has been awarded to Allison & Harris of East Liverpool is a small one compared with the Wellsville-Salineville contract. It is likely that the Yellow Creek township project will be thrown open to traffic before Nov. 15, as contractors are speeding up in their work to have the pouring of concrete completed before the end of the month.

A total of 27,466.7 square yards of concrete was contracted for on the "Chattle Lake" route.

"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry of New York City, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles. I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarrassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start."

Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills.

They are wonderful for constipation, sick-headache and indigestion and they physic the system in a mild and gentle manner, no bad after effects.

OWNS A GOLD MINE

and doesn't bother to take out the gold!

WHAT would you say of a man who owned a gold mine but hadn't the gumption to get out the gold. He's not rich either. He's working for a salary or wages just as you are. And what's more, he could make good use of some extra money if he knew of a way to get it—just as YOU probably could use some extra money. Yet, here's the man with a gold mine, and he doesn't even bother to get the gold out.

But don't be too hard on him because you also have a gold mine and maybe you're not working your mine either! Your idle dollars are the gold mine.

Now a gold mine has to be WORKED to get the gold out. And it's the same with your savings. If you WORK them they will produce money for you. The way to work your savings is to INVEST them. For instance: if you invest $950.00 in our Preferred Stock you will be entitled to receive a dividend of $15.00 every three months from this Company.

PLAN TO RUSH WORK ON ROAD

Cool Weather Will Not Delay Yellow Creek Township Job.

The present cool weather will not delay the pouring of concrete on the Yellow Creek township section of the Wellsville-Salineville road, in the opinion of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. It is the intent of the county commissioners and also the contractors on this job to have this contract finished within the next three weeks, so far as the pouring of concrete is concerned, the matter of building berms being a secondary consideration just at this time.

The length of this section of road, which is known as the "Chattle Lake" route is 15,450 feet, of which 1,728 feet is in Washington township and 13,722 feet in Yellow Creek township.

All curves on this route are being banked and also wider than the regular 16-foot highway. This widening consisted of 1,635.7 square yards of concrete. Elevations on this route show a total rise of 170 feet and a total rise of 170 feet and a total fall of 140 feet, which gives the road an easy grade for all kinds of traffic.

"What we're interested in now is to have this road opened to traffic between Wellsville and Salineville at the earliest possible time," Mr. Kirk declared. "We are sure that the cool weather will not be so severe that it will hold up pouring of concrete. After the concrete has been allowed to set, we can then open the road to traffic at the risk of drivers, and then we can go ahead and complete the berms."

This is the last concrete job to be done in the county this year between distant points, although the Sunnyside avenue job at East Liverpool is still in progress. The latter contract, which has been awarded to Allison & Harris of East Liverpool is a small one compared with the Wellsville-Salineville contract. It is likely that the Yellow Creek township project will be thrown open to traffic before Nov. 15, as contractors are speeding up in their work to have the pouring of concrete completed before the end of the month.

A total of 27,466.7 square yards of concrete was contracted for on the "Chattle Lake" route.

Friday, November 6, is the date set for the probable completion of Sebring's two paving projects, West Oregon avenue and Fifteenth street. Possibility of completing these two jobs by November 6th is contingent upon the weather in the next month.

Conquers Bad Breadth and is Popular Again

"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry of New York City, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles. I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarrassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start."

Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills.

They are wonderful for constipation, sick-headache and indigestion and they physic the system in a mild and gentle manner, no bad after effects.

OWNS A GOLD MINE

and doesn't bother to take out the gold!

WHAT would you say of a man who owned a gold mine but hadn't the gumption to get out the gold. He's not rich either. He's working for a salary or wages just as you are. And what's more, he could make good use of some extra money if he knew of a way to get it—just as YOU probably could use some extra money. Yet, here's the man with a gold mine, and he doesn't even bother to get the gold out.

But don't be too hard on him because you also have a gold mine and maybe you're not working your mine either! Your idle dollars are the gold mine.

Now a gold mine has to be WORKED to get the gold out. And it's the same with your savings. If you WORK them they will produce money for you. The way to work your savings is to INVEST them. For instance: if you invest $950.00 in our Preferred Stock you will be entitled to receive a dividend of $15.00 every three months from this Company.

HARBOR CONTRACT TO BE AWARDED

Weirton Steel company officials will probably award the contract this week for the building of the $750,000 harbor which is part of the $14,000,000 expension planned by the company.

The harbor itself will be 200 feet long in both directions with a wooden fender at each side, providing a 200 foot loading and a 460-foot unloading dock. It will be necessary to dredge 1,100 cubic yards of material from the harbor to install the docks. The dock foundation will be of concrete 40 feet square. They will be 38 feet above full pool.

On the landing docks will be a building 50 feet by 100 feet for storage purposes where material to be shipped will be held until time for loading.

On the unloading docks there is to be erected a coal tower with a capacity for unloading 300 tons of coal per hour from nine barges, which is the capacity of the harbor. This run of mine coal will be unloaded by the tower, and placed in the equalizing hopper, from there it will go either to the coke or the stocking pots.

His Advice

"Every winter found me all in. My doctor told me winter was hard on the kidneys, especially after a hard cold or the grip. Uric acid accumulated in the system in excessive amount, the kidneys became clogged, and machinery out of kilter. I suffered from backache, bladder trouble and sometimes had drowsy or dizzy spells. I'm now giving you just the advice the doctor gave me. Go to your neighborhood drug store and ask for Dr. Pierce's An-uric (anti-uric acid) tablets. They'll fix that backache! You'll soon feel like a fighting cock and full of ginger."

If you want a trial package of An-uric, (kidney-backache) tablets send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y., and write for free advice.

CHRYSLER PLAN STOPS THIEVES

Use Theft Prevention Numbering System on Cars.

Automobile makers have long concentrated their attention upon attempts to solve the problem of preventing the millions in money losses to motor car owners on account of automobile thefts and to save them also the annoyance of the loss of time and use in being deprived of their cars, which is highly important, even if it cannot be computed in money terms. Walter P. Chrysler, whose wonderful mechanical mind is constantly at work searching out new plans and new methods to help motorists and improve motoring conditions, has inaugurated a system that will go far to checkmate automobile thieves, if not to stop their activities altogether.

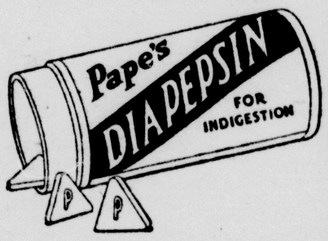

It has been generally accepted by automobile insurers and manufacturers that if it were made difficult to dispose of the stolen goods, car thieves who in 1924 got away with 50 per cent more cars than in 1923, would be put hard up against it. This is precisely what is accomplished by the system introduced by Chrysler.

The plan involves the use of the Fedco patented theft prevention numbering system, exclusive on Chrysler cars. It consists of a series number plate attached to the instrument boaard of each car, made and fitted in such a way that it can absolutely not be changed or removed without detection. The ease with which stolen cars could previously be turned into money was the most helpful factor to the car thief and only 17 per cent of all stolen cars last year were recovered. The Chrysler system stops conversion at the source, so to say.

OWNS A GOLD MINE

and doesn't bother to take out the gold!

WHAT would you say of a man who owned a gold mine but hadn't the gumption to get out the gold. He's not rich either. He's working for a salary or wages just as you are. And what's more, he could make good use of some extra money if he knew of a way to get it—just as YOU probably could use some extra money. Yet, here's the man with a gold mine, and he doesn't even bother to get the gold out.

But don't be too hard on him because you also have a gold mine and maybe you're not working your mine either! Your idle dollars are the gold mine.

Now a gold mine has to be WORKED to get the gold out. And it's the same with your savings. If you WORK them they will produce money for you. The way to work your savings is to INVEST them. OWNS A GOLD MINE and doesn't bother to take out the gold!

WHAT would you say of a man who owned a gold mine but hadn't the gumption to get out the gold. He's not rich either. He's working for a salary or wages just as you are. And what's more, he could make good use of some extra money if he knew of a way to get it—just as YOU probably could use some extra money. Yet, here's the man with a gold mine, and he doesn't even bother to get the gold out.

But don't be too hard on him because you also have a gold mine and maybe you're not working your mine either! Your idle dollars are the gold mine.

Now a gold mine has to be WORKED to get the gold out. And it's the same with your savings. If you WORK them they will produce money for you. The way to work your savings is to INVEST them. For instance: if you invest $950.00 in our Preferred Stock you will be entitled to receive a dividend of $15.00 every three months from this Company.

HARBOR CONTRACT TO BE AWARDED

Weirton Steel company officials will probably award the contract this week for the building of the $750,000 harbor which is part of the $14,000,000 expension planned by the company.

The harbor itself will be 200 feet long in both directions with a wooden fender at each side, providing a 200 foot loading and a 460-foot unloading dock. It will be necessary to dredge 1,100 cubic yards of material from the harbor to install the docks. The dock foundation will be of concrete 40 feet square. They will be 38 feet above full pool.

On the landing docks will be a building 50 feet by 100 feet for storage purposes where material to be shipped will be held until time for loading.

On the unloading docks there is to be erected a coal tower with a capacity for unloading 300 tons of coal per hour from nine barges, which is the capacity of the harbor. This run of mine coal will be unloaded by the tower, and placed in the equalizing hopper, from there it will go either to the coke or the stocking pots.

His Advice

"Every winter found me all in. My doctor told me winter was hard on the kidneys, especially after a hard cold or the grip. Uric acid accumulated in the system in excessive amount, the kidneys became clogged, and machinery out of kilter. I suffered from backache, bladder trouble and sometimes had drowsy or dizzy spells. I'm now giving you just the advice the doctor gave me. Go to your neighborhood drug store and ask for Dr. Pierce's An-uric (anti-uric acid) tablets. They'll fix that backache! You'll soon feel like a fighting cock and full of ginger."

If you want a trial package of An-uric, (kidney-backache) tablets send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y., and write for free advice.

CHRYSLER PLAN STOPS THIEVES

Use Theft Prevention Numbering System on Cars.

Automobile makers have long concentrated their attention upon attempts to solve the problem of preventing the millions in money losses to motor car owners on account of automobile thefts and to save them also the annoyance of the loss of time and use in being deprived of their cars, which is highly important, even if it cannot be computed in money terms. Walter P. Chrysler, whose wonderful mechanical mind is constantly at work searching out new plans and new methods to help motorists and improve motoring conditions, has inaugurated a system that will go far to checkmate automobile thieves, if not to stop their activities altogether.

It has been generally accepted by automobile insurers and manufacturers that if it were made difficult to dispose of the stolen goods, car thieves who in 1924 got away with 50 per cent more cars than in 1923, would be put hard up against it. This is precisely what is accomplished by the system introduced by Chrysler.

The plan involves the use of the Fedco patented theft prevention numbering system, exclusive on Chrysler cars. It consists of a series number plate attached to the instrument boaard of each car, made and fitted in such a way that it can absolutely not be changed or removed without detection. The ease with which stolen cars could previously be turned into money was the most helpful factor to the car thief and only 17 per cent of all stolen cars last year were recovered. The Chrysler system stops conversion at the source, so to say.

HARBOR CONTRACT TO BE AWARDED

Weirton Steel company officials will probably award the contract this week for the building of the $750,000 harbor which is part of the $14,000,000 expension planned by the company.

The harbor itself will be 200 feet long in both directions with a wooden fender at each side, providing a 200 foot loading and a 460-foot unloading dock. It will be necessary to dredge 1,100 cubic yards of material from the harbor to install the docks. The dock foundation will be of concrete 40 feet square. They will be 38 feet above full pool.

On the landing docks will be a building 50 feet by 100 feet for storage purposes where material to be shipped will be held until time for loading.

On the unloading docks there is to be erected a coal tower with a capacity for unloading 300 tons of coal per hour from nine barges, which is the capacity of the harbor. This run of mine coal will be unloaded by the tower, and placed in the equalizing hopper, from there it will go either to the coke or the stocking pots.

His Advice

"Every winter found me all in. My doctor told me winter was hard on the kidneys, especially after a hard cold or the grip. Uric acid accumulated in the system in excessive amount, the kidneys became clogged, and machinery out of kilter. I suffered from backache, bladder trouble and sometimes had drowsy or dizzy spells. I'm now giving you just the advice the doctor gave me. Go to your neighborhood drug store and ask for Dr. Pierce's An-uric (anti-uric acid) tablets. They'll fix that backache! You'll soon feel like a fighting cock and full of ginger."

If you want a trial package of An-uric, (kidney-backache) tablets send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y., and write for free advice.

CHRYSLER PLAN STOPS THIEVES

Use Theft Prevention Numbering System on Cars.

Automobile makers have long concentrated their attention upon attempts to solve the problem of preventing the millions in money losses to motor car owners on account of automobile thefts and to save them also the annoyance of the loss of time and use in being deprived of their cars, which is highly important, even if it cannot be computed in money terms. Walter P. Chrysler, whose wonderful mechanical mind is constantly at work searching out new plans and new methods to help motorists and improve motoring conditions, has inaugurated a system that will go far to checkmate automobile thieves, if not to stop their activities altogether.

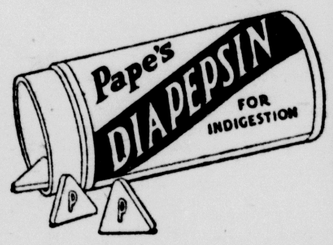

It has been generally accepted by automobile insurers and manufacturers that if it were made difficult to dispose of the stolen goods, car thieves who in 1924 got away with 50 per cent more cars than in 1923, would be put hard up against it. This is precisely what is accomplished by the system introduced by Chrysler.

The plan involves the use of the Fedco patented theft prevention numbering system, exclusive on Chrysler cars. It consists of a series number plate attached to the instrument boaard of each car, made and fitted in such a way that it can absolutely not be changed or removed without detection. The ease with which stolen cars could previously be turned into money was the most helpful factor to the car thief and only 17 per cent of all stolen cars last year were recovered. The Chrysler system stops conversion at the source, so to say.

Senators Today Rule 5 to 2 Choice to Cop World's Series

COVELESKIE, ALDRIDGE LIKELY SLAB NOMINEES FOR DECIDING CONTEST

Event Reaches "Crucial Game" Stage for Pittsburghers, Who Either Must Win This Afternoon or Acknowledge Superiority of Washingtons; A Little Money Goes Down on Pirates to Win Fifth Clash, at Odds of 4 to 5.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Washington awoke this morning with a dry, brown taste in its civic mouth and a pack of ice around its civic head. Washington awoke to something approaching a surfeit of world series fodder and what probably will be the final game of the inter league championship series with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Washington, in other words, with three victories and one defeat to its credit and debit, awoke with something of a civic hangover.

It had had an overdose of the diet and had found it almost too rich for its palate. The thing was beginning to pall slightly, the issue, if any, having been so logically determined by the result of the last two games.

The Senators this morning ruled a 5 to 2 choice to the title, with takers as plentiful as June flies in January. However, a little judicious money went down on the Pirates to win today's game at odds of 4 to 5 and send the series back to Pittsburgh. However, there seemed to be not the slightest doubt existant that the Senators had sewed the situation thoroughly up in the well and widely known bag.

The day was overcast, the official forecast being for cool and cloudy with possible showers. The writer, having his own trained observer, voted for sunshine.

As a matter of fact, the only uncertainty revolved around the ability, or lack of same, of Stanley Coveleskie to moist ball the Pirates silly for nine innings. He attempted the business inPittsburgh some days ago and lost the only game of the series for Washington when Cuyler smoke a homer into the stands in the eighth inning.

Coveleskie was opposed, on the occasion in question, by Vic Aldridge and mayhap the latter was to be sent forth for action today.

Information was to the effect that Meadows might not be available for the game. He was said to have undergone a slight operation on his elbow and was, therefore, out of action until tomorrow, by which time it was possible that he would be of great use, like a toothpick during a famine.

However, this meant nothing in particular unless the Pirates began hitting, which was something they had overlooked during the preceding games. Their average for the series was something in the neighborhood of six hits per game and one goes about as far with that sort of thing as a potato masher into a pin hole.

Most of the dear, old experts, in fact, looked for the series to end this afternoon, a circumstance which prompted the writer to make railroad reservations for Pittsburgh. The experts are right about as often as salt is used as a sweetener.

Coveleskie, however, was not the most heartening proposition in the world for the pro Washington gentlemen. The Pole gave a fine exhibition, even though he did lose the second game of the series; yet the fear was imminent that he showed the Pirates too many spitballs on that occasion.

Show a team of batters too many spit balls and they are likely to show you too many base hits, familiarity in this case being a fluent and palpable breeder of contempt.

Johnson's effort will go down as one of the best of world series history, the Pirates having much less of a chance against him than the box score indicated. The general idea here was that if they could extend the series to twenty games, Johnson probably would win ten of them and lost a little less than none at all.

LAUGHLIN COPS AT NEW CASTLE

Aldridge Scores Three of Four Goals Made by Locals.

Playing at Sharon, Pa., Saturday afternoon, the Homer Laughlin soccer club easily trimmed the Pennsylvanians, 4 to 1. The weather was cool and snappy and conductive to good soccer.

The Laughlins kicked against a strong wind but dominated most of the game after the first 10 minutes. Aldridge booted the first goal with Mortenson and Foster playing good ball. Aldridge broke loose and scored the second for Laughlins. Murray exhibited a high brand of ball for the home eleven but the Sharon team work in general, was ineffective against the Laughlin attack. The count was 2 to 0 at the half.

With the wind at their backs in the second half, the Laughlins held the upper hand through the second period, although the Sharon eleven scored once. This came when Nemis counted from a scrimmage in goal. Aldridge made it No. 3 for Laughlin and five minutes later Ferguson scored the fourth goal, leading the ball through from a corner kick.

The Sharon lads continually kicked the ball out of play in an effort to save their goal.

The lineup:

BALTIMORE WINS JUNIOR SERIES

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—The Baltimore Orioles, International league champions, captured the junior world series title yesterday, defeating Louisville of the American association, 5 to 2, in the eighth game. Baltimore won five contests against Louisville of the American association, 5 to 2, in the eighth game. Baltimore won five contests against Louisville's three.

Farnshaw, on the mound for the Orioles, was decidedly effective in the pinches. Baltimore got to Deberry, the Colonel hurler, who had tamed them effectively earlier in the series and drove him from the box in the fourth inning. Wilkinson, who relieved him, held the Birds scoreless in the latter frames, but the damage had been done.

Ohio State Has All-American Prospect and Other Stars

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—These five youngsters are blazing across the Big Ten football heavens this fall as newcomers on Ohio State's squad. All appear to have won their spurs as regulars and near-regulars although the season is only a few weeks old.

Foremost among them, judged by the amount of attention he has received is Elmer Marek, a Cedar Rapids, Iowa, product. A halfback, he is believed to have all the qualities to make for stardom. He weighs 172 pounds.

Then there's Freddy Grim, a Toledoan, and a former star at Scott high there. Grimm was looked upon as a likely prospect, but he exceeded all expectations in his first varsity game—that against Ohio Wesleyan. Reinjected into that fray when Bill Hunt, whose pal he has been for years, was hurt, Grim was the individual star of the day and scored Ohio State's lone touchdown.

Robin Bell, a product of the combined efforts of Parkersburg, W. Va., Lake Forest Academy (Illinois) and Erie, Pa., has had the call at quarterback for the Buckeyes. The job is new to him, for he played on the line in his "prep" days. He can kick, pass or run and Ohio State followers have great hopes of him. He weighs 173.

Helping to fill the gap in the center of the Buckeye line caused by the graduation of last year's guards and centers are Jack Ullery and Ted Meyers. Ullery, the brother of a former Penn State luminary, seems to have won a place at center. Meyers a product of Cleveland, O., is one of the guards. Ullery weighs 183 and Meyers 195 pounds. They and the other three are all sophomores.

SOX COP THIRD CLASH WITH CUBS

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—Ted Blankenship, the Texas cowboy, who battled Grover Alexander, the veteran Cub's ace, to a nineteen-inning, 2 to 2 draw, in the first game of the series, came back yesterday and put his club in the running by defeating the Cubs, 7 to 2, after the Nationals had won two straight. The series now stands two games for the Cubs and one for the White Sox.

Percy Lee Jones started for the Cubs in an effort to make it three straight but he was found wanting in the first inning. He walked three men and was touched for three solid blows which gave the White Sox a four-run lead which was never threatened.

Pirates Playing "Ridiculous" Baseball, Says Veteran Critic

Credit Nats With Having Outsmarted, Outmanaged, Outpitched and Outplayed National League Champs.

By Sid Mercer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—To all intents and purposes the world series of 1925 is over. The Senators have their bundle all wrapped up and probably will put a handle on it and carry away the swag this afternoon. It looks as if the pay-off will take place here instead of in Pittsburgh tomorrow.

The stage is all set for the Griffman. Lee Meadows, who gave Walter Johnson a real fight for the first game, is a cripple. He has an infected elbow and has not quite recovered from the effects of a slight operation.

Washington has two or three possible starters. Pittsburgh will make what may be the final stand behind Victor Aldridge, who has the honor of pitching the only Pittsburgh victory.

Aldridge was not as effective in victory as Meadows was in defeat. He barely staggered through that game. Any Washington pitcher may beat him today the way the Pirates are going. They are a demoralized team.

A veteran baseball scribe in a press room discussion at the Raleigh last night briefly summed up the situation as follows:

"Pittsburgh," he said, "is playing the most ridiculous baseball I ever witnessed."

That is not far from the truth. Pie Traynor and Max Carey are about the only Pirate regulars who have played consistently good baseball. The others have retreated before the onslaughts of the American league champions. They have been outwitted, outmanaged, outpitched and outgamed.

A one-legged pitcher shut out the National league champions Sunday. Johnson tore a muscle in his right leg trying to stretch a single into a double in the third inning, when all of the runs of the game were scored.

Perceiving that he had no chance to beat the play at second base, old Barney pulled up short and went lame. He proceeded to the clubhouse immediately and sought first aid. The club trainer advised him to quit.

"Just tape up my leg and I'll try to stick," said Walter.

It was a long inning and when Johnson reappeared none of the 38,000 customers knew that he had lost one of his props. Johnson limped to and from the bench. During the last four innings he was a tired old gentleman, just in there throwing the ball and the Pirates got four of their six hits then. But they couldn't score on even a crippled Johnson. His arm was still good enough to offset the loss of a leg.

PLAY IN WEST PENN CUP GAMES

Laughlin Draws Mahoning Valley for First Match.

Local soccer fans have been awaiting anxiously the result of the draw in the West Penn cup competition, which consists of 32 clubs comprising all of the fastest teams in the western Pennsylvania district and a number from Ohio.

The Laughlin eleven, according to announcement today by Manager Jesse Shaw, has drawn the Mahoning Valleys, one of the strongest outfits in Ohio, for their first game, which will be played on October 31 at Newell.

Among the other contenders in the competition are Pittsburgh Rovers, Jeannette, Morgan, Curry, Castle Shannon, Youngstown, St. George, Niles and Mahoning Valleys.

The Laughlins will play on their home lot, Newell, for the first time this season next Saturday against New Castle in the Press Northwest division circuit.

The local eleven retains its high standing as one of the two undefeated teams of the circuit. B. Haugh, one of the cleverest exponents of the game in the league, will appear at center against New Castle. The Pennsylvanians have tied with New Brighton and the Glencoe Thistles in their last two games. Saturday's game will start at 3:45.

DUNDEE-HERMAN SCRAP IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A fight that promises to draw the ring rabid from firesides to the chilly reaches of the Polo grounds will provide the finale of the outdoor ring season here this afternoon.

Two matches which threatened to provide plenty of smacking topped the bill, to be fought for the benefit of the principals involved, and the National Sports Alliance.

Johnny Dundee, former featherweight champion who retired undefeated, will meet Babe Herman, the Californian, in a fifteen round quarrel. Herman had a victory in all but the decision in a recent match with Kid Kaplin, the title holder, of Connecticut.

HIGH GRIDDERS LAND HARD FOUGHT BATTLE WITH CHESTER, 12-0

Wile's Eleven Holds Blue and White Scoreless Until Final Period When Line Thrusts, Combined With Opportune Aerial Plays, Produce Pair of Touchdowns; Captain Paul English Star of East Liverpool Offense.

Braving Saturday's cold, wintry weather, more than a thousand football fans of the district saw the East Liverpool high school eleven down the plucky Chester crew, 12 to 0, on the Rock Springs park gridiron.

The proteges of Wile held their opponents scoreless for the first three quarters and during the first two periods, especially, more than held their own with Boone's charges. Both teams lost chances to score in the first half, Chester fumbling on the East Liverpool 15 yard mark and Boone's squad duplicating the act on Chester's five yard line.

In the second half the Blue and White gridders began to show their driving power, sweeping the Chesterites from their feet for six straight first downs, mostly by line plays that paved the way for their initial touchdown. Forward passes combined with line thrusts accounted for the second touchdown, an opportune toss from P. English to Perry putting the pigskin over the goal line.

Boone's squad registered 12 first downs to Chester's two and completed three out of seven passes while the home lads failed in three attempts.

Coach Boone started his first string squad although the lineup was shifted around to some extent. McVey and P. Shaffer replaced R. Shaffer and Reibel in the backfield, while Hall and Haines occupied the posts of McKim and Bough in the back line and E. English played P. Shaffer's end.

Paul English, as usual, was the East Liverpool offensive star, making probably more than half the ground gained by his team. Allison and Shaffer also showed up well.

The East Liverpool line contributed its full share toward the victory. Larkins, at center, exhibited good generalship in running the team throughout the contest.

Ewing, H. Campbell, Pianey and Shaw were the outstanding performers for the home eleven.

Neither team could reach the scoring point in the first half, Chester showing its only offensive power at the outset of the game. H. Campbell kicked off and Chester recovered the punt. They made two first downs on line plunges and seemed headed for a touchdown, but a fumble ruined their chances.

The Blue and White at this stage could do little against Wile's men and punted. Chester failed to make its ten yards and kicked. The Blue and White then launched an offensive that took the ball to the Chester five yard line with P. English as the big gun in the attack. But here their attack ceased following a fumble that Chester recovered.

Campbell again booted at the start of the second half. Failing to gain the necessary yardage, East Liverpool punted. After a few vain thrusts at the line, Campbell returned the punt to McVey, bringing the ball up 15 yards.

The Blue and White at this stage of the game hit a stride that carried them rapidly on to their first course. Allison, English and Shaffer plunged the line for six straight first downs putting the ball in scoring position when the period ended. A line buck with English carrying the ball, scored the first touchdown at the opening of the final quarter. Larkins failed to make the additional point.

Forward passes figured prominently in the second touchdown. The opening of the aerial attack saw E. English get away with a 25-yard gain on a toss from his brother. Boone's squad then plunged the ball to the Chester five-yard line, and on the fourth down and goal to go, Captain English passed to Perry for six more points. Larkins again failed to kick goal.

The Chester eleven opened its bag of trick plays in the remaining minutes in a desperate attempt to score, but failed to get within striking distance of the Blue and White goal. Play ended near the center of the field.

Their average for the series was something in the neighborhood of six hits per game and one goes about as far with that sort of thing as a potato masher into a pin hole.

Most of the dear, old experts, in fact, looked for the series to end this afternoon, a circumstance which prompted the writer to make railroad reservations for Pittsburgh. The experts are right about as often as salt is used as a sweetener.

Coveleskie, however, was not the most heartening proposition in the world for the pro Washington gentlemen. The Pole gave a fine exhibition, even though he did lose the second game of the series; yet the fear was imminent that he showed the Pirates too many spitballs on that occasion.

Show a team of batters too many spit balls and they are likely to show you too many base hits, familiarity in this case being a fluent and palpable breeder of contempt.

Johnson's effort will go down as one of the best of world series history, the Pirates having much less of a chance against him than the box score indicated. The general idea here was that if they could extend the series to twenty games, Johnson probably would win ten of them and lost a little less than none at all.

LAUGHLIN COPS AT NEW CASTLE

Aldridge Scores Three of Four Goals Made by Locals.

Playing at Sharon, Pa., Saturday afternoon, the Homer Laughlin soccer club easily trimmed the Pennsylvanians, 4 to 1. The weather was cool and snappy and conductive to good soccer.

The Laughlins kicked against a strong wind but dominated most of the game after the first 10 minutes. Aldridge booted the first goal with Mortenson and Foster playing good ball. Aldridge broke loose and scored the second for Laughlins. Murray exhibited a high brand of ball for the home eleven but the Sharon team work in general, was ineffective against the Laughlin attack. The count was 2 to 0 at the half.

With the wind at their backs in the second half, the Laughlins held the upper hand through the second period, although the Sharon eleven scored once. This came when Nemis counted from a scrimmage in goal. Aldridge made it No. 3 for Laughlin and five minutes later Ferguson scored the fourth goal, leading the ball through from a corner kick.

The Sharon lads continually kicked the ball out of play in an effort to save their goal.

The lineup:

BALTIMORE WINS JUNIOR SERIES

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—The Baltimore Orioles, International league champions, captured the junior world series title yesterday, defeating Louisville of the American association, 5 to 2, in the eighth game. Baltimore won five contests against Louisville of the American association, 5 to 2, in the eighth game. Baltimore won five contests against Louisville's three.

Farnshaw, on the mound for the Orioles, was decidedly effective in the pinches. Baltimore got to Deberry, the Colonel hurler, who had tamed them effectively earlier in the series and drove him from the box in the fourth inning. Wilkinson, who relieved him, held the Birds scoreless in the latter frames, but the damage had been done.

Ohio State Has All-American Prospect and Other Stars

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—These five youngsters are blazing across the Big Ten football heavens this fall as newcomers on Ohio State's squad. All appear to have won their spurs as regulars and near-regulars although the season is only a few weeks old.

Foremost among them, judged by the amount of attention he has received is Elmer Marek, a Cedar Rapids, Iowa, product. A halfback, he is believed to have all the qualities to make for stardom. He weighs 172 pounds.

Then there's Freddy Grim, a Toledoan, and a former star at Scott high there. Grimm was looked upon as a likely prospect, but he exceeded all expectations in his first varsity game—that against Ohio Wesleyan. Reinjected into that fray when Bill Hunt, whose pal he has been for years, was hurt, Grim was the individual star of the day and scored Ohio State's lone touchdown.

Robin Bell, a product of the combined efforts of Parkersburg, W. Va., Lake Forest Academy (Illinois) and Erie, Pa., has had the call at quarterback for the Buckeyes. The job is new to him, for he played on the line in his "prep" days. He can kick, pass or run and Ohio State followers have great hopes of him. He weighs 173.

Helping to fill the gap in the center of the Buckeye line caused by the graduation of last year's guards and centers are Jack Ullery and Ted Meyers. Ullery, the brother of a former Penn State luminary, seems to have won a place at center. Meyers a product of Cleveland, O., is one of the guards. Ullery weighs 183 and Meyers 195 pounds. They and the other three are all sophomores.

SOX COP THIRD CLASH WITH CUBS

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—Ted Blankenship, the Texas cowboy, who battled Grover Alexander, the veteran Cub's ace, to a nineteen-inning, 2 to 2 draw, in the first game of the series, came back yesterday and put his club in the running by defeating the Cubs, 7 to 2, after the Nationals had won two straight. The series now stands two games for the Cubs and one for the White Sox.

Percy Lee Jones started for the Cubs in an effort to make it three straight but he was found wanting in the first inning. He walked three men and was touched for three solid blows which gave the White Sox a four-run lead which was never threatened.

Pirates Playing "Ridiculous" Baseball, Says Veteran Critic

By Sid Mercer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—To all intents and purposes the world series of 1925 is over. The Senators have their bundle all wrapped up and probably will put a handle on it and carry away the swag this afternoon. It looks as if the pay-off will take place here instead of in Pittsburgh tomorrow.

The stage is all set for the Griffman. Lee Meadows, who gave Walter Johnson a real fight for the first game, is a cripple. He has an infected elbow and has not quite recovered from the effects of a slight operation.

Washington has two or three possible starters. Pittsburgh will make what may be the final stand behind Victor Aldridge, who has the honor of pitching the only Pittsburgh victory.

Aldridge was not as effective in victory as Meadows was in defeat. He barely staggered through that game. Any Washington pitcher may beat him today the way the Pirates are going. They are a demoralized team.

A veteran baseball scribe in a press room discussion at the Raleigh last night briefly summed up the situation as follows:

"Pittsburgh," he said, "is playing the most ridiculous baseball I ever witnessed."

That is not far from the truth. Pie Traynor and Max Carey are about the only Pirate regulars who have played consistently good baseball. The others have retreated before the onslaughts of the American league champions. They have been outwitted, outmanaged, outpitched and outgamed.

A one-legged pitcher shut out the National league champions Sunday. Johnson tore a muscle in his right leg trying to stretch a single into a double in the third inning, when all of the runs of the game were scored.

Perceiving that he had no chance to beat the play at second base, old Barney pulled up short and went lame. He proceeded to the clubhouse immediately and sought first aid. The club trainer advised him to quit.

"Just tape up my leg and I'll try to stick," said Walter.

It was a long inning and when Johnson reappeared none of the 38,000 customers knew that he had lost one of his props. Johnson limped to and from the bench. During the last four innings he was a tired old gentleman, just in there throwing the ball and the Pirates got four of their six hits then. But they couldn't score on even a crippled Johnson. His arm was still good enough to offset the loss of a leg.

PLAY IN WEST PENN CUP GAMES

Laughlin Draws Mahoning Valley for First Match.

Local soccer fans have been awaiting anxiously the result of the draw in the West Penn cup competition, which consists of 32 clubs comprising all of the fastest teams in the western Pennsylvania district and a number from Ohio.

The Laughlin eleven, according to announcement today by Manager Jesse Shaw, has drawn the Mahoning Valleys, one of the strongest outfits in Ohio, for their first game, which will be played on October 31 at Newell.

Among the other contenders in the competition are Pittsburgh Rovers, Jeannette, Morgan, Curry, Castle Shannon, Youngstown, St. George, Niles and Mahoning Valleys.

The Laughlins will play on their home lot, Newell, for the first time this season next Saturday against New Castle in the Press Northwest division circuit.

The local eleven retains its high standing as one of the two undefeated teams of the circuit. B. Haugh, one of the cleverest exponents of the game in the league, will appear at center against New Castle. The Pennsylvanians have tied with New Brighton and the Glencoe Thistles in their last two games. Saturday's game will start at 3:45.

DUNDEE-HERMAN SCRAP IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A fight that promises to draw the ring rabid from firesides to the chilly reaches of the Polo grounds will provide the finale of the outdoor ring season here this afternoon.

Two matches which threatened to provide plenty of smacking topped the bill, to be fought for the benefit of the principals involved, and the National Sports Alliance.

Johnny Dundee, former featherweight champion who retired undefeated, will meet Babe Herman, the Californian, in a fifteen round quarrel. Herman had a victory in all but the decision in a recent match with Kid Kaplin, the title holder, of Connecticut.

HIGH GRIDDERS LAND HARD FOUGHT BATTLE WITH CHESTER, 12-0

Wile's Eleven Holds Blue and White Scoreless Until Final Period When Line Thrusts, Combined With Opportune Aerial Plays, Produce Pair of Touchdowns; Captain Paul English Star of East Liverpool Offense.

Braving Saturday's cold, wintry weather, more than a thousand football fans of the district saw the East Liverpool high school eleven down the plucky Chester crew, 12 to 0, on the Rock Springs park gridiron.

The proteges of Wile held their opponents scoreless for the first three quarters and during the first two periods, especially, more than held their own with Boone's charges. Both teams lost chances to score in the first half, Chester fumbling on the East Liverpool 15 yard mark and Boone's squad duplicating the act on Chester's five yard line.

In the second half the Blue and White gridders began to show their driving power, sweeping the Chesterites from their feet for six straight first downs, mostly by line plays that paved the way for their initial touchdown. Forward passes combined with line thrusts accounted for the second touchdown, an opportune toss from P. English to Perry putting the pigskin over the goal line.

Boone's squad registered 12 first downs to Chester's two and completed three out of seven passes while the home lads failed in three attempts.

Coach Boone started his first string squad although the lineup was shifted around to some extent. McVey and P. Shaffer replaced R. Shaffer and Reibel in the backfield, while Hall and Haines occupied the posts of McKim and Bough in the back line and E. English played P. Shaffer's end.

Paul English, as usual, was the East Liverpool offensive star, making probably more than half the ground gained by his team. Allison and Shaffer also showed up well.

The East Liverpool line contributed its full share toward the victory. Larkins, at center, exhibited good generalship in running the team throughout the contest.

Ewing, H. Campbell, Pinney and Shaw were the outstanding performers for the home eleven.

Neither team could reach the scoring point in the first half, Chester showing its only offensive power at the outset of the game. H. Campbell kicked off and Chester recovered the punt. They made two first downs on line plunges and seemed headed for a touchdown, but a fumble ruined their chances.

The Blue and White at this stage could do little against Wile's men and punted. Chester failed to make its ten yards and kicked. The Blue and White then launched an offensive that took the ball to the Chester five yard line with P. English as the big gun in the attack. But here their attack ceased following a fumble that Chester recovered.

Campbell again booted at the start of the second half. Failing to gain the necessary yardage, East Liverpool punted. After a few vain thrusts at the line, Campbell returned the punt to McVey, bringing the ball up 15 yards.

The Blue and White at this stage of the game hit a stride that carried them rapidly on to their first course. Allison, English and Shaffer plunged the line for six straight first downs putting the ball in scoring position when the period ended. A line buck with English carrying the ball, scored the first touchdown at the opening of the final quarter. Larkins failed to make the additional point.

Forward passes figured prominently in the second touchdown. The opening of the aerial attack saw E. English get away with a 25-yard gain on a toss from his brother. Boone's squad then plunged the ball to the Chester five-yard line, and on the fourth down and goal to go, Captain English passed to Perry for six more points. Larkins again failed to kick goal.

The Chester eleven opened its bag of trick plays in the remaining minutes in a desperate attempt to score, but failed to get within striking distance of the Blue and White goal. Play ended near the center of the field.

PLAN TO HARNESS TIDE FOR POWER

American Engineers Study Feasibility of Bay of Fundy Project.

St. John, N. B.—Much interest has been aroused throughout the Canadian maritime provinces, particularly in New Brunswick, by the proposed project to generate between 500,000 and 750,000 electrical horse power by harnessing the famous tides of the Bay of Fundy in two inlets near Eastport, Me. American hydraulic engineers investigating the feasibility of the project, pronounced it entirely practical from an engineering standpoint, adding that it presented one of the most promising developments in the electrical world in a decade.

The project is being sponsored by Dexter P. Cooper, American capitalist, who spent several weeks here recently in its interest. Mr. Cooper explained to members of the New Brunswick government at the time, that as soon as authority to begin with construction was obtained from Maine, application to proceed with the work would be made to the provincial and Dominion governments, as well as to the international joint waterways commission. Titles to certain lands on the New Brunswick side of the St. Croix river already have been searched for at the crown lands office in Fredericton, the provincial capital. A statewide referendum is to be taken in Maine to decide whether the sale of power will be permitted outside the state, provided the project materializes.

Fix Cost at $75,000,000.

The cost of harnessing the tides, Mr. Cooper estimates at $75,000,000, the financing of which has already been assured. It would require at least five years before actual power could be supplied after the work was started, Mr. Cooper said. When completed, however, a maximum of 750,000 horse power could be produced annually, enough and to spare for the entire New England states. Electric power at hitherto unheard-of rates would be available all over the provinces, he declared, and, according to engineers, could be transmitted as far west as Boston, Mass.

The Bay of Fundy is noted for having the highest and strongest tides in the world. These are caused by the peculiar submarine topography and the wedge shape of the adjacent shores. At St. John the tides rise 25 feet, causing on the lower St. John river the only natural phenomenon of its kind in existence, a reversible waterfall; that is to say, when the tide is coming in, the falls, which are some forty feet high, "drop" upstream, and when the tide is going out they "drop" downstream. At the end of the Bay of Fundy, between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the tide is the highest on earth, at slack water measuring between 60 and 70 feet. At Moncton, on Chignecto bay, the incoming tide travels with such great velocity that it attains a "bore" of six feet.

Coast Vessels' Graveyard.

Its fierce tides and storms, treacherous reefs and shoals, steep rocky coast and frequent heavy fogs make the Bay of Fundy one of the most perilous passages known to mariners. Yearly, dozens of coasting vessels and fishing schooners bound for the Grand Banks of Newfoundland are lost here. The early French explorers and missionaries have described its fury and turbulence when in tempest, and it was known to be the bane of the simple Acadian peasants who peopled its pleasanter shores some two centuries ago. Tales of havoc wrought by its great winds and tide-rips still live in the legendary lore of the descendants of the Micmac and Malliseet Indians found throughout this part of Canada today.

Plans and specifications for utilizing the potential power of the Fundy tides have been completed. The two inlets which have been selected are known as Passamaquoddy bay and Cobscook bay. The first is designated as the upper pool and the second as the lower pool. Both inlets are V-shaped, with their narrow necks, almost stopped by small island groups, meeting at Eastport.

At the mouth of the upper pool, which contains about 100 square miles of water, the plans call for the erection of a sea wall 4,000 feet long and 70 feet high. The wall is to be provided with 33 sluice gates. The mouth of the lower pool, containing 50 square miles of water, is to be closed by a similar gate, 2,400 feet long.

Between the two pools a separating wall 3,600 feet in length will be built on which power plants are to be located.

Theory of Operation.

The theory is this: The gates of the upper pool are to be opened only during flood tides, while the gates of the lower pool are to be opened only during ebb tides. This, according to the plans, will keep a supply of water in the upper pool, while the lower pool will be constantly emptied. The fall of the water from the upper pool through the turbines into the lower pool will create a continuous downfall regardless of whether the tides are falling or rising.

Several years ago when the idea of harnessing the tides was first promulgated, it was received with derision. To the lay mind it appeared altogether too visionary. The magnitude of the project as then set down was overwhelming even to experts in hydro electric development. Nothing of the kind had ever been undertaken. But since the idea received the sanction of some of the foremost men in the profession, experts and laymen alike have reversed their attitudes and opinions. Man has bent the most potent forces of nature to his will before; many are hopeful now that he will be able to wrest from the tides in the Bay of Fundy some small measure of that incalculable power which is still the plaything of the moon in the scheme of the universe.

Upper Basin States Protest Power Project Planed for Arizona

DENVER.—Plans are under way here today to put into concrete from the protests of the Upper Basin states—Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico—of the Colorado River campact group against granting by the Federal Power commission of the Girard license for the proposed Diamond Creek power project in Arizona.

Scores of such protests are pouring into the headquarters here of the Colorado River league, and they will be presented to the Federal Power commission at a hearing in Washington, D. C., on Oct. 20.

The only complaint that might be registered against Walter's pitching in this series had to do with his failure to watch base runners. Steals have been registered against Muddy Ruel, but the latter was almost an innocent bystander. Johnson virtually has been winding up with men on first base.

This play, whoch saw Judge break for second, draw a throw and then leave the situation open for Harris' dash to the plate, showed teh Senators were holding their heads.

Birthday Mixup Looms For Ohio Twins Born In Different Months

TOLEDO, O.—Birthday complications loom in the lives of Blossom and Junior Mayhugh. Although they are twins, Junior was born 17 days after the birth of Blossom. To add to the complexity they will have to explain away the rest of their lives, Blossom was born in one month and Junior in another. August 24 is Blossom's birthday and September 10 Junior's.

Mrs. A. J. Mayhugh, the mother sees nothing unduly surprising about the event which sent medical men, newspaper men and photographers beating at their door.

"Everybody is making so much fuss over the fact that the twins were born 17 days apart. When Blossom was born I knew there was to be another baby," she said. "But the doctor told me there was nothing to worry about. I felt fine and did two-family washings before Junior came. Both babies are healthy and are doing fine, although Blossom is nervous and fretful."

Michael Connolly, known as "Johnny of the Hills" died recently at Nenagh, England, at sixty-five after living twenty-five years in the open through rain, hail and snow.

To the Electors of East Liverpool City School District.

Notice is hereby given that the proposition to levy an additional tax, for school purposes, over and above the maximum authorized under Sections 5649-2, 5649-3A and 5649-3C General Code of Ohio and all limitations of law be submitted to the electors of the said East Liverpool city School District at the regular election, November 3, 1925.

PLAN TO HARNESS TIDE FOR POWER

American Engineers Study Feasibility of Bay of Fundy Project.

St. John, N. B.—Much interest has been aroused throughout the Canadian maritime provinces, particularly in New Brunswick, by the proposed project to generate between 500,000 and 750,000 electrical horse power by harnessing the famous tides of the Bay of Fundy in two inlets near Eastport, Me. American hydraulic engineers investigating the feasibility of the project, pronounced it entirely practical from an engineering standpoint, adding that it presented one of the most promising developments in the electrical world in a decade.

The project is being sponsored by Dexter P. Cooper, American capitalist, who spent several weeks here recently in its interest. Mr. Cooper explained to members of the New Brunswick government at the time, that as soon as authority to begin with construction was obtained from Maine, application to proceed with the work would be made to the provincial and dominion governments, as well as to the international joint waterways commission. Titles to certain lands on the New Brunswick side of the St. Croix river already have been searched for at the crown lands office in Fredericton, the provincial capital. A statewide referendum is to be taken in Maine to decide whether the sale of power will be permitted outside the state, provided the project materializes.

Fix Cost at $75,000,000.

The cost of harnessing the tides, Mr. Cooper estimates at $75,000,000, the financing of which has already been assured. It would require at least five years before actual power could be supplied after the work was started, Mr. Cooper said. When completed, however, a maximum of 750,000 horse power could be produced annually, enough and to spare for the entire New England states. Electric power at hitherto unheard-of rates would be available all over the provinces, he declared, and, according to engineers, could be transmitted as far west as Boston, Mass.

The Bay of Fundy is noted for having the highest and strongest tides in the world. These are caused by the peculiar submarine topography and the wedge shape of the adjacent shores. At St. John the tides rise 25 feet, causing on the lower St. John river the only natural phenomenon of its kind in existence, a reversible waterfall; that is to say, when the tide is coming in, the falls, which are some forty feet high, "drop" upstream, and when the tide is going out they "drop" downstream. At the end of the Bay of Fundy, between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the tide is the highest on earth, at slack water measuring between 60 and 70 feet. At Moncton, on Chignecto bay, the incoming tide travels with such great velocity that it attains a "bore" of six feet.

Coast Vessels' Graveyard.

Its fierce tides and storms, treacherous reefs and shoals, steep rocky coast and frequent heavy fogs make the Bay of Fundy one of the most perilous passages known to mariners. Yearly, dozens of coasting vessels and fishing schooners bound for the Grand Banks of Newfoundland are lost here. The early French explorers and missionaries have described its fury and turbulence when in tempest, and it was known to be the bane of the simple Acadian peasants who peopled its pleasanter shores some two centuries ago. Tales of havoc wrought by its great winds and tide-rips still live in the legendary lore of the descendants of the Micmac and Malliseet Indians found throughout this part of Canada today.

Plans and specifications for utilizing the potential power of the Fundy tides have been completed. The two inlets which have been selected are known as Passamaquoddy bay and Cobscook bay. The first is designated as the upper pool and the second as the lower pool. Both inlets are V-shaped, with their narrow necks, almost stopped by small island groups, meeting at Eastport.

At the mouth of the upper pool, which contains about 100 square miles of water, the plans call for the erection of a sea wall 4,000 feet long and 70 feet high. The wall is to be provided with 33 sluice gates. The mouth of the lower pool, containing 50 square miles of water, is to be closed by a similar gate, 2,400 feet long.

Between the two pools a separating wall 3,600 feet in length will be built on which power plants are to be located.

Theory of Operation.

The theory is this: The gates of the upper pool are to be opened only during flood tides, while the gates of the lower pool are to be opened only during ebb tides. This, according to the plans, will keep a supply of water in the upper pool, while the lower pool will be constantly emptied. The fall of the water from the upper pool through the turbines into the lower pool will create a continuous downfall regardless of whether the tides are falling or rising.

Several years ago when the idea of harnessing the tides was first promulgated, it was received with derision. To the lay mind it appeared altogether too visionary. The magnitude of the project as then set down was overwhelming even to experts in hydro electric development. Nothing of the kind had ever been undertaken. But since the idea received the sanction of some of the foremost men in the profession, experts and laymen alike have reversed their attitudes and opinions. Man has bent the most potent forces of nature to his will before; many are hopeful now that he will be able to wrest from the tides in the Bay of Fundy some small measure of that incalculable power which is still the plaything of the moon in the scheme of the universe.

Upper Basin States Protest Power Project Planed for Arizona

DENVER.—Plans are under way here today to put into concrete from the protests of the Upper Basin states—Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico—of the Colorado River compact group against granting by the Federal Power commission of the Girard license for the proposed Diamond Creek power project in Arizona.

Scores of such protests are pouring into the headquarters here of the Colorado River league, and they will be presented to the Federal Power commission at a hearing in Washington, D. C., on Oct. 20.

The only complaint that might be registered against Walter's pitching in this series had to do with his failure to watch base runners. Steals have been registered against Muddy Ruel, but the latter was almost an innocent bystander. Johnson virtually has been winding up with men on first base.

This play, whoch saw Judge break for second, draw a throw and then leave the situation open for Harris' dash to the plate, showed teh Senators were holding their heads.

Birthday Mixup Looms For Ohio Twins Born In Different Months

TOLEDO, O.—Birthday complications loom in the lives of Blossom and Junior Mayhugh. Although they are twins, Junior was born 17 days after the birth of Blossom. To add to the complexity they will have to explain away the rest of their lives, Blossom was born in one month and Junior in another. August 24 is Blossom's birthday and September 10 Junior's.

Mrs. A. J. Mayhugh, the mother sees nothing unduly surprising about the event which sent medical men, newspaper men and photographers beating at their door.

"Everybody is making so much fuss over the fact that the twins were born 17 days apart. When Blossom was born I knew there was to be another baby," she said. "But the doctor told me there was nothing to worry about. I felt fine and did two-family washings before Junior came. Both babies are healthy and are doing fine, although Blossom is nervous and fretful."

Michael Connolly, known as "Johnny of the Hills" died recently at Nenagh, England, at sixty-five after living twenty-five years in the open through rain, hail and snow.

All the railroads between Sydney and Brisbane, Australia, are to be made of uniform grade, at a cost of $17,500,000 so that passengers can make the trip without changing cars.

LEGAL NOTICE

To the Electors of East Liverpool City School District.

Notice is hereby given that the proposition to levy an additional tax, for school purposes, over and above the maximum authorized under Sections 5649-2, 5649-3A and 5649-3C General Code of Ohio and all limitations of law be submitted to the electors of the said East Liverpool city School District at the regular election, November 3, 1925.

Said extra tax levy is declared by the Board of Education of the said East Liverpool City school district to be necessary, because by the exercise of all authority under the limitations of law, the maximum amount that can be levied for school purposes will be insufficient to meet the current expenses of the schools of said school district and it is expedient to levy additional taxes by virtue of Section 5649-4, as amended by House Bill 58, as passed by the General Assembly of Ohio, and filed with the Secretary of State, April 21, 1925.

The question to be decided is whether or not a levy of not to exceed 3 mills, additional to that authorized under limitations of law, shall be made for school purposes for a period not to exceed 5 years.

Board of Education of The East Liverpool City School District.

"Flat to Let" Signs Exhibited as Curios . In French Metropolis

PARIS.—"Flat to Let" signs have gotten so scarse in Paris that the Municipal Museum has acquired five beautiful specimens and placed them on exhibition.

The donor, Monsieur Andre Laphan, in the letter announcing his gift to Professor Jean Robiquet, conservator of the museum, says, "I wish Parisians of the present generation to be able to see just what these signs were like. They will evoke memorirs of another epoch in the eyes of the boys and girls of today."

"Flat to Let" Signs Exhibited as Curios In French Metropolis

PARIS.—"Flat to Let" signs have gotten so scarse in Paris that the Municipal Museum has acquired five beautiful specimens and placed them on exhibition.

The donor, Monsieur Andre Laphan, in the letter announcing his gift to Professor Jean Robiquet, conservator of the museum, says, "I wish Parisians of the present generation to be able to see just what these signs were like. They will evoke memorirs of another epoch in the eyes of the boys and girls of today."

Judging the Baby.
Watch Him Grow Up.
Voltaire Scored Low.
Set a Good Example.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Copyrighted, 1925, by the Star Co.

A reverend gentleman has formulated some rules for judging human babies. He has made a table of "good points," the total footing up one hundred. He counts ten points for the sense of smell, and the same number of points for each of the other senses touch, taste, sight and hearing.

He allows ten points for evidence of physical health, ten points for looks, five for hair, five for teeth and so on.

The reverend gentleman judges a baby by the way it pets a cat. And he forms an opinion of the baby's intelligence by its interest in a music box or a gold watch held up before it.

As a matter of fact, no outward sign is of any value in judging the possibilities of a young child.

If you see a baby petting a cat skillfully or unskillfully, you can form no opinion of the baby—although you may be quite sure that the father and mother are foolish in these days not to know that a cat's fur is the carrier of the germs of diphtheria and other diseases, and should be kept far from a child.

The gentleman says: "A perfect baby must be good-looking," and he also says that it must have a good disposition, a ready smile, good hair, and teeth that appear fairly early. It also must have a good digestion.

All of which things are pleasing; not one of them is essential. Many of the very best and most wonderful babies are weak, ill-tempered and feeble at the beginning of their lives, because a brain excessively developed takes more than its share of the child's blood and leaves the rest of the body weak.

The great genius and fighting man, Voltaire, is one of the best examples of what may come from an unpromising baby.

As an infant Voltaire had fits, indigestion, weak legs and his face probably looked like a pale green, frostbitten, little sour apple.

If the Abbe de Chateauneuf had not taken a wonderful interest in the baby and dipped him in hot water when he had fits, and regulated his diet, Voltaire would have died in infancy, the world would have lost one of its great fighting men, and the French revolution might have been delayed.

Voltaire as a baby would probably not have scored 20 points out of the hundred in the reverend gentleman's list of points.

The reverend gentleman's ideas would be first rate in the judging of a bull pup or prize kitten.

In a human baby everything of importance is hidden away under the thin hair, in the funny little skull. You never can tell what is going on inside of that wonderful temple of the brain until infancy and childhood have passed and work has begun.

The great thing in human life is the

Carl Willis, Aged 11, Run Down by Auto; Police Seek Driver

Police are searching for an unidentified automobile driver who is alleged to have run down and injured Carl Willis, 11-year-old Mulberry street youth, near the foot of Broadway on the River road, at 8 o'clock Saturday night.

Willis had just stepped off the River road bus and was crossing Broadway to the sidewalk when he was struck and knocked unconscious. The driver, who was headed north on Broadway, failed to stop, according to the police report.

Another auto owner obtained the license number of the car and turned it over to the police. The driver is said to be a resident of Salem.

The injured boy was taken to the City hospital. His lip and forehead were lacerated. After his injuries were dressed by Dr. J. W. Chetwynd, he was removed to his home in East End.

Robbers Attempt To Loot Secrist Home, Vine Street

Robbers made an unsuccessful attempt to loot the home of H. J. Secrist, 419 Vine street, last night.

When Secrist returned home at 8 o'clock, he heard a noise in the cellar. He went to investigate but the would-be culprits fled through a window. Police believe that the prowlers had just entered the cellar and did not have time to reach the upstairs when the visit was interrupted. So far as the owner was able to ascertain, nothing was taken.

This is the third time that the Secrist home has been entered.

VIC ALDRIDGE IS SENT AGAINST 'COVEY' FOR SECOND TIME IN SERIES

SENATORS QUOTED 6 TO 1 TO WIN TITLE; SHORTER PRICE ON CLASH

Spitball Pitcher Hopes for Better Support From Team Mates as he Gets Call for Mound Duty Despite Defeat in Second Game on Pittsburgh Diamond.

GRIFFITH STADIUM, WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The condemned man who awaits the hangman's noose in his death cell had nothing on the Pittsburgh Pirates this afternoon as they went into the fifth and what may prove the final game of the world series with the Washington Senators, a game that was to determine whether immediate death or a brief reprieve was to be visited upon the victim. As the game began Washington was out in front by three victories to one and needed but another to fall heir to its second world championship title in as many years.

The Senators chances were quoted at anything up to six to one, with no takers, but the price was much shorter on the result of today's game because it was figured that Vic Aldridge, who pitched the Pirates into their lone victory, might prove a repeater. It was pretty generally understood an hour before game time that Aldridge would be the pitching choice, Lee Meadows having injured his arm.

Stanley Coveleskie, the great salivary relic who finished second to Aldridge on the occasion in question, was named by Stanley Harris as his overnight pitching choice. He intimated, however, that he would look the situation over thoroughly before definitely committing himself.

Scalpres' Suffer Losses.

Coveleskie, however, didn't figure altogether in the light of a loser going on against a winner. As a matter of fact, Pittsburgh didn't win that game so much as Washington lost it, errors figured heavily in the scoring of the winning runs.

Today, the sky was dark with the threat of impending rain and afforded an excellent screen for a fast ball pitcher of which Aldridge is one. Neither is it exactly the kind of a day that might be calculated to bring comfort to a team trying to fathom the eccentric breaks of a spitball.

The crowd was the smallest of the series, the fans staying away in droves. They simply took a run out on the series afetr yesterday's game, interest being purely academic.

In consequence, poor but honest ticket scalpers, became more honorable than ever, quoting prices below the box office rate.

City's Population 21,989, According To Census Bureau

The population of East Liverpool as of July 1, this year, is estimated at 21,989, according to census calculations which have just been made public by the United States Department of Commerce.

This represents a gain of 578 over the 1920 when 21,411 residents were listed within the corporate limits. The estimate in 1923 was 20,779.

Salem's population increase during the last five years is greater than that of East Liverpool. This year's report gives the Quaker City 11,075, an increase of 770 over the figures for 1920. The population in 1923 was estimated at 10,975.

No figures are given for towns with less than 10,000 persons, thus excluding all other Columbiana county communities. Cleveland showed the largest growth with an e[illegible] gain of 140,000 during the la[illegible]s.

LOUIS MILLER AWAITS DEATH SENTENCE FOR SLAYING MAN

Found Guilty of Killing George Rodgers, Farmer.

ASKS NEW TRIAL

First Degree Murder Decision Given by Beaver Judge.

Louis Miller, 58-year-old farm laborer, probably will pay the death penalty for killing George Rodgers, 40, Beaver county farmer and a former resident of East Liverpool, during a quarrel on the Rodgers' farm three miles from Beaver, July 30, last.

In a decision handed down in Beaver county common pleas court at Beaver Saturday, Judge Frank B. Reader, held Miller guilty of murder in the first degree which carries with it capital punishment.

Attorney Henry Wilson, Beaver, defense counsel, immediately filed a motion for a new trial. Judge Reader deferred passing of sentence until he rules on the motion.

Pleads No Defense.

Upon arraignment two weeks ago, Miller entered a plea of no defense to the murder charge. Testimony to determine the degree of guilt was taken September 28 and 29, but the judge reserved his decision until Saturday.

Miller is alleged to have shot Rodgers when the latter is said to have taken away the keys to the laborer's automobile. Miller declared he remembered nothing of the shooting, admitting that he had been drinking earlier in the day. He was arrested immediately following the shooting.

Rodgers is a son of William Rodgers, Sr., of Lisbon street. His brother, William Rodgers, Jr., and a sister, Mrs. James Thies, also reside here.

Luggage is Taken From Station at Salem.

Field Major Joseph Hughes, of the Salvation Army today offered a reward for the return of a traveling bag, containing $400 in money and other valuables, belonging to his niece, Miss Ethel Smith, formerly of Riverside, Cal., which was taken from the Pennsylvania railroad station at Salem, Saturday night.

The bag disappeared as Mrs. Hughes wife of Major Hughes, was returning to her home in East Liverpool from California, where she had been called by the death of her sister, Mrs. B. C. Smith of Riverside. She was accompanied by her niece, a daughter of her late sister, who plans to make her home in East Liverpool.

The two women left the train at Salem at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night and sat in the railroad depot, awaiting the Y. & O. car. When they boarded the car Miss Smith neglected to take her traveling bag, which not only contained the money but many of the personal effects of her mother, including her will, beads, two bunches of keys and other trinkets.

A friend of the family returned to Salem on the next car and attempted to locate the bag but without results. It had been carried off in the meantime by some person who entered the station.

OIL MACHINERY TO TRY MITCHELL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The machinery of the war department to court-martial Col. William Mitchell for his attacks on aircraft policies moved another step today.

Major General John L. Hines, chief of staff of the army, finished his report on the Mitchell case and sent it along to Acting Secretary of War Davis for action. Hines' report, it is understood, recommends court-martial. Davis is expected to approve the recommendation.

M'KECHNIE'S PIRATES AND GIRL SCRIBE ARE WHITE HOUSE VISITORS

"It is a Pleasure," Says President Coolidge as he Shakes Hands of National League Pennant Winners.

REVEALS PRETTY BALLDOM ROMANCE

Glenn Wright, Shortstop, is Devoted to Miss Muriel Clarke, Daughter of Fred Clarke, Reporter Observes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The reporter at the next desk said to me, "Are you going to the White House?" I hate practical jokers, and so I regarded the reporter with scorn and replied sacrastically, "Why, of course, I'm stopping there, haven't you heard?" But the laugh was on me after all, because we did go over to the White House, when it was made clear to me that President CooMdge was about to receive the Pittsburgh baseball players and that the newspaper people would be admitted, we ran over, myself several paces in the lead.

We found the presidential mansion sitting white and huge and cool in the midst of the green lawns. A man in a uniform so festooned with gold braid that I thought he must be secretary of the navy, at least, but who proved to be only a doorman, directed us to the executive offices. These are in a far wing, and there we found assembled many of our fellow scribes and a flying squadron of cameramen. Officials bustled about and had a moment of panic as one of them said "What's that girl doing here?" Apparently he thought I had stolen my press badge or that it was a sorority pin. Upon being assured that I was a bonafide journalist, he consented to allow he to stay. It was a great relief. I had entertained visions of myself being tossed out of the White House like a bum out of a bar.

SMITHS FERRY BRIDGE WORKER IS DEAD AFTER 15-FOOT PLUNGE

Charles C. Kinsey, Inspector, Succumbs in Hospital.

SKULL FRACTURED

Fatally Injured After Saving Fellow Employe From Fall.

Charles C. Kinsey, 66, Smiths Ferry, Pennsylvania highway department bridge inspector, died in the City hospital at 4:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon as a result of a fractured skull sustained shortly before the noon hour Thursday in a 15-foot fall from the center pier of the new road bridge being erected across Beaver creek, east of the state line.

Falls When Plank Tips.

One side of Kinsey's skull was crushed when his head struck the foundation of the pier of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company's bridge, which adjoins the new highway span.

The inspector was standing on the center pier of the traction company bridge, when the trouser leg of a carpenter who was working on the new road bridge, was caught on a number, which was being used to hoist steel frame work into position. The carpenter was being forced to the edge of the pier when Kinsey jumped to his rescue and released him.

The heavy plank on which Kinsey was standing on the pier tipped and he fell to the concrete foundation of the street car bridge. He was brought to the hospital in an automobile owned by the Harris Engineering company of Pittsburgh, bridge contractors, and attended by Dr. W. A. Hobbs.

Funeral Service Tuesday.

Kinsey was born at Georgetown, March 18, 1859, and spent his entire life in this district. He was field foreman for the South West Penn Pipe Line company for 30 years, retiring in 1919. About three months ago he accepted the bridge inspectorship.

Kinsey's death marks the second in the family within two months. Mrs. Bertha Kinsey, his wife, died August 15.

He is survived by eight sons and three daughters, John and Robert of Okmulgee, Oklahoma; Clyne of Georgetown; Maize, East Liverpool; Louis, Charles Edward and William, at home; Mrs. James M. Green, Midland, and Misses Sara and Cora Kinsey, also at home. One brother, John S. Kinsey, of Georgetown, also survives.

The body was removed to the late home.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, with the Rev. Mr. Zellers, pastor of the Georgetown Methodist Episcopal church, in charge. Burial will be made in the Georgetown cemetery.

AIR MAIL PILOT'S BODY FOUND SITTING ERECT IN WRECKED PLANE

Charles H. Ames Killed When he Crashes Into Densely Wooded Mountainside Near Bellefonte, Pa.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 12.—Formal investigation of the death of U. S. Air Mail Pilot Charles H. Ames, 32, of Cleveland, opened today under the direction of C. F. Egge, superintendent of air mail. The aviator's body was found six miles east of here, sitting erect in the wrecked plane, after a search of 10 days.

The investigators, H. B. Shaver, eastern division air mail superintendent; F. J. Gerhaus, manager of the Bellefonte flying field, and Air Mail Pilot J. D. Hiel, convened here, but later adjourned to the Nittany mountain range, near Hecla beacon, where a part of the searchers, led by L. H. Mullins, found the body.

In view of the report of Coroner W. R. Heaton, of Center county, that the aviator died from fracture of the frontal bone, the investigators, after viewing the wrecked plane, were expected to submit a formal finding to the postmaster general that Ames' death was unavoidable and occurred while the pilot was in pursuit of duty.

Ames' parents, who live in Los Angeles, wired Paul Ames, the pilot's brother, to have the body cremated and send the ashes to Jackson, Mich., where the family has a burial plot. Cremation probably will be in Philadelphia.

HIGHS LOSE AT DOVER, 12 TO 6

Coach Klinck Satisfied With Team's Showing in Opener.

The Orange and Black eleven of 1925, a light and inexperienced outfit, save those two or three veterans who came back from last year, Saturday afternoon opened their campaign at Dover and made an impressive showing, in view of their qualifications, in holding the home crew to a 12 to 6 victory.

Coach Earl Klinck, former Denison university athlete, who has been confronted with numerous obstacles in his task of whipping a representative team into shape this fall from a batch of material that was mostly green and lacking in weight, is satisfied with the showing of his squad against the veteran Dover combine.

Nervous and slightly off color for the first few minutes of play, inasmuch as it was their first attempt of the season, Wellsville gridders permitted the home eleven to get the jump at the outset, and before they could stem the Dover attack, two touchdowns had been rolled up, both of which were made in the first quarter.

The clash was an even affair in the second period, with the Klinck outfit staging a desperate comeback of brave proportions, climaxed in the second half when the locals crossed the Dover goal line for their lone touchdown.

Had the Wellsville eleven been able to play a week ago, as scheduled, and some of the rough spots thereby smoothed off, the result of Saturday's game, in the opinion of Coach Klinck, might have been different.

The Dover eleven exhibited only a criss cross and reverse play which they attempted frequently during the engagement. It worked in the first quarter. After that the Doverites' favorite formations were squelched with regularity.

The Dover eleven attempted three forward passes and failed to make any of the attempts good.

On the other hand, the Orange and Black, varied their line and flank attacks with a few aerial plays and one of these thrusts finally produced a touchdown.

The Dover squad failed in the second half to get within scoring distance of the Wellsville goal. Klinck's crew, prior to their touchdown, successfully pounded the Dover line for gains, carrying the ball to within 10 yards of the goal line. Here Fullback Walley Pignatore heaved a short pass over the goal line. End Kenney grabbed it into his arms, but, off his balance at the time, juggled the pigskin and it fell out of his arms—into the hands of Captain John Campbell and the touchdown was made.

The two teams, in general, were more or less evenly matched, but the experience gained by the Dovers in the several games they have played this season, was a big factor on their success.

Coach Klinck used the following lineup: Kenney and Calhoun, ends; Hepp and Magill, tackles; Holliday and Klavaughn, guards; Ferrall, center; Miller, quarter; Campbell and Eschbacher, halves; Pignatore, fullback.

D'Anito, "little brother," of the D'Anito who starred a year or so ago, substituted for Kenney. Iddings took Hepp's place and McLaughlin replaced Eschbacher in the third quarter. The entire squad, regulars and substitutes, played good football. With the exception of Tackle Hepp, who sustained a bruised side, the squad emerged unscathed and will no doubt be in first class condition for their game here next Saturday with Chester.

C. & P. GRIDDERS WIN FIRST TILT

The lid was lifted off the amateur football season at Central park Saturday when the C. & P. team defeated the Scholastics, of East Liverpool, by a score of 6-0.

Manager Brooks surprised the fans by presenting a light, but well organized and thoroughly drilled squad, which executed its plays with accuracy and precision. The teams were evenly matched and for three-quarters worked back and forth in midfield. Wellsville's only opportunity to score was by a 15-yard penalty, due to a Scholastic tripping a Wellsville man on a long-end run, which brought the ball within the five-yard line, and after two attempts was carried over by Halfback Zoeckler.

Gallia missed the try for goal and this ended the scoring. The defensive playing of Chick Pignatore, Harry Brooks and Zoechler stood out as the feature of the Wellsville performance. Chappy Finlay was the only consistent ground gainer for the Scholastics. Neither team had any success with forward passes. The gains were made mostly on straight football.

Manager Brooks has the nucleus of a fast, light team and with a little more practice, will make it a strong contender for any team its weight.

TODD FACTOR IN MUSKINGUM WIN

The playing of Meryl Todd, of Wellsville, former Wellsville high school student, was no small factor in Muskingum's victory over Hiram in an Ohio conference engagement last Saturday.

The Muskies won by a score of 12 to 7. Todd played the entire game at a halfback post.

Attorney Files Suit.

An action has been filed in common pleas court by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., and Henry M. Fair and Mrs. Henry M. Fair, of Canton, for an amount said to be due on a contract between Mr. O'Grady and Mr. Fair.

Fair was employed by the railroad company and had occasion to file an action against the company. After the company was notified of the contract between Fair and Mr. O'Grady the company made a settlement of the claim of Fair direct with him. The company then offered Mr. O'Grady a check for money he had loaned Fair in full settlement of all claims held by Mr. O'Grady against Fair, which was refused.

A copy of the contract between Mr. O'Grady and Fair is attached to and made a part of the petition now on file.

DeMille's 'Ten Commandments' Comes to Ceramic Wednesday

Gorgeous Biblical Episode Will be Presented for Four Days at Popular Prices.

The Red Sea and San Francisco are about five thousand miles apart. The Israelites led by Moses on their exodus from Egypt are separated by about 40 centuries from Sunday afternoon jazz dancing today. Yet Cecil B. DeMille has managed to put them together convincingly in his picturization of "The Ten Commandments." This great Paramount picture is coming to the Ceramic theater on Wednesday where it will be shown for the first time at popular prices.

The modern story opens on a devout mother driving one of her two sons from home because he will not "apologize to God" for what she believes sacrilege. The son goes out into the world, not bitterly, but boyishly exultant, to smash every commandment. Then DeMille develops his theme that "if you try to break the Ten Commandments they'll break you."

A gorgeous biblical episode, done in natural colors, is enacted by such popular players as Estelle Taylor, Theodore Roberts, James Neill, Charles de Roche and Lawson Butt. The two million persons who have paid from one to two dollars to see this greatest of Paramount pictures testify that the highest point the cinema art has yet reached, has been achieved in this most ambitious directorial effort of Cecil B. DeMille.

prolongnation of the days of infancy—a fact first adequately emphasized by John Fiske.

During the long months and even years of infancy, while the child sits in its mother's lap, developing its brain while the body remains undeveloped, the child acquires those characteristics which separate it from an animal.

At the age when a baby can do little more than crawl, all of the other animals on the earth are thoroughly independent individuals, with families of their own.

It is because the human baby goes through that long period of brain developing in infancy that the scientist can truly say that the difference between a human baby and the most highly developed of the monkeys is, intellectually speaking, far greater than the difference between a monkey an a blade of grass.

Watch your baby and form your own opinion—don't let anybody else do that for you.

Remember that the sickly, delicate child is more apt than any other to develop into a human being of genius, and is worth all the care that you can give.

Don't be discouraged because your little boy or girl fails to possess all the imaginary qualities of little Eva.

Remember that a child before its birth passes through every phase of animal life on this planet. Remember that after birth a child goes through all the different phases of animal mental life. The little baby startivg at birth duplicates in the development of the brain the brain development of the various animals, beginning with the lowest form of life.

The first sensation that a baby is capable of feeling in its mind is fear. The second is anger. The third is jealousy—every observant mother knows this.

The higher intelligence cames later.

Every normal boy is a little savage, every normal girl is a little wild Indian.

Don't waste your time and torment your children trying to take out of them that which is natural and that which time itself will eliminate.

Keep them healthy, keep them in the fresh air. Keep fresh air in their bedrooms at night.

Set them a good example of dignity, honesty, truth-telling and affection between father and mother.

Teach them to eat slowly if you possibly can.

Never strike a child—the man or woman unable to educate and develop a child through the power of the mind is unfit to have children in a civilized community.

Hope to the very last that your child will turn out to be a genius. And if he does not, remember that you did not either, and that after all he can only be what you and your ancestors made him.

FIRE DESTROYS TIFFIN PARK

Loss Estimated at $100,000 as Pavilions are Burned.

TIFFIN, Oct. 12 — Meadowbrook park burned to the ground early today. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The fire, which broke out at 3:30 this morning, was of undetermined origin. The pavilion and adjoining buildings were completely razed.

Fire apparatus from Tiffin battled unsuccessfully with the flames.

Meadowbrook has been a storm center over the Sunday dance law question. Its operators won their fight to hold Sunday dances two weeks ago, when the grand jury refused to return indictments.

"Divine Healing" Teacher Will Face Presbytery Charge

The Rev. J. Lyle Shaw, former pastor of the United Presbyterian church of Toronto, and who assisted in a series of revival meetings conducted by John Sproul, Pittsburgh, World war veteran here about two years ago, will appear before the Steubeville Presbytery, which meets at Grant Hills, near Zanesville, this week, to answer a charge brought by the Cleveland Presbytery because of his teachings on "divine healing."

The Rev. Mr. Shaw, who resigned his charge at Toronto about two years ago to enter the evangelistic field, is charged with following "a policy contrary to the peace, good order and reputation of the United Presbyterian church." In particular, he is charged with having caused such a decrease in membership of the Brooklyn church at Cleveland that it was compelled to appear before the home missions board for financial aid.

Rev. Mr. Shaw denies the charges brought against him in Cleveland. Should he be found guilty of the charge, he faces expulsion from the ministry.

SCHOOL PUPIL AUTO VICTIM

Columbiana Village Youth Killed on E. Palestine Road.

Funeral services for Harry D. Hum, 16-year old Columbiana high school student, who was killed Friday night when struck by an automobile on the Columbiana-East Palestine road, were conducted at the Columbiana Reformed church today. Burial was made in the Columbiana cemetery.

The lad, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Park Hum, who resides about two miles east of Columbiana, was enroute to the home of his grandfather, W. W. Humm, when he was run down by a car driven by Carl J. Grogan, of Akron, who claims he failed to see the youth in the road in time to avert the accident.

Realizing that he had struck something Grogan went to the W. W. Hum home where he obtained a lantern. He was accompanied by the elder Hum and they found the unconscious form of the boy in the road.

Grogan hurried to Columbiana for a physician but the lad died before medical aid reached him. His death is thought to have been due to internal injuries. Grogan went to Columbiana where he reported the accident to the town marshal, giving his name and address and promising to report if wanted.

MADDEN HITS U. S. AIR POLICY

Flays Army and Navy Methods and Offers His Remedy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Accusing the army and navy of squandering "millions of dollars in a meaningless experimental aviation orgy," Representative Martin B. Madden, Republican of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, today recommended to the president's air board a new military aviation policy directly linking private aircraft manufacturers to the national defense.

Madden flayed the present policies of the army and navy as wasteful and charged both air services with a flat "failure" in their efforts to develop military aviation.

Madden declared that if congress carried out the demands of "some of these bureau people," it would bankrupt the government.

Madden took hte stand primarily to defend congress against charges by high army and navy officers that a "lack of founds" had ruined the nation's military air forces. Citing statistics to disprove the charges, Madden told the board that congress had appropriated a total of $1,997,370,000 for military aviation during the war and $434,383,287 more between 1919 and 1924. In the last five years, he added, congressional appropriations for aviation averaged $86,676,657 a

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—The navy entered its defense today to charges that the dirigible Shenandoah, which crashed with a loss of 14 lives, was sent on a tour of the middle west for "political and advertising" purposes.

Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of operations, and one of his first assistants, Capt. D. S. Lincoln, both entered vehement denials before the naval court of inquiry that anything but proper naval purposes actuated them in sending the big ship on her ill-fated mission over the protest of Commander Zachary Lansdowne.

Air Mail Pilot's

Many times since Ames disappeared on the night of October 1, searching planes flew over the spot where he crashed, but observers could not see his wrecked plane because it was hidden from view by four giant trees, which fell over the machine.

An examination showed Ames' plane contained sufficient gasoline to have enabled the aviator to fly to Bellefontaine. This indicates that Ames was not forced down, as originally believed, but that he probably was flying low, looking for the Bellefonte beacon, when his plane crashed into the tall trees.

Death was instantaneous, the coroner reported. Beside the body lay two distress flares and the engine ignition was turned on there was no evidence of fire following the crash and the mail Ames carried was intact. This was rushed to Bellefonte, placed aboard another mail plane and sent to Chicago. Ames loaded the mail in New York.

John D. Earmitt, 15, a member of McMullin's searching party was the actual finder of Ames and his plane. There was a reward of $1,000 for the aviator's recovery. It was posted by the Pilots' association of America, the air mal pilots and Harry Humpries, Cleveland, a friend of Ames.

Ames was the second air mail pilot to lose his life in the treacherous Pennsylvania mountain ranges. B. H. Pearson crashed into the mountains near Curwensville in March, 1924, but his body was found several hours later.

Paul Ames, flying here from Clarion to claim his brother's body, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when his plane failed west of Dubois, Pa., however, it was maneuvered safely to the ground.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Pilots of the air mail service will not be sent into weather conditions that are "plainly extra-harzardous", Postmaster General New said today in a statement deploring the death of Pilot Charles Ames.

President Decides To Attend Fifth Game of Classic

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—President Coolidge decided this morning to attend the fifth game of the world series this afternoon between Pittsburgh and Washington.

Because he has an engagement, to meet the new minister from Czecho Slovakia, the president, however, will not be able to remain for the entire game.

McKechnie's Pirates

hind them. Presently the line began moving down the corridor, and we found ourselves next in a spacious office. I could see the Pirates ahead of me disappearing one by one. Simultaneously I could hear a sepulchral voice calling out their names and another voice, oddly nasal, saying something unintelligible. Then, without any pause at all, the sepulchral voice began announcing newspaper names. "Mr. Smith, Pittsburgh Gazette Times;" "Mr. Boyle, Chronicle Telegraph" and so on. And the next I knew, I was mumbling my own name, and the announcer was repeating it, and a firm hand was closing mine briefly. "It is a pleasure," said Calvin Coolidge.

We were compelled to go out of that room as quickly as we had entered it, but in one lingering glance over my shoulder I was able to register several impressions. A circular room, carpeted in green, with white walls and woodwork and without furniture. A man standing just inside the door, a man of medium height with sandy hair sparse on top who shook hands and said over and over in his peculiar voice, "It is a pleasure." And opposite him the tall dark individual who spoke the names, who looked more majestic and mighty than he.

Detects Baseball Romance

Later in the evening I was a guest at a theatre party which also included Glenn Wright, of the Pirates and pretty Muriel Clarke, daughter of Fred Clarke, adviser to Manager McKechnie of the Pittsburgh club. I thus had a chance to observe one of the flourishing romances of balldom for the good looking young shortstop has been markedly devoted to Miss Clarke for some time and their engagement has been frequently rumored. Wright is a graduate of the University of Missouri, class of 21. His first baseball job was with Kansas City, which sold him to the Pirates for $25,000. The day he came to Pittsburgh in 1924 he stepped right into the lineup. And has never been out of it since. Despite this record he is modest and unassuming and even a little shy. A remark illustrative of this was made to me by Miss Clarke herself. She said that Friday afternoon, when rain cancelled the game, she took Glenn out to National Park seminary, the fashionable finishing school at which she was formerly a pupil, 'and I wish you could have seen him with all those girls," she laughed. "He was fussed to death."

President Attends Game

At the games Saturday afternoon I saw the president again. With Mrs. Coolidge, he occupied a flag-draped box just behind the Washington dugout, whence he heaved the first ball. He wore a tan felt hat and two overcoats. I know because I saw him put on the second one. Mrs. Coolidge was dressed in a sealskin coat and a small black hat with a side trimming of ribbon. They stayed till the end of the game and applauded the sensational plays and stood up when the seventh inning came and otherwise comported themselves like real fans, though I understand that his appearance on Saturday was the first the president has made at the ball park since the day the season opened and the first within anyone's memory when he has ever sat through to the end. He showed good sportsmanship, for the temperature was such as to send even a hardened New Englander scurrying for home and fireside. "This is what is known as keeping cool with Coolidge," I wrote with numb hand on my scorecard.

Dinner at Press headquarters on the tenth floor of the Hotel Raleigh, where all newspaper scribes are being fed thrice daily at the expense of the Washington club, was a hectic affair Saturday night. Discussions of the great theme of the hour, namely "Did Rice make that catch in right field or did some fan in the right field bleachers hand him the ball?" Flew thick and fast and the air particularly in the vicinity of the Pittsburgh writing contingent was quite blue with invective.

Downfall of Yde

Of the game today there is little to be said except that the stands were more full and the noses less red and the Washington rooters wilder. The score tells the rest.

Two things stand out in my mind clearly more clearly than Johnson's super work, or Goslin's second home run of the series, or anything. One is the downfall of a young pitcher's hopes and the other is the death of an old pitcher's glory. Unprofessional and highly femine though it is to be softhearted about a hardboiled proposition like baseball, I could have wept for Yde when, after three runs, two of them homers, had been scored on him, they took him out. There he was. He had given his great chance and he had lasted less than three innings. He walked off the field with bowed head. No cheering rang in his ears. No friendly hands clasped him on the back. Even the mascot usually so ready with sweaters to be wrapped worshipfully about broad shoulders, ignored him, and so he vanished into the dugout, the man who didn't come through.

And by and by, toward the last of the game, Babe Adams went into the box. Sixteen years ago he won a world series for the Pirates alone and singlehanded. Today his exhibition was pathetic. He is old; 43 is very old in baseball. I think I feel sorrier for him even than I did for Yde. Yde may come back but the great Babe Adams is finished.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Doe Norris

CHAPTER 66.

J. Reginald Ainsley, guarding the portal to the larger apartment in the house in Apple Tree road into which he had moved Amoura, managed to keep out all the numberless callers, and she slept undisturbed until late afternoon. Then, refreshed, and the whole adventure seeming more like a nightmare than a reality, she insisted on getting up.

"We're going home tonight," J. Reginald announced. "I've already arranged for a compartment, and we'll slip out the back way about 8:30. It probably would be better to go by automobile, except that it would tire you out too much."

Amoura, giving her nails a much needed manicure, regarded him speculatively. "I'm not going with you, old thing."

J. Reginald, his nerves worn thin by the ordeal of keeping out insistent reporters and a varied assortment of the curious, replied sharply, "No more of this nonsense, Amoura. You're GOING HOME."

She merely shrugged and did not reply.

"Your mother simply will not rest until she sees you. I ——."

"I know, Daddy," she said, tenderly, "I know, but if I go I'll be a deserter. I haven't achieved yet what I set out to do. This hasn't made me ——."

"Oh, forget that nonsense. You've shown us you can make your own way. You haven't failed ——."

There was an insistent ringing at the door. "Oh, damn!" he exclaimed. He got up from the edge of the bed. "I'll have to go, if I don't they'll knock the door down. Why, one reporter climbed in the fire escape this morning, and almost succeeded in getting in."

Amoura, thing of McGargle, smiled. She heard her father making explanations to someone, and then heard the clear tones of La Houbierre's voice. 'Let her come in, Daddy," she called.

Madame came in, with a grand smile at J. Reginald that caused his face to lighten, his eyes showing appreciation of her charming figure. Hans Van Pugh paused in the doorway. Amoura, receiving La Houbierre's kiss, saw him, and invited him in.

With the conventional expressions of joy over her rescue out of the way, La Houblerre came to the point. "I hope that Mademoiselle is going to favor my salon with her presence again?"

"I would like to, but ——." She was thinking of staring eyes. She must, she decided, seek anonymity again.

"And we simply must have you in the revue," Hans Van Pugh smiled.

Her reply to him was more definite. "No, Mr. Van Pugh, I couldn't appear in the show again. People wouldn't be coming to see me then as one of La Houbierre's mannequins but as the heroine of a sensational kidnaping. No, I couldn't."

"But ——." Hans Van Pugh's replay dissolved in his throat; he could think of nothing effective to say.

"I will let you know in a few days," Amoura said to Madame smiling beneficently. "I hope Mademoiselle will reconsider." She was using the charming manner she reserved for her very best patrons. J. Reginald showed her out with an excess of courtesy.

"La Houbierre seems to have made a hit with you, old thing," Amoura observed when he returned to her presence.

"Charming woman, charming woman!"

"Daddy, when are you going to learn to behave yourself?"

J. Reginald did not drop his mask, and his face was expressionless. He lit a cigar, and escaped an answer as the phone rang.

"It's a Mr. Johnson," he called from the phone. "He says he knows you'll want to talk to him."

"Oh, that's the man who got me out of that place, you know. Ask him to come up."

She was surprised by Johnson's appearance. He was turned out in modish fashion with spats and cane, and a colorful 'kerchief flowing from his upper coat pocket.

"You've come for the reward, I suppose," she said sweetly.

"No, er ——." He gleamed at J. Reginald.

"This is my father," she said, and went on, "I don't know how to thank you enough for your splendid aid."

"I'm sorry I had to desert you. . . ." He apparently was ill at ease.

"Oh, I heard your conversation, and knew you had to go. Well, I'm out of it, so I don't care. I hope you don't get into trouble with your employers. . . ." She smiled, eliciting a broader one from him.

"I suppose you wonder why I'm in such a trade, don't you? I'm a college graduate."

"Really!"

"Yes." There was silence. J. Reginald went to the writing table and penned a check.

"I don't want any reward, sir—not a money reward," the youth protested.

J. Reginald looked up curiously.

Johnson spat out what was on his mind with effort, his eyes on Amoura: "I just want to be your friend. . . . Er, will you have lunch with me tomorrow?"

Amoura saw the amused glint in her father's eyes, but did not smile.

Peaceful Locarno

Most newspaper readers probably never heard of Locarno until it was announced that the great powers had gone there for their conference on a European security pact. "Where is this Locarno?" a good many persons ask, and a searching of geographies and atlases finds the answer.

Locarno lies in the Italian-speaking part of Switzerland, and is called the Queen of the Maggiore, after a beautiful lake which lies between the Alps and the Lombardy plains. The community has been Swiss since 1512, although it is Italian in appearance and mode of life. It has 4,000 inhabitants, picturesque houses, beautiful public gardens, a famous old church and much inspiring scenery. It is said to have a luxuriant growth of flowers, with almost tropical vegetation. The climate is very fine, the air soft, without humidity, and with scarcely any frost in winter.

Truly it sounds like an ideal place for the conference, with everything in favor of peace and amity. The world hopes that the British, French and German delegates there will succumb to the gentle atmosphere of the quiet old town and let it influence their negotiations.

National Discourtesy

A writer in the Baltimore Sun remarks that Canada puts this country to shame in the matter of courtesy to the traveling public. He finds hotel employes especially considerate and obliging in Canada, and only too often the opposite in the states.

Kipling made the same criticism years ago, with special regard to railroad employes. A courteous question put to an American railroad clerk or conductor, he said, was usually disregarded or answered by a contemptuous grunt, especially if the questioner were obviously a foreigner.

There has been some advance in both these domains of public service, but any observant person knows that there is still room for improvement. And better manners are needed more in a certain other branch of public accommodation than in those mentioned. There is probably more discourtesy to the square foot in American theaters in large cities than anywhere else in the world. Self-interest, if not natural breeding, would seem to suggest better manners among ticket-sellers and other theatrical folk in their public contacts. Can somebody explain the mystery?

A House At The Pole

Nansen's plans for his next polar expedition, to start in the spring of 1927, have two unusual elements of interest. He will fly to the pole, or near it, in a dirigible bigger than the Los Angeles, and he will build a house when he arrives there, to shelter the exploring party for a year.

It is agreed by recent polar explorers that the dirigible balloon is the best type for polar regions. Apparently such a ship will run less risk in the Arctic ocean than over land in this latitude. It will carry a big load, and therefore should enable the explorers to utilize better equipment than any previous party has had. If the airship makes the initial trip safely, it may go again, serving as a supply ship.

The possibility of a house built at the north pole is something to catch the imagination of the world. In a warm and commodious dwelling, with ample supplies and equipment, whether on solid land or on the fixed ice, there should be little hardship in passing the long Arctic night under the North Star, with the aurora borealis illuminating the heavens.

Long Hair

Yes, times change. In Des Moines, Ia., when a prize is offered for the longest head of hair, it is won by an 18-year-old boy named Joseph Kametz.

The girls of Iowa may bob as they like, but no bobbing for Joseph! He has never had his hair cut, and doesn't want it cut.

An average male is disposed to shudder at this, moved by a vague fear, and wondering whether the incident is prophetic. Is man destined to become the long-haired sex, and woman the short-haired? We know it is so with animals—lions and buffaloes, for example, not to mention birds, which uniformly give males the more generous plumage.

Clothes obviously have the same tendency. Woman skimps her clothing and man adds to his. Are the sexes going to keep on until each looks, and acts, as the other used to?

Petroleum

The nation's petroleum producers, meeting at Tusa, Okla., have shown little worry about the oil supply.

"There is more oil in stock ready for emergency use today than ever before," says the president of the American Petroleum Institute. "And there are more known reserves of crude oil in the ground, capable of being produced, than ever before."

That fact is as cheering to 18,000,000 automobile owners as it is to the oil men. But producers and consumers alike can easily agree on these points:

Knowledge that there is still much oil in the ground is no justification for rushing to get it all out and use it all up.

Sooner or later the oil pools will play out, then the shale oil.

There ought to be some kind of systematized control of production, to suit supply to necessary demand, and there ought to be less waste.

The wolf knows better than to knock at the garage door.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up betimes and learned my new piano playing neighbor was Noel Coward, London playright. So in neighborly fashion I sang in the bath, very sweet.

To breakfast with a man who told me on sudden whim he arose after midnight and drank a quart of whisky between then and dawn and a sorry sight, shaking like one with ague and still a bit hocussed, I thought.

Through the town and saw in passing crowds of Channing Pollock, Charles Dillingham and Beatrice Hereford. Home and did my task and a great weariness came and I slept.

In the evening to dine at a place where player folk go and saw no one I knew so to walk with my wife along the dazzling Rialto. Thence to bed.

Wilson Mizner drifted back to his own stamping ground—Broadway—recently for the first time in four years. Mizner was the best known man-about-town before he departed for Florida to become a realtor. His mots still fly about in the Forties. He used to appear regularly at Jack's at 3 a. m. for his portion of cold lobster. Mizner was the town's wit. Crowds awaited his arrival to hear the latest quip. He did not remain here long, it is said, because of his hatred of policemen. They have always been a target for his biting sarcasm.

"Fred Stone's Star Ranch," a real 21,000 aacre western ranch a few hours from Broadway is now smoothly running. It is on the road to New Haven and about eight miles from New LondonCt. There are corralls and a ranch house for the foreman. Stone's house is to be a log cabin affair with every modern convenience. He has cow ponies, fine breeding horses, Brahma steers, goats and a pack of dogs. Stone has three daughters. A vocal teacher and a dancing instructor live on the ranch. He is said to be the richest actor on the American stage. Certainly he is the most beloved by the profession.

A press agent makes a living placing autographed pictures of stage stars in shop windows indorsing wares of shops they grace.

Press agency may and undoubtedly does add to the prestige of those who have arrived but it cannot "make" one who has no ability. There is a rich producer who spent a fortune trying to lift a comely young woman to stardom on the stage. He starred her in several ventures but she is still rather obscure and unknown because she lacks that prime essential — talent.

Nobody receives so much attention in a New York cafe as babies. Chiefly because they are seldom taken there but when they are they receive salaams and special attention from bus boy to proprietor. Oother diners wave and coo and some of the hardboiled bachelors even attempt baby talk. Children, save on the East Side, are not seen in New York. Nurses having them in charge, cart them off to parks during the day and put them to bed at dusk.

A bit of swiftly moving drama late at night in West 47th street. An auto drew up in front of one of those hotels with gloomily lit lobbies. Two men tried to assist a woman to the pavement. She was half swooning.

Drowsy heads pop out of the windows. A small crowd quickly clots at the curb. Kimonoed women rush from hallways. "What have you done to her?" one screams.

The swooning woman is pushed back in the car and it plunges roaring down the street—the tail light gleaming red in the night. In five minutes the block is deserted and quiet again.

This weather scarred sign flaps in the wind in front of a hallway in West 51st street: "Wanted—roomer who does not smoke, drink or stay out late nights."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Winter Plattsburg.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—At the recent convention of the Reserve Officers' association held in Kansas City, Major General W. H. Hart, the quartermaster general, told of the work of the Winter Plattsburg.

According to a statement of the war department the objects of the Winter Plattsburg are "to develop among the officers of the quartermaster reserves esprit de corps through pleasant and helpful association; promote their professional knowledge by the practical application of approved methods and principles to the solution of problems involving the war-time activities of the quartermasters' corps; qualify them to properly perform the duties of their war-time assignment."

Another important feature of the Winter Plattsburg is the extension of an invitation to all patriotic citizens of the community to take an active part in these meetings. By this it is hoped to encourage community interest in the cause of adequate national defense under the National Defense act. Also by inviting civilians to cooperate with members of the reserve corps it is felt that a mutual benefit will be derived due to a better understanding of the problems and aims of each.

These Winter Plattsburg meetings take their name from the original Plattsburg movement which preceded and followed the World war. In 1922 a group of members of the Quartermaster Reserve Corps upon finishing 15 days' active duty at Camp Dix decided that they would like to continue their work and study while on inactive duty. Accordingly they decided upon a weekly meeting and Colonel Walter A. Dempsey became the instructor of this first group.

Owing to the severe winter and the isolated location of Governor's Island, where the meetings were held, the original group of 22 was not materially increased that year. The following year, however, the meetings were held in the Army building, New York city, and the membership increased to 1[illegible].

General Hart attended the closing meeting of the second season and became so interested in the idea that he decided to extend it to other cities. During the following summer and instruction period, which extends from Nov. 1 to April 30, groups were organized in 26 cities. During the 1925-26 season it is planned to extend the idea to 11 other cities. Up to the present time groups are only organized where there are stationed in the vicinity members of the regular quartermaster corps, since the instructors are generally members of the regular army.

The Key Organization.

The organization of a group provides for the selection of a president, secretary and custodian of records, whose duties are such as usually devolve upon such officers of any club or organization. Aside from these officers, there is what is known as the key organization, and the members of this are "key-men." This organization is composed of various offices, positions and commands which are limited in number only by the membership of a given group and the war-time assignment of the members. This organization includes a suppositious assistant secretary of war, a quartermaster general and a chief of each of the six services in which the office of the quartermaster general is divided. The office of assistant secretary of war usually devolves upon a civilian, thus following right along with the official organization.

While, of course, the officers appointed in these groups as quartermaster general and chiefs of services probably will never actually fill such positions in the regular organization, insofar as it is possible members are given duties analogous to their war-time assignments.

No attempt is made to standardize these Winter Plattsburg meetings with regard to what night of the week they shall meet. This would be impossible since the groups are for the most part composed of business and professional men whose work naturally comes first. The meetings must of necessity be accommodated to

Nobody can do justice to themselves when they are suffering for want of rich, red blood. It is this impoverished condition of the blood that causes so many failures in life. There's no place at the top for the weakling—the men and women with poor, weak blood.

All Creeds Endorse "The Ten Commandments"

BAPTIST

"The Ten Commandments'", as presented in the picture is the leader of all the photos on the screen today; and I regard it indispensable to the propagation of Christian ethics and moral courage. All of the young men should see its production at this particular time when four of our youths have recently been sentenced to the death chair."

—The Rev. C. D. Patterson,
Cosmopolitan Baptist Church.

CONGREGATIONAL

"Words cannot describe my sense of appreciation of your magnificent picture 'The Ten Commandments.' It is the greatest sermon that I ever saw; the whole production, from beginning to ending, was most pleasing, instructing, ennobling. No person can see and hear it without being better for it; and no lesson is more needed in this whole country today.

"I preached on this picture and its impressions and made up a church party one evening to see it at the theatre."

—The Rev. Charles W. Dave, D. D.
St. Mark's Congregational Church.

"The first section of the picture, depicting the Bibical story, is extremely fine, about the best thing I have seen in motion pictures. It is powerful and convincing. The realism is overdone, but I was impressed by the amazing movement, color and dramatic intensity of the unfolding tale."

—The Rev. Charles E. Dunn,
Mystic Side Congreational Church, Malden, Mass.

EPISCOPAL

"Truly marvelous and should be productive of great good!"

The Reverend Nathan A. Seagle,

LUTHERAN

"Wonderful—that same evening I took a half hour describing the picture to my church council, advising its members to see it. This picture must rivet its wholesome teachings to the hearts of everyone seeing it. It is no use to start commenting on its different parts,—it speaks for itself. What struck me as a surprise was the final pictures, where Christ was introduced healing the sick—what a happy thought. In the beginning, the Almighty, dealing with nations, with force against power abused, and finally those lovely scenes, where his Son is healing the wounds of men."

—The Rev. Joseph A. Davidson.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL

"The picture 'The Ten Commandments' is absolutely beyond criticism. It carries one of the most splendid messages I have ever seen put in a picture. It will do limitless good. It has combined in a marvelous way the declarations of the Old Testament with modern life so that people must be convinced that they reap what they sow. I have never seen anything so impressive as the 'The Ten Commandments' appear on the screen."

—The Rev. Christian F. Reisner,
Chelsea M. E. Church.

"I have seen with very great pleasure and profit your impressive film version of 'The Ten Commandments' and the impression made on my mind will last for a long time. The atmosphere of the place was clean, helpful, and inspiring, and the crowded audience proved that a large number of people in New York City are interested in religious subjects.

"The moral in part one and two still holds true, 'that if you break any of the commandments they will break you.' I will have much pleasure in recommending it to my friends who have not seen the picture."

—The Rev. Edwin Corneille,
Woodlawn Heights Church.

"'The Ten Commandments' teaches most clearly and convincingly the truths the Church of God is ever seeking to teach,—the Sovereignty of God that fact of sin, the certainty that whatsovere a man soweth he shall also reap.

..Magnificently, with impressive dignity and rare fidelity to great truths you have taught your lesson. I trust you may reach millions of thoughtful people with your timely appeal."

The Rev. F. B. Upham,
Old John St. M. E. Church

PRESBYTERIAN

"I wish that every member of my Church and Sunday school could see 'The Ten Commandments.' You are preaching a most wonderful sermon, in their presentation."

—The Rev. Edward I. Goodwin,
Cumberland Street Church, Brookyn.

"I am sure that every one who sees 'The Ten Commandments' must think again, or perhaps for the first time, of the fundamental place in our life which the Ten Commandments ought to have."

—The Rev. Russell S. Gregory,
First Presbyterian Church.

"It is by far the most impressive I ever saw. It should accomplish much good."

—The Rev. L. P. Armstrong,
Beverly Presbyterian Church, New York

REFORMED

"Speaking at the Hanson Place M. E. Church, Brooklyn, I did not hesitate to urge that congregation of nearly 500 people to see it, for I consider it the strongest sermon, preached today and I like your text 'Break the Commandments and they will break you.'

"I want to thank you for producing such a wonderful picture, awe inspiring, thrilling, instructive, and the person who can view it without becoming better is not strictly human.....I heartily endorse it, and shall urge my people to see it."

—The Rev. L. G. Leggett, D. D.
Hawthorne, N. Y.

UNIVERSALIST

"A picture that the Modernists, the Fundamentalists, and everybody else, old and young can see with such mental and spiritual profit that its worth cannot be estimated.

"I have seen it twice, shall see it again, and am planning a party of 50 boys to attend it, and thereby I beleive I will be doing something for them which will be of permanent value to character and conscience. It is bound to open the eyes of many a one who thinks of life from a distorted and clouded moral and spiritual viewpoint."

—The Rev. C. J. Harris,
Washington Heights Universalist Church.

One of the most impressive and influencing films before the public. We advise our parishoners to attend as a service of religion. The moral necessity and life dynamic of the commandments will be woven into the fibre of your consciousness by the wonderful picture."

—The Rev. Thomas Edward Potterton,
Church of Our Father, Brooklyn.

CATHOLIC

His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, had a private showing of "The Ten Commandments" and enjoyed it to the extent that he recommended that this picture be placed on the

Official Catholic White List

During the 62 weeks that the picture was playing daily in New York many of his parishioners availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing this extraordinary motion picture.

The film has the specific endorsement of the Catholic Theatre Movement, "organized for the purpose of determining and maintaining the Catholic standpoint with regard to the Theatre: its activities to be directed towards developing the conscience and sentiment of Catholics in their patronage of the theatre."

"The Ten Commandments" is endorsed in the bulletin issued by The Catholic Theatre Movement from which the following is quoted:

"Try to spread a knowledge of the 'White List' and to interest your friends in the Catholic Theatre Movement. This organization has done a great deal of work—very quietly but effectively. Activities of this kind are generally mere flashes in the pan. This has lived and will endure. The opportunity is yours to make it strong and far-reaching."

the existing conditions in the particular locality in which the group is.

When it is decided to organize a Winter Plattsburg in a city usually an officer of the quartermaster corps attempts to interest the business men of the community through a talk at such clubs as the Rotary, Civitan or Kiwanis. In this way he is able to put before the representative men of that locality the aims and purposes of these meetings and usually succeeds in arousing the interest of at least a portion of them.

Civilians Interested.

The point which the department is anxious to emphasize is that civilians are urged to cooperate in this movement and to take an active part. Also an official invitation has been extended to all National Guard supply officers in communities where these groups are located.

The story is told of one highly successful business man who became so interested in his work as an important officer in one of the Quartermaster Winter Plattsburg groups that he took his problems to his office. There he would work and study during business hours taking little note of the fact that the afternoon was passing. It has been remarked that while this particular group was most fortunate in having this man for a member, it is wondered just how his office force felt about the matter.

There are at the present time 10,000 members of the Quartermaster's Reserve, and last year 2,000 of these attended the Winter Plattsburg meetings. While there is no record of the number of civilians in attendance it is said that in some groups they equaled the number of reserves, while in at least one they were in the majority.

The office of the quartermaster general says that the effects of education are becoming more noticeable all the time. In the First corps area, which includes all the New England states, last year every quartermaster reserve officer took some form of instructtion and this year it is expected that large number of civilians will join the Winter Plattsburg groups.

The success of these groups has been in a large measure due to the interest and encouragement of General Hart. He has taken a personal interest in spreading this movement and has done all in his power to "put it over."

As is well known, the United States has found herself unprepared for every war in which she has been engaged. The lessons of the World war were particularly hard, and it has often been said there was a great waste of both money and lives. It is in order to avoid a repetition of this in the event of another war that patriotic citizens are striving to acquaint themselves with problems which must be met in such emergencies, to the end that there will e as little waste as possible.

TEN CITIES CONTINUE VISITING TEACHERS

Demonstration Aids in Wiping Out Delinquency.

New York.—Ten cities in which three-year demonstrations of visiting teacher work have been completed under the auspices of the commonwealth fund program for the prevention of delinquency have determined to continue the use of visiting teachers as a regular feature of their public school systems.

According to Howard W. Nudd, director of the Public Educational association of New York city and chairman of the national committee on visiting teachers which has administered these demonstrations, the communities thus convinced of the value of the visiting teacher and planning to continue her services include Burlington, Vt., Lincoln, Neb.; Richmond, Va.; Red Bank, N. J.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Sioux City, Iowa; Bluefield, W. Va.; Sioux Falls, S. D.; Warren, Ohio, and Hutchinson, Kan.

Meanwhile, demonstrations are being continued by the national committee on visiting teachers in the following communities: Berkeley, Cal.; Birmingham, Ala.; Boone county, Missouri; Butte, Mont.; Charlotte, N. C.; Chisholm, Minn.; Coatesville, Pa.; Columbus, Ga.; Detroit, Mich.; Durham, N. C.; Eugene, Ore.; Huron county, Ohio; Omaha, Neb.; Pocatello, Idaho; Racine, Wis.; Rochester, Pa.; Rock Springs, Wyo.; San Diego, Cal.; Tucson, Ariz.; Tulsa, Okla.

Appointed by Committee.

When the work is finished in these cities the thirty visiting teacher demonstrations under the commonwealth fund program will have been completed. Under the arrangements made for these demonstrations the visiting teachers were appointed by the national committee on visiting teachers subject to the approval of the local authorities; in each case the national committee pays two-thirds of the salary for a three-year period and provides funds for certain additional expenses, while the remainder of the salary is paid by the local school board. Several hundred cities have made application for demonstrations under this plan, but the thirty communities provided for in the original grant from the commonwealth fund having been chosen, no further applications are now being considered.

Including the visiting teachers appointed by the national committee for these demonstrations there are now altogether 186 visiting teachers in the United States working in 64 cities and 6 counties scattered through 34 states. These figures are given by Mr. Nudd in a chapter on the history, purpose and scope of the visiting teacher movement, which he contributes to "The Problem Child in School," a volume of visiting teacher case narratives by Mary B. Sayles, just published by the Joint Committee on Methods of Preventing Delinquency, Inc., of 50 East Forty-second street, New York city.

Describing the visiting teacher as a specialist in the schools who devotes herself to the problems of unadjusted children, Mr. Nudd, in the article above referred to, points that "every teacher, every social worker, and many a parent is familiar with the problem child—the boy or girl whose school progress or whose reactions to normal requirements point toward later inefficiency, delinquency, or some other failure in personal or social adjustment. What is the trouble with such children, and what can be done for them? How can the school obtain and utilize a knowledge of the forces that are affecting their success, and give them in fullest measure the benefits of their educational experience? Puzzles or pests at home, in school, or elsewhere, their personal welfare and the welfare of society require painstaking effort in their behalf. They present at once the most baffling, the most urgent and the most interesting problems in the field of education."

Finds Needs of Children.

Describing the methods of the visiting teacher in meeting these problems, which are both educational and social in nature, Mr. Nudd points out that this relatively new specialist, trained both as a teacher and social worker, "is specifically equipped not only to find out why things are not going right in the lives of these children but also to take back to the class teacher, the parent or the social agency which may help, the essential information needed to meet their individual limitations. As a result of the new facts she discovers the school is enabled to see what the actual situation is and to become aware of the real need of the child. It can often modify requirements to meet the newly seen limitations by changing the class, transferring the child to a special school, shifting emphasis from one phase of school work to another, adopting a new approach to the child or connecting his school work more closely with his outside interests.

Age of Consent Given Boost in India After Legislative Battle

SIMLA, India—A partial but much needed reform in regard to young Indian girls has just passed the legislative assembly by 84 votes to 11. It raises the age of consent from 12 to 13 in the case of marital relations, and to 14 in non-marital.

It was only after a very bitter debate that the bill was passed. On the one side the Orthodox opposition attacked the measure on the ground of bringing western influence into Indian ideas, while the reformers argued that the limit should be increased.

As a result the bill is a compromise, but it represents a step in the direction of progress, because 20 years ago such a measure would have been laughed at.

BEBE DANIELS IN FILM HIT

"Lovers in Quarantine" at Ceramic Theatre For Two Days.

A recent experience of Bebe Daniels leads her to the belief that the man in the public elevator who fails to doff his hat when a woman enters the cage, and then proceeds to write a vigorous defense of his action in "letters to the editor," has a fairly good reason for his eccentricity. In all probability he is as bald as an egg.

During the filming of her latest picture, "Lovers in Quarantine," Miss Daniels dressed very casually for the early portion of the story. She impersonated an untidy young girl at the awkward age, and as an aid to the characterization, she covered her own lustrous bob with an unkempt wig that fairly shrieked for the bobber's shears.

The wig, innocent of the ministrations of brush or comb, looked like a tumbled mass utterly beyond reclaim. One strand of hair at the front was particularly unruly, and Miss Daniels decided the wig could do without it. Calling the studio hairdresser she held out the offending handful of hair and ordered:

"Cut—any old way, so long as it doesn't look like the work of an expert."

Being just that, he took a jagged slice out of the hair Miss Daniels indicated, then stood off to admire the desired uneven effect. The coiffure looked even more irregular than before and Miss Daniels amusedly smiled at the weird effect mirrored in her glass. Then she returned to the set to play a scene with Harrison Ford, who has the chief male role opposite the star.

Came the end of a busy day, as they say in the movie subtitles. Sitting before the mirror in her dressing room, Bebe removed the burdensome wig and began patting her own hair into place. Suddenly she jumped up and fearfully took another look at herself.

You've guessed it!

The hirsute sacrifice for art's sake had come from her own scalp. Until her hair comes in again at that particular spot, Miss Daniels, like the man in the elevator, will keep her head under her hat.

Bebe, in "Lovers in Quarantine," comes to the Ceramic theater Monday and Tuesday. Besides Ford, the cast includes Eden Gray, Alfred Lunt, Diana Kane and Edna May Oliver. Frank Tuttle directed.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

Old Folks Must Not Use "Physics"

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts calomel and nasty oils every day or two.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels of old folks. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past 50, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

FORT ONTARIO IS LANDMARK

Stronghold Dates Back to Colonial Days—Once a British Fort.

New York.—Because of its historic association and picturesque appearance, Fort Ontario is one of the show places of northern New York visited by tourists from all parts of the United States and Canada.

One of the oldest and most noted landmarks on the North American continent, the old fort stands on the same site and is constructed on the same plan as the maps of the French and British show it 200 years ago.

Construction of the fort began by British and colonial troops in 1755. Its site, an elevated position looking out on Lake Ontario and commanding the mouth of the Oswego river from its east bank, was selected by Gov. William Shirley of Massachusetts and Sir William Pepperell.

Is Star Shaped.

The stronghold was completed in the spring of 1756.

It was then built of logs, with outer walls fourteen feet in height and with a circumference of 800 feet. The plan was pentagon, on each angle of which was constructed a bastion, giving the general outline of a five-pointed star.

In 1759 the fort was a rendezvous for 2,000 British under Gen. John Prideaux and 1,000 Indians under Sir William Johnson.

The fort was destroyed by American troops in 1778, under orders from Colonel Gansevoort, who wished thereby to prevent its reoccupation by the British.

The British after the treaty of peace in 1783 continued to hold the northern forts, demanding certain indemnities from Virginia loyalists who sustained property losses during the Revolution.

Jay's treaty settled the dispute and in 1796 the British began evacuating. Fort Ontario was the last post to surrender.

In July, 1812, the post was occupied by nine companies of militia, and some attempt was made to repair it by Colonel George Fleming. It was fired on in June, 1813, by several armed British vessels, but the fort batteries and the American ship Growler returned the fire and the hostile fleet retired.

Fort Ontario was not occupied by regular troops until November, 1838. The lands comprising the military reservation were conveyed to the United States by the state of New York on April 25, 1839. Between 1839 and 1846 the fort and barracks were rebuilt at a cost of $95,000.

The new post, which lies to the east of old Fort Ontario, is modern in every respect. All buildings are of red brick and were built between 1903 and 1905 at a cost of $320,000. The fort was used as a general hospital during the world war and about 20 temporary buildings were erected there in 1917-18.

Resembles Ancient Castle.

The entire military reservation has an area of 75.9 acres. The old fort, which stands at its most elevated point, is about 2,500 feet in circumference, and its outer walls, of sandstone, are, with concrete reinforcements, about 5 feet thick and from 8 to 15 feet in height. Behind these walls is an earth work about 20 feet in height and 25 feet in thickness.

Five stone vaulted casement interiors penetrate the earthwork, commanding, through slotted, iron-doored loopholes, all strategic approaches to the fortification.

These casements are reached by way of stone stairways descending from the top of the earthern parapet. An outer earthwork once extended about the greater portion of the fort's circumference, permitting the formation of a moat about 20 feet in width, but this was leveled when construction of the modern post began in 1903.

Fort Ontario is immediately adjacent to the city of Oswego.

Massachusetts Lad Leading Aspirant for Meanest Boy Role

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—Many have usurped the title "meanest," but is remained for 16-year-old Frances Grazyboski of Chicopee to set a new mark for that doubtful role. Frances according to the local police who arraignied her in Juvenile court here, made a specialty of locating little girls sent by their mothers on errands.

Promising to do the errand for the child, and, in addition to bring her back a "great big doll" Frances would prevail upon the child to turn over mother's pocketbook with whatever it contained. Then the child would wait vainly for sight of Frances or the doll.

PLAN TO RUSH WORK ON ROAD

Cool Weather Will Not Delay Yellow Creek Township Job.

The present cool weather will not delay the pouring of concrete on the Yellow Creek township section of the Wellsville-Salineville road, in the opinion of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. It is the intent of the county commissioners and also the contractors on this job to have this contract finished within the next three weeks, so far as the pouring of concrete is concerned, the matter of building berms being a secondary consideration just at this time.

The length of this section of road, which is known as the "Chattle Lake" route is 15,450 feet, of which 1,728 feet is in Washington township and 13,722 feet in Yellow Creek township.

All curves on this route are being banked and also wider than the regular 16-foot highway. This widening consisted of 1,635.7 square yards of concrete. Elevations on this route show a total rise of 170 feet and a total rise of 170 feet and a total fall of 140 feet, which gives the road an easy grade for all kinds of traffic.

"What we're interested in now is to have this road opened to traffic between Wellsville and Salineville at the earliest possible time," Mr. Kirk declared. "We are sure that the cool weather will not be so severe that it will hold up pouring of concrete. After the concrete has been allowed to set, we can then open the road to traffic at the risk of drivers, and then we can go ahead and complete the berms."

This is the last concrete job to be done in the county this year between distant points, although the Sunnyside avenue job at East Liverpool is still in progress. The latter contract, which has been awarded to Allison & Harris of East Liverpool is a small one compared with the Wellsville-Salineville contract. It is likely that the Yellow Creek township project will be thrown open to traffic before Nov. 15, as contractors are speeding up in their work to have the pouring of concrete completed before the end of the month.

A total of 27,466.7 square yards of concrete was contracted for on the "Chattle Lake" route.

OWNS A GOLD MINE

and doesn't bother to take out the gold!

WHAT would you say of a man who owned a gold mine but hadn't the gumption to get out the gold. He's not rich either. He's working for a salary or wages just as you are. And what's more, he could make good use of some extra money if he knew of a way to get it—just as YOU probably could use some extra money. Yet, here's the man with a gold mine, and he doesn't even bother to get the gold out.

But don't be too hard on him because you also have a gold mine and maybe you're not working your mine either! Your idle dollars are the gold mine.

Now a gold mine has to be WORKED to get the gold out. And it's the same with your savings. If you WORK them they will produce money for you. The way to work your savings is to INVEST them. For instance: if you invest $950.00 in our Preferred Stock you will be entitled to receive a dividend of $15.00 every three months from this Company.

HARBOR CONTRACT TO BE AWARDED

Weirton Steel company officials will probably award the contract this week for the building of the $750,000 harbor which is part of the $14,000,000 expension planned by the company.

The harbor itself will be 200 feet long in both directions with a wooden fender at each side, providing a 200 foot loading and a 460-foot unloading dock. It will be necessary to dredge 1,100 cubic yards of material from the harbor to install the docks. The dock foundation will be of concrete 40 feet square. They will be 38 feet above full pool.

On the landing docks will be a building 50 feet by 100 feet for storage purposes where material to be shipped will be held until time for loading.

On the unloading docks there is to be erected a coal tower with a capacity for unloading 300 tons of coal per hour from nine barges, which is the capacity of the harbor. This run of mine coal will be unloaded by the tower, and placed in the equalizing hopper, from there it will go either to the coke or the stocking pots.

His Advice

"Every winter found me all in. My doctor told me winter was hard on the kidneys, especially after a hard cold or the grip. Uric acid accumulated in the system in excessive amount, the kidneys became clogged, and machinery out of kilter. I suffered from backache, bladder trouble and sometimes had drowsy or dizzy spells. I'm now giving you just the advice the doctor gave me. Go to your neighborhood drug store and ask for Dr. Pierce's An-uric (anti-uric-acid) tablets. They'll fix that backache! You'll soon feel like a fighting cock and full of ginger."

If you want a trial package of An-uric, (kidney-backache) tablets send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y., and write for free advice.

CHRYSLER PLAN STOPS THIEVES

Use Theft Prevention Numbering System on Cars.

Automobile makers have long concentrated their attention upon attempts to solve the problem of preventing the millions in money losses to motor car owners on account of automobile thefts and to save them also the annoyance of the loss of time and use in being deprived of their cars, which is highly important, even if it cannot be computed in money terms. Walter P. Chrysler, whose wonderful mechanical mind is constantly at work searching out new plans and new methods to help motorists and improve motoring conditions, has inaugurated a system that will go far to checkmate automobile thieves, if not to stop their activities altogether.

It has been generally accepted by automobile insurers and manufacturers that if it were made difficult to dispose of the stolen goods, car thieves who in 1924 got away with 50 per cent more cars than in 1923, would be put hard up against it. This is precisely what is accomplished by the system introduced by Chrysler.

The plan involves the use of the Fedco patented theft prevention numbering system, exclusive on Chrysler cars. It consists of a series number plate attached to the instrument boaard of each car, made and fitted in such a way that it can absolutely not be changed or removed without detection. The ease with which stolen cars could previously be turned into money was the most helpful factor to the car thief and only 17 per cent of all stolen cars last year were recovered. The Chrysler system stops conversion at the source, so to say.

PLAN TO RUSH WORK ON ROAD

Cool Weather Will Not Delay Yellow Creek Township Job.

The present cool weather will not delay the pouring of concrete on the Yellow Creek township section of the Wellsville-Salineville road, in the opinion of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. It is the intent of the county commissioners and also the contractors on this job to have this contract finished within the next three weeks, so far as the pouring of concrete is concerned, the matter of building berms being a secondary consideration just at this time.

The length of this section of road, which is known as the "Chattle Lake" route is 15,450 feet, of which 1,728 feet is in Washington township and 13,722 feet in Yellow Creek township.

All curves on this route are being banked and also wider than the regular 16-foot highway. This widening consisted of 1,635.7 square yards of concrete. Elevations on this route show a total rise of 170 feet and a total rise of 170 feet and a total fall of 140 feet, which gives the road an easy grade for all kinds of traffic.

"What we're interested in now is to have this road opened to traffic between Wellsville and Salineville at the earliest possible time," Mr. Kirk declared. "We are sure that the cool weather will not be so severe that it will hold up pouring of concrete. After the concrete has been allowed to set, we can then open the road to traffic at the risk of drivers, and then we can go ahead and complete the berms."

This is the last concerete job to be done in the county this year between distant points, although the Sunnyside avenue job at East Liverpool is still in progress. The latter contract, which has been awarded to Allison & Harris of East Liverpool is a small one compared with the Wellsville-Salineville contract. It is likely that the Yellow Creek township project will be thrown open to traffic before Nov. 15, as contractors are speeding up in their work to have the pouring of concrete completed before the end of the month.

A total of 27,466.7 square yards of concrete was contracted for on the "Chattle Lake" route.

Sebring

Friday, November 6, is the date set for the probable completion of Sebring's two paving projects, West Oregon avenue and Fifteenth street. Possibility of completing these two jobs by November 6th is contingent upon the weather in the next month.

In the event weather conditions should become so severe that no asphalt could be laid, it is believed the streets might be thrown open to traffic providing the heavy concrete base has been laid and permitted to thoroughly set.

Though no date has been set it is probably that the new $20,000 school on Bandy road will be formally dedicated some time during October.

Dedication ceremonies will likely be held in the evening with an appropriate program for the occasion.

Conquers Bad Breadth and is Popular Again

"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry of New York City, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles. I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarrassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start."

Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills.

They are wonderful for constipation, sick-headache and indigestion and they physic the system in a mild and gentle manner, no bad after effects.

OWNS A GOLD MINE

and doesn't bother to take out the gold!

WHAT would you say of a man who owned a gold mine but hadn't the gumption to get out the gold. He's not rich either. He's working for a salary or wages just as you are. And what's more, he could make good use of some extra money if he knew of a way to get it—just as YOU probably could use some extra money. Yet, here's the man with a gold mine, and he doesn't even bother to get the gold out.

But don't be too hard on him because you also have a gold mine and maybe you're not working your mine either! Your idle dollars are the gold mine.

Now a gold mine has to be WORKED to get the gold out. And it's the same with your savings. If you WORK them they will produce money for you. The way to work your savings is to INVEST them. For instance: if you invest $950.00 in our Preferred Stock you will be entitled to receive a dividend of $15.00 every three months from this Company.

HARBOR CONTRACT TO BE AWARDED

Weirton Steel company officials will probably award the contract this week for the building of the $750,000 harbor which is part of the $14,000,000 expension planned by the company.

The harbor itself will be 200 feet long in both directions with a wooden fender at each side, providing a 200 foot loading and a 460-foot unloading dock. It will be necessary to dredge 1,100 cubic yards of material from the harbor to install the docks. The dock foundation will be of concrete 40 feet square. They will be 38 feet above full pool.

On the landing docks will be a building 50 feet by 100 feet for storage purposes where material to be shipped will be held until time for loading.

On the unloading docks there is to be erected a coal tower with a capacity for unloading 300 tons of coal per hour from nine barges, which is the capacity of the harbor. This run of mine coal will be unloaded by the tower, and placed in the equalizing hopper, from there it will go either to the coke or the stocking pots.

His Advice

"Every winter found me all in. My doctor told me winter was hard on the kidneys, especially after a hard cold or the grip. Uric acid accumulated in the system in excessive amount, the kidneys became clogged, and machinery out of kilter. I suffered from backache, bladder trouble and sometimes had drowsy or dizzy spells. I'm now giving you just the advice the doctor gave me. Go to your neighborhood drug store and ask for Dr. Pierce's An-uric (anti-uric-acid) tablets. They'll fix that backache! You'll soon feel like a fighting cock and full of ginger."

If you want a trial package of An-uric, (kidney-backache) tablets send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y., and write for free advice.

CHRYSLER PLAN STOPS THIEVES

Use Theft Prevention Numbering System on Cars.

Automobile makers have long concentrated their attention upon attempts to solve the problem of preventing the millions in money losses to motor car owners on account of automobile thefts and to save them also the annoyance of the loss of time and use in being deprived of their cars, which is highly important, even if it cannot be computed in money terms. Walter P. Chrysler, whose wonderful mechanical mind is constantly at work searching out new plans and new methods to help motorists and improve motoring conditions, has inaugurated a system that will go far to checkmate automobile thieves, if not to stop their activities altogether.

It has been generally accepted by automobile insurers and manufacturers that if it were made difficult to dispose of the stolen goods, car thieves who in 1924 got away with 50 per cent more cars than in 1923, would be put hard up against it. This is precisely what is accomplished by the system introduced by Chrysler.

The plan involves the use of the Fedco patented theft prevention numbering system, exclusive on Chrysler cars. It consists of a series number plate attached to the instrument boaard of each car, made and fitted in such a way that it can absolutely not be changed or removed without detection. The ease with which stolen cars could previously be turned into money was the most helpful factor to the car thief and only 17 per cent of all stolen cars last year were recovered. The Chrysler system stops conversion at the source, so to say.

Senators Today Rule 5 to 2 Choice to Cop World's Series

COVELESKIE, ALDRIDGE LIKELY SLAB NOMINEES FOR DECIDING CONTEST

Event Reaches "Crucial Game" Stage for Pittsburghers, Who Either Must Win This Afternoon or Acknowledge Superiority of Washingtons; A Little Money Goes Down on Pirates to Win Fifth Clash, at Odds of 4 to 5.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Washington awoke this morning with a dry, brown taste in its civic mouth and a pack of ice around its civic head. Washington awoke to something approaching a surfeit of world series fodder and what probably will be the final game of the inter league championship series with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Washington, in other words, with three victories and one defeat to its credit and debit, awoke with something of a civic hangover.

It had had an overdose of the diet and had found it almost too rich for its palate. The thing was beginning to pall slightly, the issue, if any, having been so logically determined by the result of the last two games.

The Senators this morning ruled a 5 to 2 choice for the title, with takers as plentiful as June flies in January. However, a little judicious money went down on the Pirates to win today's game at odds of 4 to 5 and send the series back to Pittsburgh. However, there seemed to be not the slightest doubt existant that the Senators had sewed the situation thoroughly up in the well and widely known bag.

The day was overcast, the official forecast being for cool and cloudy with possible showers. The writer, having his own trained observer, voted for sunshine.

As a matter of fact, the only uncertainty revolved around the ability, or lack of same, of Stanley Coveleskie to moist ball the Pirates silly for nine innings. He attempted the business inPittsburgh some days ago and lost the only game of the series for Washington when Cuyler smoke a homer into the stands in the eighth inning.

Coveleskie was opposed, on the occasion in question, by Vic Aldridge and mayhap the latter was to be sent forth for action today.

Information was to the effect that Meadows might not be available for the game. He was said to have undergone a slight operation on his elbow and was, therefore, out of action until tomorrow, by which time it was possible that he would be of great use, like a toothpick during a famine.

However, this meant nothing in particular unless the Pirates began hitting, which was something they had overlooked during the preceding games. Their average for the series was something in the neighborhood of six hits per game and one goes about as far with that sort of thing as a potato masher into a pin hole.

Most of the dear, old experts, in fact, looked for the series to end this afternoon, a circumstance which prompted the writer to make railroad reservations for Pittsburgh. The experts are right about as often as salt is used as a sweetener.

Coveleskie, however, was not the most heartening proposition in the world for the pro Washington gentlemen. The Pole gave a fine exhibition, even though he did lose the second game of the series; yet the fear was imminent that he showed the Pirates too many spitballs on that occasion.

Show a team of batters too many spit balls and they are likely to show you too many base hits, familiarity in this case being a fluent and palpable breeder of contempt.

Johnson's effort will go down as one of the best of world series history, the Pirates having much less of a chance against him than the box score indicated. The general idea here was that if they could extend the series to twenty games, Johnson probably would win ten of them and lost a little less than none at all.

LAUGHLIN COPS AT NEW CASTLE

Aldridge Scores Three of Four Goals Made by Locals.

Playing at Sharon, Pa., Saturday afternoon, the Homer Laughlin soccer club easily trimmed the Pennsylvanians, 4 to 1. The weather was cool and snappy and conductive to good soccer.

The Laughlins kicked against a strong wind but dominated most of the game after the first 10 minutes. Aldridge booted the first goal with Mortenson and Foster playing good ball. Aldridge broke loose and scored the second for Laughlins. Murray exhibited a high brand of ball for the home eleven but the Sharon team work in general, was ineffective against the Laughlin attack. The count was 2 to 0 at the half.

With the wind at their backs in the second half, the Laughlins held the upper hand through the second period, although the Sharon eleven scored once. This came when Nemis counted from a scrimmage in goal. Aldridge made it No. 3 for Laughlin and five minutes later Ferguson scored the fourth goal, leading the ball through from a corner kick.

The Sharon lads continually kicked the ball out of play in an effort to save their goal.

The lineup:

BALTIMORE WINS JUNIOR SERIES

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—The Baltimore Orioles, International league champions, captured the junior world series title yesterday, defeating Louisville of the American association, 5 to 2, in the eighth game. Baltimore won five contests against Louisville of the American association, 5 to 2, in the eighth game. Baltimore won five contests against Louisville's three.

Farnshaw, on the mound for the Orioles, was decidedly effective in the pinches. Baltimore got to Debery, the Colonel hurler, who had tamed them effectively earlier in the series and drove him from the box in the fourth inning. Wilkinson, who relieved him, held the Birds scoreless in the latter frames, but the damage had been done.

Ohio State Has All-American Prospect and Other Stars

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—These five youngsters are blazing across the Big Ten football heavens this fall as newcomers on Ohio State's squad. All appear to have won their spurs as regulars and near-regulars although the season is only a few weeks old.

Foremost among them, judged by the amount of attention he has received is Elmer Marek, a Cedar Rapids, Iowa, product. A halfback, he is believed to have all the qualities to make for stardom. He weighs 172 pounds.

Then there's Freddy Grim, a Toledoan, and a former star at Scott high there. Grimm was looked upon as a likely prospect, but he exceeded all expectations in his first varsity game—that against Ohio Wesleyan. Reinjected into that fray when Bill Hunt, whose pal he has been for years, was hurt, Grim was the individual star of the day and scored Ohio State's lone touchdown.

Robin Bell, a product of the combined efforts of Parkersburg, W. Va., Lake Forest Academy (Illinois) and Erie, Pa., has had the call at quarterback for the Buckeyes. The job is new to him, for he played on the line in his "prep" days. He can kick, pass or run and Ohio State followers have great hopes of him. He weighs 173.

Helping to fill the gap in the center of the Buckeye line caused by the graduation of last year's guards and centers are Jack Ullery and Ted Meyers. Ullery, the brother of a former Penn State luminary, seems to have won a place at center. Meyers a product of Cleveland, O., is one of the guards. Ullery weighs 183 and Meyers 195 pounds. They and the other three are all sophomores.

SOX COP THIRD CLASH WITH CUBS

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—Ted Blankenship, the Texas cowboy, who battled Grover Alexander, the veteran Cub's ace, to a nineteen-inning, 2 to 2 draw, in the first game of the series, came back yesterday and put his club in the running by defeating the Cubs, 7 to 2, after the Nationals had won two straight. The series now stands two games for the Cubs and one for the White Sox.

Percy Lee Jones started for the Cubs in an effort to make it three straight but he was found wanting in the first inning. He walked three men and was touched for three solid blows which gave the White Sox a four-run lead which was never threatened.

Pirates Playing "Ridiculous" Baseball, Says Veteran Critic

By Sid Mercer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—To all intents and purposes the world series of 1925 is over. The Senators have their bundle all wrapped up and probably will put a handle on it and carry away the swag this afternoon. It looks as if the pay-off will take place here instead of in Pittsburgh tomorrow.

The stage is all set for the Griffman. Lee Meadows, who gave Walter Johnson a real fight for the first game, is a cripple. He has an infected elbow and has not quite recovered from the effects of a slight operation.

Washington has two or three possible starters. Pittsburgh will make what may be the final stand behind Victor Aldridge, who has the honor of pitching the only Piftsburgh victory.

Aldridge was not as effective in victory as Meadows was in defeat. He barely staggered through that game. Any Washington pitcher may beat him today the way the Pirates are going. They are a demoralized team.

A veteran baseball scribe in a press room discussion at the Raleigh last night briefly summed up the situation as follows:

"Pittsburgh," he said, "is playing the most ridiculous baseball I ever witnessed."

That is not far from the truth. Pie Traynor and Max Carey are about the only Pirate regulars who have played consistently good baseball. The others have retreated before the onslaughts of the American league champions. They have been outwitted, outmanaged, outpitched and outgamed.

A one-legged pitcher shut out the National league champions Sunday. Johnson tore a muscle in his right leg trying to stretch a single into a double in the third inning, when all of the runs of the game were scored.

Perceiving that he had no chance to beat the play at second base, old Barney pulled up short and went lame. He proceeded to the clubhouse immediately and sought first aid. The club trainer advised him to quit.

"Just tape up my leg and I'll try to stick," said Walter.

It was a long inning and when Johnson reappeared none of the 38,000 customers knew that he had lost one of his props. Johnson limped to and from the bench. During the last four innings he was a tired old gentleman, just in there throwing the ball and the Pirates got four of their six hits then. But they couldn't score on even a crippled Johnson. His arm was still good enough to offset the loss of a leg.

PLAY IN WEST PENN CUP GAMES

Laughlin Draws Mahoning Valley for First Match.

Local soccer fans have been awaiting anxiously the result of the draw in the West Penn cup competition, which consists of 32 clubs comprising all of the fastest teams in the western Pennsylvania district and a number from Ohio.

The Laughlin eleven, according to announcement today by Manager Jesse Shaw, has drawn the Mahoning Valleys, one of the strongest outfits in Ohio, for their first game, which will be played on October 31 at Newell.

Among the other contenders in the competition are Pittsburgh Rovers, Jeannette, Morgan, Curry, Castle Shannon, Youngstown, St. George, Niles and Mahoning Valleys.

The Laughlins will play on their home lot, Newell, for the first time this season next Saturday against New Castle in the Press Northwest division circuit.

The local eleven retains its high standing as one of the two undefeated teams of the circuit. B. Haugh, one of the cleverest exponents of the game in the league, will appear at center against New Castle. The Pennsylvanians have tied with New Brighton and the Glencoe Thistles in their last two games. Saturday's game will start at 3:45.

DUNDEE-HERMAN SCRAP IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A fight that promises to draw the ring rabid from firesides to the chilly reaches of the Polo grounds will provide the finale of the outdoor ring season here this afternoon.

Two matches which threatened to provide plenty of smacking topped the bill, to be fought for the benefit of the principals involved, and the National Sports Alliance.

Johnny Dundee, former featherweight champion who retired undefeated, will meet Babe Herman, the Californian, in a fifteen round quarrel. Herman had a victory in all but the decision in a recent match with Kid Kaplin, the title holder, of Connecticut.

HIGH GRIDDERS LAND HARD FOUGHT BATTLE WITH CHESTER, 12-0

Wile's Eleven Holds Blue and White Scoreless Until Final Period When Line Thrusts, Combined With Opportune Aerial Plays, Produce Pair of Touchdowns; Captain Paul English Star of East Liverpool Offense.

Braving Saturday's cold, wintry weather, more than a thousand football fans of the district saw the East Liverpool high school eleven down the plucky Chester crew, 12 to 0, on the Rock Springs park gridiron.

The proteges of Wile held their opponents scoreless for the first three quarters and during the first two periods, especially, more than held their own with Boone's charges. Both teams lost chances to score in the first half, Chester fumbling on the East Liverpool 15 yard mark and Boone's squad duplicating the act on Chester's five yard line.

In the second half the Blue and White gridders began to show their driving power, sweeping the Chesterites from their feet for six straight first downs, mostly by line plays that paved the way for their initial touchdown. Forward passes combined with line thrusts accounted for the second touchdown, an opportune toss from P. English to Perry putting the pigskin over the goal line.

Boone's squad registered 12 first downs to Chester's two and completed three out of seven passes while the home lads failed in three attempts.

Coach Boone started his first string squad although the lineup was shifted around to some extent. McVey and P. Shaffer replaced R. Shaffer and Reibel in the backfield, while Hall and Haines occupied the posts of McKim and Bough in the back line and E. English played P. Shaffer's end.

Paul English, as usual, was the East Liverpool offensive star, making probably more than half the ground gained by his team. Allison and Shaffer also showed up well.

The East Liverpool line contributed its full share toward the victory. Larkins, at center, exhibited good generalship in running the team throughout the contest.

Ewing, H. Campbell, Pinney and Shaw were the outstanding performers for the home eleven.

Neither team could reach the scoring point in the first half, Chester showing its only offensive power at the outset of the game. H. Campbell kicked off and Chester recovered the punt. They made two first downs on line plunges and seemed headed for a touchdown, but a fumble ruined their chances.

The Blue and White at this stage could do little against Wile's men and punted. Chester failed to make its ten yards and kicked. The Blue and White then launched an offensive that took the ball to the Chester five yard line with P. English as the big gun in the attack. But here their attack ceased following a fumble that Chester recovered.

Campbell again booted at the start of the second half. Failing to gain the necessary yardage, East Liverpool punted. After a few vain thrusts at the line, Campbell returned the punt to McVey, bringing the ball up 15 yards.

The Blue and White at this stage of the game hit a stride that carried them rapidly on to their first course. Allison, English and Shaffer plunged the line for six straight first downs putting the ball in scoring position when the period ended. A line buck with English carrying the ball, scored the first touchdown at the opening of the final quarter. Larkins failed to make the additional point.

Forward passes figured prominently in the second touchdown. The opening of the aerial attack saw E. English get away with a 25-yard gain on a toss from his brother. Boone's squad then plunged the ball to the Chester five-yard line, and on the fourth down and goal to go, Captain English passed to Perry for six more points. Larkins again failed to kick goal.

The Chester eleven opened its bag of trick plays in the remaining minutes in a desperate attempt to score, but failed to get within striking distance of the Blue and White goal. Play ended near the center of the field.

PLAN TO HARNESS TIDE FOR POWER

American Engineers Study Feasibility of Bay of Fundy Project.

St. John, N. B.—Much interest has been aroused throughout the Canadian maritime provinces, particularly in New Brunswick, by the proposed project to generate between 500,000 and 750,000 electrical horse power by harnessing the famous tides of the Bay of Fundy in two inlets near Eastport, Me. American hydraulic engineers investigating the feasibility of the project, pronounced it entirely practical from an engineering standpoint, adding that it presented one of the most promising developments in the electrical world in a decade.

The project is being sponsored by Dexter P. Cooper, American capitalist, who spent several weeks here recently in its interest. Mr. Cooper explained to members of the New Brunswick government at the time, that as soon as authority to begin with construction was obtained from Maine, application to proceed with the work would be made to the provincial and Dominion governments, as well as to the international joint waterways commission. Titles to certain lands on the New Brunswick side of the St. Croix river already have been searched for at the crown lands office in Fredericton, the provincial capital. A statewide referendum is to be taken in Maine to decide whether the sale of power will be permitted outside the state, provided the project materializes.

Fix Cost at $75,000,000.

The cost of harnessing the tides, Mr. Cooper estimates at $75,000,000, the financing of which has already been assured. It would require at least five years before actual power could be supplied after the work was started, Mr. Cooper said. When completed, however, a maximum of 750,000 horse power could be produced annually, enough and to spare for the entire New England states. Electric power at hitherto unheard-of rates would be available all over the provinces, he declared, and, according to engineers, could be transmitted as far west as Boston, Mass.

The Bay of Fundy is noted for having the highest and strongest tides in the world. These are caused by the peculiar submarine topography and the wedge shape of the adjacent shores. At St. John the tides rise 25 feet, causing on the lower St. John river the only natural phenomenon of its kind in existence, a reversible waterfall; that is to say, when the tide is coming in, the falls, which are some forty feet high, "drop" upstream, and when the tide is going out they "drop" downstream. At the end of the Bay of Fundy, between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the tide is the highest on earth, at slack water measuring between 60 and 70 feet. At Moncton, on Chignecto bay, the incoming tide travels with such great velocity that it attains a "bore" of six feet.

Coast Vessels' Graveyard.

Its fierce tides and storms, treacherous reefs and shoals, steep rocky coast and frequent heavy fogs make the Bay of Fundy one of the most perilous passages known to mariners. Yearly, dozens of coasting vessels and fishing schooners bound for the Grand Banks of Newfoundland are lost here. The early French explorers and missionaries have described its fury and turbulence when in tempest, and it was known to be the bane of the simple Acadian peasants who peopled its pleasanter shores some two centuries ago. Tales of havoc wrought by its great winds and tide-rips still live in the legendary lore of the descendants of the Micmac and Malliseet Indians found throughout this part of Canada today.

Plans and specifications for utilizing the potential power of the Fundy tides have been completed. The two inlets which have been selected are known as Passamaquoddy bay and Cobscook bay. The first is designated as the upper pool and the second as the lower pool. Both inlets are V-shaped, with their narrow necks, almost stopped by small island groups, meeting at Eastport.

At the mouth of the upper pool, which contains about 100 square miles of water, the plans call for the erection of a sea wall 4,000 feet long and 70 feet high. The wall is to be provided with 33 sluice gates. The mouth of the lower pool, containing 50 square miles of water, is to be closed by a similar gate, 2,400 feet long.

Between the two pools a separating wall 3,600 feet in length will be built on which power plants are to be located.

Theory of Operation.

The theory is this: The gates of the upper pool are to be opened only during flood tides, while the gates of the lower pool are to be opened only during ebb tides. This, according to the plans, will keep a supply of water in the upper pool, while the lower pool will be constantly emptied. The fall of the water from the upper pool through the turbines into the lower pool will create a continuous downfall regardless of whether the tides are falling or rising.

Several years ago when the idea of harnessing the tides was first promulgated, it was received with derision. To the lay mind it appeared altogether too visionary. The magnitude of the project as then set down was overwhelming even to experts in hydro electric development. Nothing of the kind had ever been undertaken. But since the idea received the sanction of some of the foremost men in the profession, experts and laymen alike have reversed their attitudes and opinions. Man has bent the most potent forces of nature to his will before; many are hopeful now that he will be able to wrest from the tides in the Bay of Fundy some small measure of that incalculable power which is still the plaything of the moon in the scheme of the universe.

Upper Basin States Protest Power Project Planed for Arizona

DENVER.—Plans are under way here today to put into concrete from the protests of the Upper Basin states—Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico—of the Colorado River compact group against granting by the Federal Power commission of the Girard license for the proposed Diamond Creek power project in Arizona.

Scores of such protests are pouring into the headquarters here of the Colorado River league, and they will be presented to the Federal Power commission at a hearing in Washington, D. C., on Oct. 20.

The only complaint that might be registered against Walter's pitching in this series had to do with his failure to watch base runners. Steals have been registered against Muddy Ruel, but the latter was almost an innocent bystander. Johnson virtually has been winding up with men on first base.

This play, whoch saw Judge break for second, draw a throw and then leave the situation open for Harris' dash to the plate, showed teh Senators were holding their heads.

Birthday Mixup Looms For Ohio Twins Born In Different Months

TOLEDO, O.—Birthday complications loom in the lives of Blossom and Junior Mayhugh. Although they are twins, Junior was born 17 days after the birth of Blossom. To add to the complexity they will have to explain away the rest of their lives, Blossom was born in one month and Junior in another. August 24 is Blossom's birthday and September 10 Junior's.

Mrs. A. J. Mayhugh, the mother sees nothing unduly surprising about the event which sent medical men, newspaper men and photographers beating at their door.

"Everybody is making so much fuss over the fact that the twins were born 17 days apart. When Blossom was born I knew there was to be another baby," she said. "But the doctor told me there was nothing to worry about. I felt fine and did two-family washings before Junior came. Both babies are healthy and are doing fine, although Blossom is nervous and fretful."

Michael Connolly, known as "Johnny of the Hills" died recently at Nenagh, England, at sixty-five after living twenty-five years in the open through rain, hail and snow.

All the railroads between Sydney and Brisbane, Australia, are to be made of uniform grade, at a cost of $17,500,000 so that passengers can make the trip without changing cars.

LEGAL NOTICE

To the Electors of East Liverpool City School District,

Notice is hereby given that the proposition to levy an additional tax, for school purposes, over and above the maximum authorized under Sections 5649-2, 5649-3A and 5649-3C General Code of Ohio and all limitations of law be submitted to the electors of the said East Livcrpool city School District at the regular election, November 3, 1925.

Said extra tax levy is declared by the Board of Education of the said East Liverpool City school district to be necessary, because by the exercise of all authority under the limitations of law, the maximum amount that can be levied for school purposes will be insufficient to meet the current expenses of the schools of said school district and it is expedient to levy additional taxes by virtue of Section 5649-4, as amended by House Bill 58, as passed by the General Assembly of Ohio, and filed with the Secretary of State, April 21, 1925.

The question to be decided is whether or not a levy of not to exceed 3 mills, additional to that authorized under limitations of law, shall be made for school purposes for a period not to exceed 5 years.

Board of Education of The East Liverpool City School District.

"Flat to Let" Signs Exhibited as Curios In French Metropolis

PARIS.—"Flat to Let" signs have gotten so scarse in Paris that the Municipal Museum has acquired five beautiful specimens and placed them on exhibition.

The donor, Monsieur Andre Laphan, in the letter announcing his gift to Professor Jean Robiquet, conservator of the museum, says, "I wish Parisians of the present generation to be able to see just what these signs were like. They will evoke memorirs of another epoch in the eyes of the boys and girls of today."
